MOTOR NOTES AND NEWS.

The 1931 Models : Some Serious Defects : Body Building Influenced by Racing Drivers : Roominess, Comfort and Visibility Disappearing.

The first batch of the 1931 models of those cars most in demand in the Free State have now arrived in Dublin, and are being demonstrated by the local agents and distributors. I have seen many of these cars, and have tried out some of them, and the general impression left on me is that the majority of manufacturers are tending to pay less and less consideration to the comfort—and, in fact, the safety—of drivers and passengers in what seems to be a too great desire, or rather craze, for speed, stream-line effect, the reduction of wind pressure, and greater power.

It is apparent that the influence of the racing drivers rather than the needs of the ordinary owner-driver, on whom car producers depend for a return on their capital, is to a great extent responsible for the type of car that is now being placed on the market. For the one racing machine that a maker produces, he turns out thousands of cars of the touring type, and his object ought to be to provide that the type of car in which riding comfort, ease of operation, accessibility and good visibility will be found. In the main owner-drivers want a car that will give them a touring speed of between thirty-five and forty miles an hour, and in the production of such a vehicle there is no necessity for designers to take into account wind pressure and stream-line effect at the cost of comfort, roominess, and visibility and control.

FAULTS OF NEW MODELS.

In many of the new models the driver of normal dimensions is quite unable to see the top of his front left mudguard, and if he should wear a hard hat while driving it crashes against the roof when he attempts to sit in an upright position. Last week I was invited to take for a trial run one of these models, and I could have entered or left an aeroplane with greater ease. The top of the roof from the ground was a couple of inches over five feet, and, when the height from the ground to the floor of the car was deducted, it left less than a four-foot high door to get into the car. With the front seats projecting to almost half the breadth of the door anything but a graceful or dignified entry or exit could be made by any except those of the smallest stature. Engine performance, the upholstery, the springing and the position of the controls were all satisfactory; but the scanty head room and the poor visibility possible from the driver's seat were very grave faults.

LIMITED VISIBILITY.

Sitting in the driver's seat, and as I drove along, I had to strain my neck and body rather uncomfortably to get a view over the top half of the driving wheel, which was on the same level as my eyes. Visibility, in consequence, was considerably limited, and, beyond seeing the roadway directly in front of the car, it was impossible to see what was going on around. The near-side fore mudguard was altogether lost to sight, and something in the nature of a periscope would be required to see where the left front wheel was going. The change to lowering the driver's seat to a position from which good observation of what was taking place, not only directly in front, but at either side of the car, is not a wise one, and there is no doubt that a driver in this type of car will not be in as good a position to avoid accident as the driver who has distinctly better facilities for observation in the older types of cars. The craze for more and more speed and shapely lines ought not in the interests of motorists, pedestrians and all road users be permitted to make traffic conditions more dangerous than they are at the present time.

WHAT MOTORISTS APPRECIATE.

To-day's motor car gives us speed, reliability and cheap transport, and the attention of manufacturers to a few minor alterations which involve but little engineering skill would be greatly appreciated by owner-drivers. Adjustable seats are now general in the 1931 models. Their introduction was welcomed, as they tend to prevent driving fatigue by changing the position of the driver's seat—but what is the use of raising the seat if one's thighs are jammed against the driving wheel? An adjustable steering column is the natural counter-part of the adjustable seat, and its introduction will confer a distinct benefit on drivers.

QUESTION OF ACCESSIBILITY.

It would, too, be appreciated more than is imagined by manufacturers if some attention were paid to accessibility in the so-called advanced design of present-day cars. There seems to be a regular plot on the part of all designers to make repairs as expensive as possible because of the time it takes to get at a part which needs attention. In this connection the obvious changes needed in design should include cylinders separated from the crank case, the making possible of inserting a brush in the dynamo without the necessity of removing that part of the mechanism from the engine, of being able to deal with starter pinions sticking without removing the tray and taking out the steering column, and, in the case of a repair necessary to a big end, to be able to drop the sump by undoing some nuts without dismantling several other parts of the engine.

One of the great and outstanding needs is a car built first and foremost for accessibility, which would mean that it could be kept in a good state of efficiency.

Commercial chassis are much further ahead in accessibility than those of private cars, the reason being that these vehicles, as a rule, are purchased by people who have an idea how a chassis should be constructed, and are not purchased because of a certain colour scheme or pretty lines.

STORE CATTLE SALES.

GAVIN LOW, LTD.

There was again a firm demand for all-aged cattle in forward condition at yesterday's sale. With a good attendance of buyers, all useful lots met keen competition and changed hands at fully last week's rates. There was no improvement, however, in trade for secondary and younger sorts, but a good clearance was made. Horned bullocks and heifers made from 35/- to 40/- per cwt., Aberdeen-Angus and Hereford crosses from 38/- to 43/- per cwt.

R. AND J. WILKINSON.

With a somewhat better quality amongst this week's entries, there was a steadier trade, but plain sorts continue to meet only a moderate demand. There were some lots of heifers and polled and horned bullocks from Counties Tipperary, Galway, Kildare, etc., and, for those suiting buyers' requirements, firm prices were obtained. Heifers at £18, £16 12/6, £16 10/-, £15 10/-, £15 5/-, £14 17/6, etc., or 40/- to 36/- per cwt.; bullocks £18 15/-, £17 17/6, £17 10/-, £16 10/-, £16 5/-, £15 17/6, £15 10/-, £15 5/-, £13 2/6, etc. Best lots were 38/6 to 35/- per cwt., plainer lots 34/- to 32/-.

A copy of "Maggie," by Johnston Smith, privately printed at New York, 1893, caused a surprise at Sotheby's yesterday, when it brought £130. It was not expected to bring more than a few pounds.

FOOD AND PRODUCE MARKETS.

Dublin—Good demand for choice Cattle, with last week's prices maintained; Sheep quiet and steady, Lambs weaker in value, and 2/- to 3/- per head lower; Dairy Cattle tedious to sell, Pig demand satisfactory. York—Irish Stores steady trade. Butter at Copenhagen unchanged. Sharp rises in Tin and Copper. Rubber easier.

CATTLE.

DUBLIN (METROPOLITAN).—There was a good and well-sustained demand for choice medium-weighted beeves suitable for home requirements, and last week's prices were well maintained, but heavier and secondary sorts met a weak shipping inquiry; but prices generally show no change from last week, due, no doubt, to the large decrease in numbers offered, which were close on 600 head less. It is possible that the cases of foot-and-mouth disease which is reported from Devonshire and Yorkshire may have helped in the movements of our cattle; but still the shipping demand for cattle, which has been so weak, did not improve. In fact, some shippers say that this week is even worse for trade across Channel than last week, which they considered bad, and from all accounts a recovery in the near future does not seem likely, due, no doubt, to the unemployment in England and, of course, the shipments of Canadian cattle is bound to hit our trade here, more so when our market is too heavily supplied with rough and inferior classes, as was the case here yesterday, there being very few choice drafts to be seen on stands.

	Numbers on offer this week compared with last.		Corresponding weeks of 1928.	1929.
Beasts	5,014—decrease	570	4,995	5,940
Sheep and Lambs ...	7,647—increase	257	5,935	6,759
Veal Calves.	6—increase	4	10	11

A slow start was made in the market, but as the morning advanced business became brisker, and home buyers were busy and took the cream of the market, and shippers were compelled to take the more unfinished lots, and sought them at easier values. Market was well sold up of the choice animals coming on to 11 o'clock, but owing to the large number of secondary and rougher sorts offered a clearance in most cases was almost impossible. Beef cow trade continues to drag after a few sales of choice young cows, which repeated last week's top values, but other classes very hard to cash. With the bulk on hands at middle stage of business, in some cases did not even draw a bid. Prices yesterday were:—Best shorthorns 40s. to 42s. per cwt., extra 43s., and for prime finished blacks 43s. 6d. to 44s., secondary and useful sorts 36s. to 39s., rougher 33s. to 35s., beef cows, best young 30s. to 32s., exceptional 33s. to 34s., old and lean 15s. to 22s.

SHEEP AND LAMBS.—Sheep market on the whole ruled somewhat quiet, but still prices for choice mutton held well, considering that supplies were close on 300 head more than last week. Lamb trade was decidedly weaker, and, except for very choice lots, values were fully 2s. to 3s. per head lower. Shipping demand was much weaker, and some men operating here yesterday say they lost on some recent transactions, and the working margin between here and cross-Channel markets is too small and risky. Still, there was a fair trade in nice class hoggets at a price to suit their requirements, while local victuallers were good, but slower buyers of all suitable classes, including good ewes, but half-meated sheep are still a slow, dragging sale, with some pens unsold at a late hour. Mutton, best, 9½d. to 10d. per lb.; very choice, 10½d.; other classes, 6½d. to 8d. Hoggets, 45s. to 57s., extra 72s. to 76s.; wethers, 63s. to 77s. and 80s., in one case 81s. Ewes, 35s. to 60s.; exceptional small lot, 65s., and lambs, best, 42s. to 44s. and 50s.; a small lot made 54s.; others, from 25s. to 35s. per head.

DAIRY CATTLE.—The gathering of dairy cattle on this market totalled 308 exhibits. Trade rather quieter, and more tedious than previously, and values in circumstances harder to repeat, even for best classes of Scotch cows, and prices recorded here yesterday were fully £1 per head worse than last market, with a carry-over of the poorer classes. No doubt, the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in several cross-Channel centres had a weakening effect, and sales from start to near close of business was not at all so good as previously. Yesterday's values were:—Heifers, £20 to £25 and £26 per head; good-class cows, £18 to £24; Scotch type, £30; other classes, say, £10 to £15.

PIGS.—The number of swine offered—viz., 1,116—shows an increase of 26 on week. Trade in general not so brisk as last week, but still very satisfactory, particularly for light pork pigs, which were cashed at last week's full values; also all useful classes found ready buyers. Sows are still scarce, but are sufficient for requirements, while slips and bonhams are only a fair trade at low prices. The attendance of buyers was good, although we did not see any Englishmen operating, but there were some commission men buying, apparently for shipment, and a satisfactory sell-up seemed possible at the following: — Pork pigs under 6 stone weight 100s. to 108s. and 110s. per cwt., 6 to 8 stone 90s. to 95s.; bacon pigs 9 to 13 stone 80s. to 86s. and 88s., heavier 66s. to 68s. and 70s.; sows 55s. to 58s., extra 60s. to 65s., and slips and bonhams 25s. to 35s. each.

YORK.—Average offer of Irish store cattle for time of year, and steady trade at about last week's rates. Very few English beasts forward. Quite a nice show of calving and milch, for which there was just a nice, steady trade, with little alteration in price as compared with recent markets. Fair number of sheep penned, and a steady trade.

BRISTOL.—Moderate supply of beef, 84/- to 86/- per cwt. best quality, dead weight; mutton, 1/- to 1/1 per lb.; lamb, 1/2 to 1/3. About 500 store cattle, including 350 Irish, on offer, for which trade was easier. No milch cows. Heifers, two-year-olds, £18 to £20; stirks, £13 to £15; calves, £7 to £9.

BIRMINGHAM PIG.—Small to medium supply. Trade very steady to active. Quotations:—Sizeable bacons from 13/-, choice lots 13/6. Cutters still a wide range, but variously quoted 14/- to 16/-, and sows 10/6 per score, dead weight.

LIVERPOOL.—WHEAT—American and Argentine markets finished much better than expected, and forward deliveries of wheat here advanced to a liberal extent during early trading, fluctuated moderately, but sharply gave way later on owing to heavy Russian shipments for past week, and with late afternoon cables also discouraging final rates showed a fair depreciation from previous night. C.i.f. parcels wheat inactive, the only business reported being Rosario Santa Fe (62lb.) afloat at 24/10½ per quarter. C.i.f. parcels maize River Plate fully 4½d. lower, December-January shipment selling at 16/7½ per quarter. Wheat on the spot quiet and unaltered. MAIZE—Spot parcels River Plate steady at 3/9 to 3/9½ per cental for River Plate. FLOUR quiet at late rates. Graded wheat futures opened ⅝d. to ⅞d. per cental dearer, and 1d to 1¼d. over previous night was afterwards realised; then prices varied somewhat, but declined rapidly during late trading, the market closing quiet at ¼d. to ¾d. below Wednesday's final rates.

MANCHESTER CORN.—English wheat lower at 27/- to 29/- per quarter on rail; Cheshire oats, 5/6 to 6/- per cwt. on rail; English beans, 28/6 to 29/6 per quarter on rail.

PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL.—BACON—Continental again meets a fair demand, but with free supplies of Danish holders continue easy to approach, though no further official change is made in values, while Irish remains quietly steady and American firm on scarcity, with backs of latter partially 1/- dearer at 82/- to 96/- per cwt. HAMS still firm for short cut, which are in fair request at late currencies, shoulders scarce and nominal. LARD on the spot, in sympathy with easier c.i.f. rates, is reduced 1/-; prime steam now offered at 60/- to 61/-, and American refined 64/6 to 65/6 per cwt., with latter in fair demand at the decline. CHEESE quiet, but steady and unaltered. BUTTER quiet, and holders free sellers at late rates. EGGS firm at 23/3 to 24/- for extra selected Irish hen, 22/9 to 23/- selected, 18/- to 19/9 for mediums, and 17/- to 17/6 for duck, per 120.

BRISTOL.—BACON was in steady demand, with a good business done in fores and streaks, but gammons moved off less readily than of late, and prices generally ruled steady. HAMS—With short cut in limited supply, prices remained at about the previous level, though the demand was rather quiet. LARD had a moderate sale, but with supplies restricted prices ruled firm. CHEESE—Colonial sorts were in sustained demand at full recent rates. BUTTER was in quiet demand at an occasional slight decline in values.

CARDIFF.—The market remains quiet, with prices tending lower owing to abundant supplies. Wholesale quotations (delivered in Cardiff district)—BACON—Irish baled 88/- to 96/-, Danish 77/- to 81/-; American and Canadian Wiltshires not offered. HAMS—American 96/- to 110/-. INDIAN ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

SYMPATHETIC COMMENTS IN MADRAS.

From Reuter's Correspondent.

MADRAS, Thursday.

Commenting on the inauguration of the Round Table Conference, the independent Nationalist paper Hindu declares that both the opening speech of the King-Emperor and the Prime Minister's survey of the task before the Conference, while showing that the Government are deeply sensible of the onerous responsibility resting upon them, afford no indication of the broad lines of the policy whereby it is proposed to tackle it.

The Madras Mail says that the utterances at the opening ceremony were distinguished by a lofty desire to achieve results satisfactory to all, and observes that the key to the success of the Conference may be summed up in the one word "agreement."

Justice is of opinion that the King's speech, while not containing any tangible announcement about the constitutional issue, shows the sympathetic and generous attitude of His Majesty and his Government towards a speedy and satisfactory solution of the Indian problem.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

THE UNITED STATES OF EUROPE.

The United States of Europe. By Edouard Herriot. London: Harrap. 12/6 net.

The Concert of Europe. By R. B. Mowat. London: Macmillan and Co. 15/- net.

M. HERRIOT, it will be recalled, was President of the French Radical-Socialist Party from 1919 to 1926 and Prime Minister of France and Minister for Foreign Affairs from 1924 to 1925. It was he who signed the London agreements relating to the application of the Dawes Plan and began the negotiations with Germany on the subject of security, which terminated in the Locarno Pact.

From his "home town" M. Herriot has been keeping a critically observant eye on the work of his successors in office, and one result is the present volume, which is the most comprehensive study yet undertaken of M. Briand's plan for a federation of the various States of Europe. He admits that he would have liked to have studied in greater detail the replies to M. Briand's proposal which have been sent in by the various countries. The British reply, for example, he considers "so reserved as to amount almost to a refusal." He mentions it merely in passing, together with the replies of Spain and Rumania.

M. Herriot states clearly, early in the present volume, that he is not one of those who would begin the work of European federation with the suppression of customs. Nevertheless, he sees nothing to prevent European agriculture from taking its place in a work of co-ordination "of which it should be the first to reap the benefits." He considers that the proceedings of the first European Tariff Union Congress thoroughly justify his recommendation to all concerned to proceed with prudence and aim at the progressive organisation of production and exchange.

The main points of M. Herriot's reasoning on the problem of federation embody the following:—

A European understanding can be achieved only within the framework of the League of Nations, as a part of the League, and marking a stage in its development.

A European understanding—which must be open to all the nations of Europe who are willing to enter—must take account both of international and national alignments.

Such an understanding is rendered necessary by the laws of economic evolution, by industrial amalgamations, and by the necessity of defending the European market.

It must be sufficiently comprehensive to admit nations like Great Britain, which have both European and world-wide interests.

The nations must be represented on absolutely equal terms.

It must regard the suppression of tariff barriers as the end, not the beginning, of an economic organisation of Europe.

It can achieve stability only by a European organisation of credit.

Its durability will depend upon a fixed system of arbitration, disarmament and security.

The volume gives detailed information of what has been done already, particularly in the commercial and industrial spheres, in the direction of unification. The failure of the Economic Conference and the Tariff Truce Conference to achieve their objects is attributed to the fact that the political unit must precede the economic.

* * * * *

Professor Mowat's work is a valuable corollary to M. Herriot's. It will enable the reader to realise more clearly all the circumstances that led to the making of modern Europe and its re-making; for it deals with international relations, chiefly European, from January, 1871, to August, 1914. This period Professor Mowat considers "one of the most remarkable in the history of the world," and few will gainsay him.

His comment in the preface upon the German Empire is worth quoting:—

"The German Empire, although it had a life span of less than fifty years, must ever be regarded as one of the most momentous things in world-history. It was the last of the Vikings, the final and complete embodiment of Viking morality. It was born in war. Its philosophy of life assumed the struggle for existence as the eternal condition of mankind. When its hour struck it nailed its colours to the mast, and, with heart unsoftened, went down amid universal shipwreck."

The whole work is a scholarly production, which will add greatly to the reputation of the learned author.

ADVENTURES IN THE EGYPTIAN SUDAN.

"Out of the Beaten Track." By Major C. Court Treatt, F.R.G.S. London: Hutchinson. 18/- net.

MOST boys, at one time or another, have longed to travel in out-of-the-way parts of the world, but these golden dreams of youth are realised by few. Prominently among the fortunate must be numbered Major Court Treatt. At school the prestige that he derived as champion heavy-weight boxer and head of the school cadet corps was as nothing compared with that which he drew from his reputed ability to swear in Arabic.

Since he began so early, it is not surprising that he should have attained now a position of pre-eminence among African pioneers. Yet Major Treatt is more than an explorer of distant territories; he is also a scientist and an artist of very high rank, and as such his work will live. Some of his experiences have been given to the public in well-known films, but his latest have been recorded in "Out of the Beaten Track," a very suitable title for his adventures in the West and South-West of the Egyptian Sudan.

His main objectives were photography and the ethnological study of the tribes. As regards the former, he was anxious to photograph big game in their natural surroundings, and the illustrations in the book demonstrate how very successful he was. The difficulties of the task are best described in his own words: "Imagine the anxiety to approach so near as to make the perfect elephant photograph possible; far nearer than would be required for the bullet of a rifle. Picture the caution of manœuvre necessary to photograph more and more animals, whereas in shooting, one bullet meant a stampeded herd and only one elephant. Conceive the difficulties of light and position as opposed to the straightforward requirement of a fair sight of your animal when there's a rifle in your hand."

More even than the thrill of this dangerous chase, Major Treatt loves the African himself, and, seeing into his mind to a depth vouchsafed to few, he loves him ever more strongly. The chapters on the Dinka and on witchcraft do not interest merely by the wealth of information which they contain, but also charm and delight with the obvious sincerity of the author's sympathy. Here and there, as he writes, he voices his opinion on various aspects of the country, and in these little homilies lies the real kernel of the book; for they are written without bias and are true, often courageous and always to the point. His many friends will wish him well, looking forward to his continued progress—and to his next book.

LAST DAYS OF TSARDOM.

The Fourth Seal. By Sir Samuel Hoare. London: Heinemann. 15/- net.

SIR Samuel Hoare has given his book, in which he records his impressions of the last days of Tsardom in Russia, an apocalyptic title, but there is nothing apocalyptic in his style, which is a model of clarity.

Generally, he tends to support the orthodox views of to-day concerning the actors in that drama. The Emperor appeared to him as a kindly, simple man — the country squire at heart. He speaks, too, of his intelligence, but here Sir Samuel is less convincing. Indeed, he is inconsistent; for discussing the reason why Nicholas II. always was surrounded by unscrupulous intriguers, he writes, "I believe myself that the true answer is ignorance." Emperors who permit themselves to remain ignorant of vital matters, such as the appointment of Ministers, surely cannot be intelligent.

Sir Samuel Hoare.

It is in the picture drawn of a ramshackle machine, crashing to ruin through its inability to cope with the additional burdens of government due to a great war, that "The Fourth Seal" is valuable. As head of the British Mission to the Russian G.H.Q., Sir Samuel saw the coming storm from the angle of high society, and he demonstrates abundantly that the revolution—a characteristic common to revolutions—owed much to "defeatist" elements among the nobility and the so-called intelligentsia. He suggests, indeed, if we have understood him aright, that the real trouble was not Nicholas's inability to govern, but that he did govern at all. Tsardom, in short, revolved, a ponderous driving wheel in contact with nothing.

Rasputin's murder, which at the time was thought to herald a new dawn and the extinction of the "dark forces" about the crown, Sir Samuel believes now to have hastened the disaster. He considers that Lord Kitchener might have been able, if he had arrived, to infuse a sufficiency of energy into the Emperor to stave off the evil, anyhow for a time. Quien sabe? The Hampshire sank, and affairs fell out as we know them to have fallen out. "The Fourth Seal" tells us many important things that we had not heard before, and, if itself is slender, in a later age it will be an admirable reference for some new Gibbon when he pens a vast work on the decline and fall of the Russian Empire.

THE JAMESON RAID.

The Jameson Raid. By Hugh Marshal Hole. London: Philip Allan. 15/- net.

THE famous incident which led to the Boer War has been made the subject of a sufficient number of books and histories, but Colonel Hole has an advantage in his story from the fact that he was Dr. Jameson's private secretary from 1891 to 1893, and was brought into intimate contact with many of those who afterwards figured prominently in the revolutionary project—Cecil Rhodes and Dr. F. Rutherfoord Harris, and others.

Colonel Hole's object and aim are to approach his story from an original point of view. He says:—

> "No study of the chain of events which culminated in the raid can be complete without a study of the characters, the temperaments, and the psychology of those who guided the rank and file, and, with what appears to be an utter disregard of the ordinary canons of good sense, compassed the ruin of their own cause."

In a vivacious style that indicates full and first-hand knowledge of the case the author tells the full story of the misunderstanding that occurred between Rhodes and Jameson, the aims and plans of the Uitlanders, of Kruger, Joseph Chamberlain and the other actors in the drama.

RECENT FICTION.

Where Will You Fall? By Leo Perutz. Elkin Mathews and Marrot. 7/6 net.

The Jagged Rim. By Simon Dare. Hutchinson. 7/6 net.

Twice Dead. By Mrs. E. M. Channon. Benn. 7/6.

"GENERAL B.O." by Roman Gul, is introduced to the English-speaking public by Stephen Graham, and is a novel after the fashion of his own recent "St. Vitus' Day."

Actually it is fact, not fiction. The terrorists are dealt with under their correct names; Azef, the notorious agent provocateur, who served the Russian secret police and the revolutionary party and betrayed both sides; and Savinkof, probably the most remarkable man in the whole revolution, are the chief characters.

The conspiracy to murder the Grand Duke Sergius and Von Phlehve, and the murder itself, are described graphically. A number of women, too, figure in the story, so that readers who like love affairs as well as dynamite, will be satisfied.

The translation is well carried out by Leonide Zarine, who seems to have caught the peculiar flavour of Roman Gul's style.

* * * * *

Desire for revenge is the keynote of this story of post-war conditions in Eastern Europe. Five men, who have been prisoners of war in Russia, swear to avenge themselves on a certain field-captain, at whose hands they have received brutal treatment. One by one they back out, until only one is left, but his obsession makes up in intensity for the apathy of the other four. His adventures are the subject-matter of the book. For two years he travels in quest of his enemy, and at last finds him, when the unexpected happens. The women characters are somewhat negative; but, as the part played by them is small, this shortcoming is of no great consequence.

George Vittorin is really the one character of the book. With his eye fixed on his goal, he goes forward, and has no room in his mind for any other idea. At first there is some slight hesitation at leaving his fiancée and his family, but as soon as he has started they are pushed into the background. Thenceforward, the stage is his. The others who appear thereon are merely landmarks passed on the road, and their importance is solely the bearing which they have on his search. This tends to narrow the interest, but there is a constant undercurrent of irony, of which the book's ending is the climax.

It is a translation from the German, a fact which must have robbed it of something of its original fire; yet it remains a book which can be read with enjoyment.

* * * * *

"There's a silver lining," shouts "The Jagged Rim," whose unconquerable optimism belies its title.

The writer, who evidently believes in human nature, has a knack of making the right people fall in love with one another, while, if a mistake does occur, a solution is arrived at simply by one party immediately making the necessary sacrifice with a smiling hopefulness. The story centres round three girls of different temperament. Amber, of the passionate mouth and violet eyes, excites our interest; but, as the hidden possibilities hinted at never come to anything, she is rather disappointing. The "vamp" leads us to suspect that she has claws, but she never seems to use them. Jake is a "strong, silent man," whose placidity and inability to do the obvious are rather irritating. Nesta, the last one from whom we expected anything, does achieve something, and the book concludes happily with all tangles unravelled.

It is a romantic novel which will please those who do not ask for humour, and merely seek an escape from realism.

* * * * *

The torrent of "thrillers" and mystery stories which has been poured out during recent years must trouble authors to discover a plot which has not already been worn thread-bare. Perhaps, this difficulty is the excuse for the distinct weakness of the story of "Twice Dead"; for the authoress, Mrs. Channon, makes her characters a good deal more real than the world in which they move. The confessions, by which the mystery is elucidated, are especially feeble.

FIFTEEN PROTAGONISTS OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

A Biographical History of the French Revolution. By J. Mills Whitham. London: Routledge. 15/- net.

THIS book is useful, if only for the reason that in one volume it gives a short life of fifteen prominent characters of the Revolution. The author's selection, too, is good, and the only remarkable omissions that occur to us are Philippe Egalité and Tallien, who with advantage might have been given each an individual chapter. Yet these two are not ignored since their careers impinge on those of the others, from Mirabeau to Robespierre and Bonaparte.

We may congratulate the author upon a very praiseworthy work. Undoubtedly, he has the gift of succinct and interesting narrative, while his research manifestly has been thorough in the last degree. His summings up of the various subjects of the book after they have ended their days—usually on the guillotine—are not unfair. Generally, Mr. Mills Whitham's work will be both a valuable addition to the history of the period and an entertaining book to read. Our only real criticism is that often he places an accusative in apposition to nominative, but, among so much that is good, perhaps such a comment is pedantic.

THE VERNEY LETTERS.

The Verney Letters of the Eighteenth Century. Edited by Margaret Lady Verney. Two volumes. London: Benn. 42/- net.

THE "Verney Papers," which were published towards the end of last century, were a valuable record of a great family, and an even more valuable contribution to the history of the past.

In "The Verney Letters of the Eighteenth Century," Margaret Lady Verney continues the work of her predecessor and throws useful light on the manners and customs of the landed gentry of England in the reigns of William III., Anne and George I. The letters, collected from the apparently inexhaustible archives of Claydon, the home of the Verneys, in Buckinghamshire, are of sociological and historical, rather than of literary interest.

Irish readers will smile sympathetically as they read Mary Verney's account of her first journey to Ireland with her husband, Colonel Lovett, of Eddystone Lighthouse fame. The journey was fraught with difficulties and dangers. There were long days on horseback, from Claydon to Chester and from Chester along the rocky roads of North Wales, with the river at Conway to cross. Followed a rough and uncomfortable sea passage, lasting for eight hours, and a further journey on horseback before they reached their destination, Kilruddery, which Colonel Lovett had rented from Lord Meath.

Letters, more than anything else, bring readers back in imagination to the daily life of a period when the Press was still non-existent. One's only complaint with Lady Verney's collection is that it is far too lengthy for the average reader. Much of the material might have been omitted and a good deal more cut down without spoiling the general picture of the times and of the family which she has set out to give. It remains, therefore, to indulge in a little judicious "skipping."

FOX HUNTING.

Fox Hunting. By Sir Charles Frederick and others. London: Seeley Service. 25/- net.

THOROUGHNESS is the key-note of this splendid book, which in many ways resembles the well-known Badminton volume on hunting. In this respect it rivals any work of its kind which has appeared recently. Throughout its pages veteran and novice alike will find instruction and interest. Although no particular aspect of fox hunting has been dealt with in great detail, there is no conceivable phase of the sport which has been overlooked.

Opening with a short review of the changes which the last 100 years have brought upon the hunting field, the authors set out to cover, every one his own ground. The book is, in large measure, the work of Sir Charles Frederick, but other well-known authorities contribute to its excellence. Chapters full of information are devoted to such various topics as masters, secretaries, hunt servants, expenses, accidents, etc., while special articles are written on the important packs both in the Shires and elsewhere.

Very welcome is a contribution from the pen of Mr. A. P. Pollock, the well-known Limerick master, who, however, is handicapped by inadequacy of space in his résumé of the different Irish packs. Yet he contrives to discuss the main features of every hunting country with a commendable regard for the picturesque. In view of Mr. Pollock's wide experience of Irish hunting this article will be of great interest to visitors to Ireland.

Enriched by many interesting illustrations, the book abounds in appropriate quotations from Jorrocks, Bromley Davenport and others. It closes with an instructive discourse on books and pictures of the chase.

SEA TROUT.

"The Life of the Sea Trout." By G. H. Nall, M.A., F.R.M.S. London: Seeley Service. 21s. net.

WE have here a standard work on the life history of the Sea Trout. The magnitude and thoroughness of the author's work at once are apparent. Although the subject has been treated scientifically, the author shows great reluctance to use technical terms, and gives explanatory notes of the few which he is obliged to use.

Space does not permit a detailed description of the various sections, but attention ought to be drawn to the value of scale reading as demonstrated by this particular line of study. We are told that most of the material, so dealt with, has come from Scotland, although Ireland is showing a commendable interest in the subject. In summing up the results of examination of material from Ireland placed at his disposal the author naturally expresses surprise that "the growth of sea trout on the West Coast of Ireland is not, except in the Waterville district, nearly as rapid as one might expect." He considers that "moist climate and mild winters should stimulate parr growth," and that "the presence of the open Atlantic seems to invite development of a sturdy, free-roaming race of sea trout."

Every disciple of the gentle art in Ireland must read this book, and it is to be hoped that it will encourage active interest and desire for co-operation on their part towards further inquiry into the life history of the sea trout in Ireland.

The author is to be congratulated on a most valuable and interesting work, and a word of praise is due to the publishers for the excellent manner in which the book, including some beautiful plates, has been produced.

Over 1,000,000 Undernourished Children in England!

"ILL-BALANCED DIET THE CAUSE" says eminent dietetic authority

HOWEVER much a child may eat, if his diet is not properly balanced he will be undernourished — growth and development will be impaired — and he will be lacking in energy and stamina. There are over 1,000,000 undernourished children in England, as shown by statistics today!

For nearly 50 years Horlick's has been recommended by doctors as a food for children. Made from fresh, full-cream cows' milk and the choicest malted barley and wheat, Horlick's supplies just those body-building and energy-giving elements every growing child needs.

Mothers and school teachers everywhere write enthusiastic letters telling how much Horlick's has done to improve the health and happiness of their children.

Begin today to give Horlick's to your little ones. Children love to watch their Malted Milk being prepared in a Horlick's Mixer — and it makes each drink doubly delicious. Chemists and grocers have Horlick's — plain or chocolate flavoured — in sealed glass bottles in four sizes. Also the Horlick's Mixer.

One of the many thousand letters received from grateful Horlick's users

"SINCE she was quite tiny I have given Horlick's to my little girl regularly. She loves it — and I find it does her such a lot of good. I wish you could see Esther. She is a lovely child — so energetic and strong, too! I attribute her splendid health very largely to Horlick's."

EX-SERVICE MEN AND LAND COMMISSION.

ACTIONS IN WICKLOW CIRCUIT COURT.

At Wicklow Circuit Court cases affecting British ex-Service men placed upon the Colonel Proby estate, near Arklow, were investigated.

Patrick T. Kennedy, Kilcara, Woodenbridge, was sued by the Irish Land Commission for £523, representing nine half-yearly instalments on his two holdings; Thomas Appleby, Mongan, was similarly sued for £215; Edward Dunne, Avoca, for £212 15s. 3d.; William Higgins, Mongan, for £196 17s. 6d.; John Hannify, Rathdrum, for £205 17s. 6d.; Sydney P. Higgins, residing at Silvermines, Tipperary, for £212 15s. 6d., and Edward McAnaman, Monaglogh, for £63 7s.

With the exception of Dunne, all the defendants had counter-claims against the Irish Land Commission for damages for breach of contract and loss and damage sustained thereby in regard to the non-provision of a right of way from the public road to the lands. Kennedy claiming £1,100, and the others £450 each, except McAnaman, who claimed £240 in respect of fences not erected.

Mr. Cherry, Barrister-at-Law (instructed by Mr. Cullen, State Solicitor), formally proved the amount due against Kennedy.

Mr. McCarthy (instructed by Mr. D. O'Leary, solicitor) explained that, under the Irish Land Provision for Sailors and Soldiers Act, 1919, a number of tenants who were ex-Service men qualified under the Act, received grants of land on the Kilcara portion of the Colonel Proby estate, in 1924, and were it not for a right of way over one of the four avenues leading to the demesne, mentioned in the purchase agreement each tenant made with the Irish Land Commission, the holdings would have been land-locked and uneconomic. The schedule recorded the right of way for "foot, horses and carts"; but, prior to the purchase, Mr. Tynan, described as the Purchase Inspector of the Irish Land Commission, who carried out the negotiations, pointed out the lands, and told the tenants that this was the usual formula used by the Irish Land Commission, and represented to them specifically that it was a right of way for all times and all purposes.

Colonel Proby thought otherwise, and, after being twelve months in occupation, Colonel Proby suddenly stopped the avenue. In May, 1925, Mr. Kennedy wrote to the Land Commission complaining of this outrageous treatment, but nothing was done. In November the tenants jointly complained, and declared they would pay no further interest on their purchase money until the question was settled to their satisfaction and returned their receivable orders.

The Dominions Office, in London, who advanced the purchase money, were communicated with and interviewed, and correspondence passed with the Irish Land Commission, but nothing happened until, in 1928, acting under the powers of the 1923 Land Act, the Irish Land Commission acquired compulsorily a general right-of-way on this avenue; but they never communicated this extension to a single one of the tenants until after the originating summonses were served this year

These men had to stand inactive and idle for five years, and, at the end of that time, the Land Commission came into court claiming annuities.

Patrick T. Kennedy, having given evidence, the Judge asked:—Why did you not bring an action against Colonel Proby?—You cannot make the Irish Land Commission responsible for Colonel Proby's illegalities.

Mr. McGrath said that Colonel Proby's locking of the gate was only the beginning of the trouble, and was within the knowledge of the Irish Land Commission.

The Judge—He is as amenable to the law as the Irish Land Commission.

Mr. McGrath—He is; but the tenants took up the position that the Irish Land Commission led them into this position and should lead them out of it.

The several tenants were examined and told of their difficulties, and Edward Dunne added that there were about thirty small holders in the same situation and suffering the same grievances.

The case was adjourned to the next Circuit Court at Wicklow.

AN ECONOMIC EMPIRE.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE'S TASK.

SOME POSSIBILITIES.

The opening of the seventy-sixth session of the University Philosophical Society was held in the Dining Hall, Trinity College, Dublin, last night. Mr. J. C. M. Eason, M.A., ex-President, presided. Mr. H. G. Yeates, Sch. (Mod.), President of the Society, delivered his inaugural address, entitled "An Economic Empire."

THE ADDRESS.

In the course of his address, Mr. Yeates said that the situation at the moment was little short of desperate. The high price of money, the general feeling of mistrust on the Stock Exchange, which made an international disaster out of an individual bankruptcy, and the two million unemployed in Great Britain, all constituted a problem unique in the world's history. Immediate action must be taken, and it should be concerted action. They must endeavour to obtain greater co-operation between the large number of nations which at present were in competition, and of which the British Empire formed a useful starting-point, consisting as it did of a number of countries which already had something in common. The problem was to find on what lines that co-operation may best be attempted.

The task of the Imperial Conference consisted in, first, a clear statement of the state of affairs in each of the countries concerned, and of the difficulties peculiar to each; next, in a frank declaration of the methods which each proposed to adopt in order to overcome these difficulties; and last, in an attempt to co-ordinate these methods into a common plan of action aimed at securing better economic conditions for the Empire as a whole. It would have been out of the question to attempt these problems in any other order. Many of the delegates would possibly have found it less difficult first to formulate one common plan of action after another, and to postpone the discovery that none of these could possibly succeed, had they not been adroitly headed-off by Mr. Bennett, the Canadian Premier. Mr. Bennett showed that he recognised how essential it was for all to understand the necessity of keeping each of the Dominions free to attack its own problems in its own way.

FINDING A MARKET.

It may, he continued, be a truism to say that the difficulty which is common to all is the inability to find markets for their goods. But overproduction cannot exist until every man has abundance. Where is the fallacy? It lies in the tacit omissions of the problem of direct, or indirect, subsidising, and the assumption that our industries are being carried on economically.

Direct subsidising is understandable in cases where it is deemed expedient to employ some of the profits of an already established industry in the building up of another, which will pay its way if it can be established. But, in other cases, the results can be accomplished only by rash expenditure or by "sweated" labour, neither of which is economically sound; yet their temporary existence can work much harm.

THE CASE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Indirect subsidising is even more dangerous, since it can exist unchecked for a longer period. The United States have set up prohibitive tariffs indiscriminately, and have insisted on the last penny of England's war debt being paid to them. The result has been apparent—prosperity, at the expense of reducing the purchasing power of other countries, and hence the States have as many unemployed as Great Britain.

The Imperial Conference has shown that Empire free trade will not be countenanced by the Dominions, and on this account may be omitted from consideration. Of the remaining possibilities, import boards, bulk purchase and the quota proposal are intimately connected, and all have the drawback that they give Dominion sellers the opportunity of imposing their own prices, since under the scheme Britain's imports from them are fixed. The result can hardly be other than increased prices and no diminution in unemployment.

EMPIRE PREFERENCE TARIFFS.

Empire preference tariffs seem the only other possibility; they should cause no increase in the cost of living and should decrease unemployment, if intelligently applied. In Ireland the dairy trade, if stimulated by suitable tariffs, could outdo that of Denmark.

But just as necessary is rationalisation of industry by amalgamation of small concerns, elimination of the excess of middlemen, in standardisation of manufactured goods and in many other small improvements. This policy is the only solution, in conjunction with an intelligent system of Empire preference tariffs, which is sufficiently elastic to allow each of the Dominions to work out its own salvation in its own way, and yet can unite these Dominions into an Empire which can exist economically, not as a mere jingoistic notion, but as a very real and a very healthy organisation.

THE LORD MAYOR.

Proposing the resolution: "That the best thanks of the Society be tendered to the President for his address," the Lord Mayor congratulated the Government of the Irish Free State upon its signal contribution to the consideration of the economic situation which it had laid before the Imperial Conference. That contribution was known to have made a profound impression amongst the assembled delegates.

The Conference, he continued, made them pause for a moment to consider the events of the twelve years which have elapsed since the war. The entire world had undergone a vast change. Germany and France were each involved in a grim struggle to re-establish their industrial and financial systems. The fall in the value of the mark and the franc have had far-reaching effects upon the world markets. Everywhere on the face of the earth lurked the phantom of unemployment. Everything pointed to the fact that they had reached the saturation point, and that the immediate reconstruction of world trade was imperative. Those twelve years had been a period of world-wide depression, yet upon that sea of despondency the Irish Free State launched her frail, yet courageous, barque. For eight years now she has kept her sails to the wind, and they had every reason to congratulate themselves.

UNEMPLOYMENT.

The Free State had managed to find employment for more than half her unemployed since 1922, while in Great Britain and Northern Ireland the position had remained more or less stable. At the end of the present year, he hoped, the Free State would show a slightly improved return, while Great Britain could not look forward with anything but apprehension to its figures.

He believed that if the recommendations of the Free State Government at the Imperial Conference received full force and effect, they would result in an interchange of commodities between the Irish Free State and the remaining Governments of the Commonwealth, which would directly tend to develop the Free State's national resources and vastly improve its greatest national assets—the development of agriculture, cattle breeding, horse breeding, and the bacon industry.

MR. A. E. WOOD.

Mr. A. E. Wood, K.C., seconded. Having congratulated the President of the Society on his able and interesting paper, he said that out of the chaos and confusion into which the war threw the whole world people had not yet seen the definite line on which humanity must progress. It was well that all nations and all people should come together to see if by a common pooling of ideas there could be found some definite way out of the present chaos. Organisation and co-operation were two very important factors that would be required in solving the world problems, and what was lacking most was people of economic thought who were not tied to traditions.

Referring to the problems which faced the Imperial Conference, he pointed out that 90 per cent. of world production of foodstuffs was imported into the United Kingdom, which was, therefore, largely dependent for its life on world production. All that the Dominions could send to the United Kingdom was one-third of the world's export of produce, so that she was dependent for two-thirds of her food on countries outside the units of the Empire. Manufactured goods presented a similar problem, though the figures were not so high. Therefore, the problem that faced the Imperial Conference was that the United Kingdom was dependent for two-thirds of her imported food on foreign countries, and was also dependent for 55 per cent. of her export trade on foreign countries. It was, therefore, a very serious consideration for those who sought to solve the problem to find markets for mass production, and to impose tariffs on foreign countries. He only hoped that the problem would not be turned into a question of tariffs, a mere political question. They were tired of politicians; they wanted economists. (Applause.)

The motion was adopted.

MR. SEAN LEMASS.

Mr. Sean Lemass, T.D., proposed that the University Philosophical Society was worthy of the support of the students. He said the plain fact was that it was impossible to make the British Empire an economic unit. Matters affecting trade relations between Great Britain and the Dominions should be discussed and arranged by direct negotiation. The attempt to pool these discussions at the Imperial Conference was bound to fail, as it had failed. He wondered why those who were loudest in their advocacy of Empire free trade had not given study to Ireland, the only country in the world that had experience of Empire free trade. Free trade with England had reduced Ireland's population by more than half, had led to ruin and decay of Irish industries, and made emigration of Irish youth a normal factor in the life of the nation. The task to-day was to repair the damage and provide remunerative employment for their people at home, regardless of whether such action might or might not suit the needs of imperial statesmen.

Just as there was no reason, save a political one, for a common economic policy for the British Empire, there was no case for Imperial preference, except a political one. The Free State sent 94 per cent. of its exports to Great Britain, and received 80 per cent. of that country's exports. Their trade was not conducted on a basis favourable to them. It left them with an adverse balance. Either England must buy more from the Free State or the Free State must buy less from her. There was no reason why, consistent with a protectionist policy, the Free State should not negotiate a trade treaty with England as she did with Germany. Such a treaty would be negotiated with England and not with the Empire, and it would not be affected by whatever Government they had in this country.

Referring to the Lord Mayor's reference to the reduction in unemployment, he said that since 1922 the Free State had lost a quarter of a million of its people by emigration, and that accounted for the reduction in unemployment. The solution of their own difficulties should be the primary consideration for Irishmen. (Applause.)

The resolution was seconded by Mr. G. A. Duncan and passed unanimously.

THE CHAIRMAN.

The Chairman said that the world had been living for the past five or six years by doing less work and spending more money. If it were wrong for individuals to do that sort of thing, then it was also wrong for nations to do it. He thought that the solution of the present problem lay in the observance of certain fundamental principles.

An Autumnal City.

Just as one city will inevitably be connected in one's mind with the season of spring, and another will ever be clothed in one's thoughts with a sparkling mantle of snow, so Dublin calls more loudly to her exiles in the "fall" than at any other time of the year.

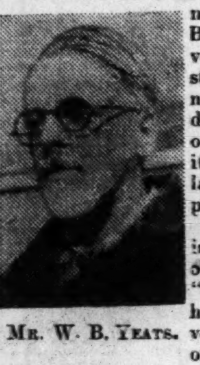
There is something about our own city on an autumn afternoon that is hard to forget; the pastel shades of the sky; the long misty vistas, with here and there a lamp gleaming like an early star; the shadowy course of the river, with the black towering spars of ships.

St. Stephen's Green itself seems to hold the wistful spirit of the dying year. There the remaining leaves are falling lothfully with every gust of wind; most of the seats are empty, and the occupants of others draw their meagre wraps more closely about them. The ducks are assiduous in their attentions to the few passers-by, for the summer crowds that fed them to satiety come there no more.

A year ago, in a beautiful Scottish city, an Irishwoman I know spoke of the homesickness that did not seem to get any better as the years went on. "Tell me about Dublin on a November afternoon," she said, "even if it is a wet one."

A New Yeats Play.

For his new play, "The Words upon the Window Pane," which is to be staged for the first time at the Abbey Theatre next week, Mr. W. B. Yeats has ventured into a new stage form and a new method. The play deals with the life of Dean Swift, but it is written in the language of the present day.



Mr. W. B. Yeats.

In form, the play is cast in the form of visions by a "medium," who will have to imitate the voices of a number of persons as the play proceeds. This will impose a heavy strain upon the actress who is to take the part, but there is little doubt that as "the medium" Miss May Craig will be equal to the part. Other personalities of Swift's day will appear in the play, so that a full company will be needed for the half-hour which it will take on the stage.

It is so long now since Mr. Yeats has ventured a play in prose that "The Words Upon the Window Pane" will be something of a novelty, as well as being an interesting experiment.

Dublin's Patron Saint.

St. Laurence O'Toole, Archbishop of Dublin, who died in 1160, is the Patron Saint of the Irish capital. He was the youngest son of Maurice O'Toole, a rich prince of Leinster. At ten years of age, we are told, "his wicked father gave him up as hostage to the King of Leinster, who kept him in a desert place. Afterwards the King was obliged by the boy's father to put him into the hands of the good Bishop of Glendalough. He became a priest, and at twenty-five years of age was made an Abbot.

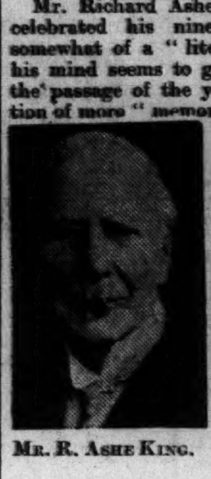
At length he was promoted to the See of Dublin, and held it till he died. An old religious calendar adds that "the Abbey of Our Lady, at a place called Eu, still retains the greater part of his reliques."

Sixty-Six.

Mr. Robert Hichens, who is 66 to-day, will soon be celebrating his literary jubilee; for he was only seventeen when he published his first novel—a somewhat lurid melodrama, which he has allowed to go out of print. His most famous novel, "The Garden of Allah," was the outcome of many years of thought, and was written only after seven long sojourns amid the desert scenes in describes so vividly. It was on the first of these visits, when he was staying as paying guest at a Trappist monastery in the Sahara, that the idea was suggested to him by the remark of an Arab guide: "This is the garden of oblivion: in the desert one forgets everything; even the desire of one's soul." For five years Mr. Hichens let the story shape itself in his mind, then devoted another two years to translating it into words.

A Veteran Writer.

Mr. Richard Ashe King, who has just celebrated his ninety-first birthday, is somewhat of a "literary curiosity"; for his mind seems to grow more active with the passage of the years and the acquisition of more "memories." Born in County Clare in 1849, his first call was to the Church, and he was for several years the curate of Low Moor, Bradford. About 1870 he first went to London as a journalist. His best-known journalistic work was done for the Pall Mall Gazette, then edited by Mr. John Morley, and for Truth, of which he was the literary editor for almost forty years, writing under the name of "Desmond O'B." His published works have not been the work of a journalist in the usual construction of the word, but the careful work of a conscientious scholar. The best-known of these are his "Life of Oliver Goldsmith" and his "Swift in Ireland." He has also published some autobiographical work and a novel and other pieces under the nom-de-plume of "Basil."



Mr. R. Ashe King.

Captain Boycott's Escape.

My reference the other day to Captain Boycott has brought me a letter from a friend of mine who lived in Castlebar at the time when the famous captain's unpopularity had reached its height; and in it my correspondent says that she never hears the word "boycott" without remembering a scene on the platform of the railway station in that western town.

She had gone there to meet some friend who was coming by train, and as she waited a hearse drew up at the station gate and remained motionless and gloomy, while people glanced at it and wondered idly who was coming on his last journey.

The train came alongside the platform, and the usual bustle of arrival and departure distracted the attention of the little crowd; but my friend saw the slide of the hearse open, and a man slipped across the platform and take his seat in a first-class carriage, and presently the train steamed out. It was Captain Boycott, and he had escaped from another tight corner.

*Keem Bay.

The loveliest bay in Achill, and one of the loveliest in Ireland, is associated with the name of Captain Boycott. The road that wanders through the villages of Keel and Dooagh changes into a rocky grassy track high above the sea, a track from which the cliff drops sheer into the water far below, and is not protected in any way. The stranger who passes the famous amethyst mine comes in time to the little bay, with its fringe of yellow sand, and its great guardian headlands. Close to the water stands the guant ruin of a coastguard station, and behind that, the more meagre ruin of a house where Captain Boycott loved to live. If the visitor expresses any horror of the precipitous drop from the narrow track, he, or she, is assured that Captain Boycott always drove a pair of horses tandem over that unprotected road. "There was just room for the trap," the local people say proudly.

A Wellesley Wager.

It is generally known that Buck Whaley once won a very large wager by walking to Jerusalem and back to Dublin, but few are aware that the Duke of Wellington, or the Hon. Captain Wellesley, as he was then, won a wager from the same Buck Whaley in a walking match against time. Captain Wellesley was not yet twenty-one when he wagered Mr. Whaley that he would walk from the fifth milestone on the Bray road to the corner of Leeson street within an hour. As the milestones then stretched from the Castle, and the miles were Irish, the distance may be considered over six English miles. The Dublin Chronicle, describing the walk, stated:—"A number of gentlemen rode with the walker, whose horses he kept in a tolerably smart trot." He covered the distance in fifty-five minutes.

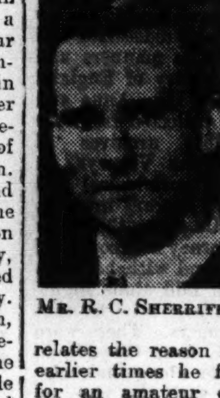
A New Deputy Lieutenant.

Major Arthur Henry Dillon, who has been appointed Deputy Lieutenant for the County of Oxford, is the heir presumptive to Viscount Dillon, of Costello Garden, County Mayo.

The Dillon family are descended from Sir Henry Dylon, who accompanied the Earl of Moreton (afterwards King John) to Ireland in 1185, and obtained extensive grants of land in the counties of Longford and Westmeath, and by this tenure he and his heirs were entitled to summons to Parliament. These lands were at first entitled Dillon's Country, until they later became reduced to shire-ground. Sir Henry Dylon was afterwards styled "Premier Dillon, Lord Baron of Drumrany." Major Dillon, who was born in 1875, is son of the late Hon. Conrad Dillon and grandson of the late Sir Henry Dashwood. He is nephew to the present Viscount Dillon, who has held the title since the death of his father, the 16th Viscount, in 1892. He was created a Companion of Honour in 1921, and has been President of the Society of Antiquaries.

The Author of "Journey's End."

Mr. R. C. Sherriff, the author of the most successful play that has been produced in England for many years, will visit Dublin to-day to lecture on the story of "Journey's End," under the auspices of the Royal Dublin Society.



Mr. R. C. Sherriff.

It is not necessary at this stage to refer to the details of his play, which has literally thrilled the world and incidentally has done more for the cause of peace than volumes of normal propaganda work.

The play, however, is remarkable for the absence of a woman's part in the characters. Mr. Sherriff humorously relates the reason for this omission. In earlier times he frequently wrote plays for an amateur dramatic society with which he was associated. He found that invariably the lovers in his plays ended by actually marrying each other, and in the end he decided to write a play that contained only male characters.

The Oldest Inhabitant?

Passing through Camden row one day last week I bethought me that I had read somewhere of the burial, in old St. Kevin's Churchyard, of one who was surely Dublin's oldest inhabitant. Later, I looked up the record—an article written by W. F. Wakeman—and found the following transcription of the wording on the headstone:—

Erected By
W. ROBENSON.
Here lieth his wife, ELIZABETH,
Who departed this life, July 19,
1830. Aged 145 years.
. . . . . 9 of their children,
And his mother, BRIDGET,
Who departed this life
October 6th, 1788,
In the 72nd year of her age.

It would be interesting to know if this tombstone still exists, and if the words are still decipherable.

Soldiers of Fortune.

The other day as I wandered out across the Hill of Howth I came upon an aged man—a tramp I suppose you would call him if you met him in the city—sitting by the side of the path. Ragged, unkempt, and brown almost as the heather all around him, he sat on a stone and puffed contentedly at a clay pipe. By his side was a nondescript terrier, a cheery looking tramp of a dog who ever and anon shifted uneasily and whimpered. I stopped and passed the time of day, and then, as the dog still fidgeted, I tactfully inquired of his master as to the cause. "Nothing's wrong with him," he answered, shifting his own position to look at his companion. "He's lazy; that's all." "What do you mean by lazy?" I asked. "Well," was the reply, "he's sittin' on a nettle an' he's too lazy to get off it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"GOD SAVE THE KING."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—In your issue of to-day you give an account of the Armistice Day Service in Trinity College Chapel, and say that the Service was concluded with the singing of the National Anthem. As my name appears among the list of those present, I should like to make a short personal explanation.

In my view a Service in which we honour those who died in the appalling tragedy and folly of 1914-1918 should be a Service of reconciliation—one in which men of all opinions and all nations may join. In England the singing of "God Save the King" might promote the cause of unity, but in Ireland this action is not likely to produce a spirit of reconciliation and fellowship. I feel that to associate the singing of this anthem with a tribute to the dead, who have no lot or part in our present differences, is altogether wrong. If I had realised that the ceremony was to end as it did, I should not have been present.—Yours, etc.,

R. W. Ditchburn, F.T.C.D.

PRIVY COUNCIL APPEALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I consider that the replies which my letter in last Saturday's issue of your paper have elicited, though stating certain considerations in favour of the retention of the appeal to the Privy Council, have in no way answered the objections which my letter raised. As I do not need to go over the same ground again, there would be no reason to say more, in spite of the abusive tone of Mr. Fuller, were it not that certain extraordinary notions still seem to be held as to the position of this country.

Some people seem still to be unable to understand why existence of the appeal to the Judicial Committee is humiliating to a nation which has been admitted to be co-equal with the nation which has established that Court—a Court which has no jurisdiction in England itself, but was invented to review the decisions of colonial Courts. If there is not a direct insult to any country over whose Courts this body claims to be supreme, if such interference and insult is not a humiliation, in what could humiliation lie? To talk of His Majesty in connection with the Privy Council is to take a constitutional figment seriously; the Privy Council is a Department of the British Government in effect, as the most guileless Imperialist must be aware. By such survivals as this Anglo-Irish friendship, so vital to both countries, is impeded. Those who value the continuance of the Commonwealth should surely most of all endeavour to remove an irritant which impedes co-equality and helps to keep a militant and often pernicious anti-Commonwealth sentiment alive in Ireland.

There are still people in this country, and it is a great misfortune for the country that it is so, who, while professing a fervent devotion to the British Empire, have failed to move with the times. They are as incapable of understanding modern British imperialism as of appreciating Irish nationalism and its demands on all inhabitants of this country. A commonwealth of nations can only be bound by ties of affection and of mutual interest; your correspondents still seem to think in terms of fetters. In 1926 England accepted the general principle of Dominion co-equality; why should her Irish admirers still shrink from its implications? On the legal position I would not care to argue with a gentleman of Mr. Jellett's eminence, but I believe that the Privy Council has itself decided that certain Irish legislation interfering with the appeal is perfectly valid. I agree with Mr. Fuller that the appeal has nothing to do with religion. Then why did the ecclesiastical authorities interfere?

Mr. Leslie wants me to say plainly whether "Trust your fellow-countrymen" means, in my opinion, "Cut every strand that binds you to England, and accept a republic." Here is my meaning, and I hope it is plain enough. Give up absolutely all idea of finding support from England, and accept Irish nationality and the implications of Irish freedom. Only on such terms will you be good Irish citizens; only by such action will you be able to make the rest of the nation attached to the Commonwealth of Nations, which means so much to many of you. Do not irritate your fellow-countrymen by futile displays, or increase the difficulties of those who are thoroughly ready to help and protect you. Above all, remember that the future of this country depends on internal unity and freedom from outside interference, and that no political doctrine, imperialist or otherwise, forms an essential part of any Protestant religion. As to the republic, it is not a practical issue at present. If it were by a miracle to come into existence, the circumstances would be so changed that all parties would have to consider their positions completely afresh. A good deal would depend on the Six Counties in such a case.

Canon Leslie has no great love for, or trust in, British statesmen. Does that not give him a hint as to the true solution of the problems of the minority?—Yours, etc.,

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS.

A JUMBLE SALE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—May I appeal for articles for the Jumble Sale that will (D.V.) be held in St. Barnabas's Schools on Saturday, the 22nd November? We are very grateful to the kind friends who responded to a similar appeal last year, and we trust there will be a like response this year. The parish in which I am working—St. Thomas's Parish—is one of those in which there is a considerable amount of poverty and distress. Our annual Jumble Sale is a means of assistance that is greatly appreciated. The proceeds of the sale will be used to provide new articles of clothing, and to relieve cases of distress in the parish.

Articles for the sale may be sent to St. Barnabas's Schools, Upper Sheriff street, Dublin, or, if a post-card be sent to me at 59 Waterloo road, Dublin, not later than Wednesday, the 19th November, arrangements can be made to collect the articles.—Yours, etc.,

J. Purser Shortt, Rector of St. Thomas's and St. Barnabas's Churches.

Dublin, November 13th, 1930.

THE ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY.

AN AMENDMENT TO THE BY-LAWS.

At a stated general meeting of the members of the Royal Dublin Society, held yesterday afternoon at Ballsbridge, Professor Joly, President, in the chair, Mr. W. H. Brayden, O.B.E., moved an amendment to the by-laws, which require that three Standing Committees through which the Society principally operates must nominate candidates against themselves and so force an annual contest. The result, he said, was more or less of an accident, in which men whose service to the Society was really invaluable might be excluded from rendering that service.

The aim of the alteration which he proposed was to avoid, or limit, such a possibility in future. There would still always be a contest, even though no member, or members, come forward with other candidates, but the Committee, instead of having to nominate seven, would have to nominate only one. The rights of members to nominate, for any office from the highest to the lowest, any candidates they please who were willing to act were, and must, be entirely unaffected.

FORM OF VOTING PAPER.

Professor Hacket, seconding, said that the form of the voting paper had been at fault. The amendment proposed would, if passed, mean that in future the voting paper would state in what way a new candidate could promote the objects of the Society. The Committees were the growing ends of the Society and should be active and energetic, and their members must have the experience and knowledge which would enable them to promote the objects of the Society. Workers were wanted in all sections of the Society.

Mr. R. J. Doyle, K.C., supporting, congratulated the Society on its present successful position, which, he said, in a great degree was due to Mr. Bohane, their director. (Hear, hear.) He suggested that they should lift the limit of 9,000 members and fix it at 10,000.

Mr. George Shannon also supported the motion, and congratulated Mr. Bohane on the excellent work he had accomplished.

The President declared the motion carried.

A well-dressed man, wearing a monocle, yesterday snatched pearls valued at more than £1,100 from the manager of the jeweller's shop of Mr. R. J. Starling in Great Portland street, London, and escaped in a motor car.

IN THE NORTHERN CAPITAL.

The Motor Traffic Bill : Question of Reciprocity with the Free State : Government Expenditure Criticised : The Problem of Sunday Drinking : Ulster Apples for France.

From Our Special Representative.
BELFAST, Thursday.

The principal theme of the discussion in the Northern Senate yesterday regarding the Motor Traffic Bill was the question of reciprocity with the Free State. It was pointed out that while motorists from England and Scotland could come to Ulster freely with their cars, and travel about the province without taking out a new licence, brother Irishmen from the south of the border could not do so—a rather absurd situation. The Government leaders recognised the anomalous state of affairs, and expressed the opinion that in the course of time reciprocal arrangements would be made with Dublin.

Lord Charlemont, leader of the Senate, in replying to criticisms, said that the Free State had not got any reciprocal arrangement with Great Britain relative to motor vehicles, and he did not think, therefore, that the time had yet come for such an agreement between Northern and Southern Ireland. He expressed the hope, however, that eventually there would be reciprocity between the two States in this matter.

There may be obstacles in the way of establishing friendly relations, but it seems strange that in a question directly affecting all motorists within the borders of Ireland, the Northern Government should have to wait until England makes a move.

A UNIONIST CRITIC.

The expenditure of the Northern Government in managing the affairs of the Six Counties was criticised at a meeting of Antrim farmers last night by Sir Robert Lynn, an official Unionist member of the Northern Parliament. Sir Robert is one of the few back-benchers who freely speak their minds, and he is not very flattering in his comments. He said last night that he had been fiercely attacked in official quarters because he had told the people of North Antrim that the affairs of Northern Ireland during the last nine years had been managed in a most extravagant manner.

One of the strongest arguments used on behalf of extravagance, declared Sir Robert in conclusion, was that it kept the money at home, but it was surprising if they could spend unlimited money on official salaries, yet were limited as to the amount they could spend to help agriculture.

DEMAND FOR ECONOMY.

The campaign against high expenditure in high places is spreading throughout the province, the prevailing opinion being that the cost of government is more in accordance with a wealthy country of great resources than a small territory largely dependent on Great Britain for its social and other services.

The Ballymena Chamber of Commerce has joined in the chorus of protest against the increasing expenditure in the imperial province. At its meeting this week, with Mr. George Young, M.P., in the chair, a resolution was unanimously passed calling upon the Government, in view of "the serious financial position of the province," to give a lead in economy by a rigorous cutting down of all official salaries and by a reduction in the number of officials in many of the Government departments.

It is added, somewhat significantly, that unless action is taken along the lines indicated, the various Chambers of Commerce in the North will be asked to arrange public meetings to press for a general parliamentary economy campaign for the purpose of reducing expenditure to a basis more in consonance with the revenue, size and requirements of the province.

It has been said that even a straw shows how the wind is blowing, but the gathering storm in favour of an Administration more modest in its financial commitments seems likely to cause a good deal of confusion in the political garden. At any rate, there are lively times in store.

SUNDAY DRINKING.

The problem of Sunday drinking in the Six Counties was considered this week at a meeting of the Belfast and Ulster Licensed Vintners' Association, and the members discussed "the anomalous position created by the 1923 Act, which purported to be a Sunday closing measure." It was pointed out that the Act had burdened the retail licensed trade with the buying out of a large section of the retailers on the understanding that their business would be transferred to the purchasers, but the measure had not succeeded in any of its aims except in the closing of the public-houses on Sunday.

Drinking, it was further asserted, had not decreased; the public had lost all respect for the Act of 1923, and had devised many ways of evading it. The majority of the licensed clubs throughout the province had really taken the place of the public-houses, and were mere gathering places for thirsty souls who wanted a drink when the legitimate public-houses were closed, many of the clubs being used for no other purpose. The Association expressed grave dissatisfaction with such a state of affairs.

A PLEASANT VISION.

The Northern Prime Minister was in hopeful mood when he addressed a meeting of ex-Service men in Belfast on Armistice night. He told them that they were undoubtedly passing through a period of depression that would break the heart of anyone but an Ulsterman, but he was not at all depressed about the future. Even as things were at present, he said, Ulster had done not so badly, according to the export and import figures. She had held her own, but what they wanted was to have the shipyards and the factories going full steam ahead as in the days before the War.

There is another set of figures, however, which shows a different and more darkened picture of Ulster as it affects the working classes. The Premier did not refer to the ever-increasing numbers of the unemployed as registered at the labour exchanges, or to the growing army of workless who do not even get the "dole." There are over seventy-one thousand insured men and women now going about idle, and the record of factories and commercial concerns which have been closed has broken the heart of many an Ulsterman.

Nevertheless, the spirit of optimism is welcomed, and everyone will hope that Lord Craigavon is right in his statement that "we have not reached perfection, but we are on the fair road to having the best part of the British Empire centred in Ulster." Such a pleasant vision calls for strong faith under existing circumstances, but, perhaps, the dawning of prosperity is not too far away.

EXPORT OF APPLES.

The shipment of a consignment of Ulster apples to France recently has created a good deal of interest among fruit-growers in Ulster, and it is hoped that this is but the beginning of a prosperous trade with the Continent. The apples are to be used in the manufacture of cider, for which the Ulster "Bramley Thirds" are said to be eminently suitable.

It is understood that the demand for the Irish variety has been caused by the partial failure of the French cider apple crop and a similar scarcity in England, but the excellent qualities of the Ulster product should make a favourable impression on purchasers abroad. A further cargo of about 260 tons of the "Bramley Thirds" is to be shipped to Cherbourg within the next fortnight, and there may be other consignments later on.

Not so cheering is the news that a vessel with a cargo of 1,500 tons of Russian oats arrived at Belfast on Armistice Day, and that further consignments are expected before very long.

A MOON-DIAL.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT AT DUBLIN MEETING.

A moon-dial discovered by Professor Bayley Butler in a Dublin curiosity shop was one of the exhibits at last night's meeting of the Dublin Naturalists' Field Club, held at the Academy House, Dawson street, Dublin. This particular specimen of a somewhat rare article was made by Michael Lyons in October, 1844, but there is nothing to show whether or not it was made in Dublin. It can also be used as a sundial

It is not exactly a novelty, as moon-dials were described in a volume by Sebastian Münster in 1531.

Professor Bayley Butler gave an instructive description of the exhibit. He also showed a block of Irish oak taken from Westminster Hall. This had been perforated to a depth of one inch by boring beetles, and an apparatus for determining the depth to which these beetles penetrate into structural timbers was shown in operation.

Mr. Thomas Grey displayed specimens of flies used in salmon and trout fishing in lakes and rivers, while Mr. J. R. Harris provided an example of fly-tying.

Mr. M. G. Gorman, who presided, exhibited some species of Bromus grasses, collected in the neighbourhood of Dublin, which he described in detail.

Stuffed specimens of birds, which come to Ireland only in winter, were shown by Mr. C. B. Moffat. These included the siskin, a bird which was mentioned in the course of a recent debate in the Dail. This bird resembles the green linnet, and has a black head.

ARAN ISLANDS COLLECTIONS.

Live specimens of the rose beetle and its larva, collected in the Aran Islands, and of the common ground beetle, with its eggs and larvae, were shown by Mr. C. W. Allen, who had to answer many questions.

An interesting collection of Irish plant galls was shown by Miss Malone, Hon. Secretary Dublin Naturalists' Field Club.

Miss M. Buchanan showed some liverworts, including several species new to County Dublin, and one new to Ireland.

An exhibit of County Dublin rocks, in relation to their suitability for road metal, was made by Mr. A. Farrington, Secretary, Royal Irish Academy.

Miss R. Patten, M.Sc., Trinity Hall, Dublin; Miss D. Doyle, Lindsay road, Glasnevin, and Mr. F. D. Morrell, Kimmage road, Terenure, were elected members of the club.

MARINERS' CHURCH, KINGSTOWN.

A Sale of Work in connection with the Mariners' Church, Kingstown, will be held in the Parish Hall to-day and to-morrow. The stalls will display all kinds of useful and attractive articles, suitable for Christmas presents. Fruit and country produce will also be on sale. Half-hour concerts, midget golf and other entertainments will be provided. The sale opens each day at 3 o'clock.

LISTEN IN TO-NIGHT!

AFTER YOUR DAY'S WORK you may go home and "listen-in." It is soothing after the day's worry. Perhaps the programme does not please you; and you turn the condenser and hear nice lively music. Soon you feel serene and happy, and say to yourself: "Isn't it wonderful?" But it is not more wonderful than the benefits to be had from the various schemes of Life and Endowment Assurance.

ON THE WIRELESS you hear a variety of programmes, and switch on to the station whose programme pleases you most. In the same way you may choose from all the things Life Assurance has to offer only those you need most for happiness and real success.

TO-NIGHT, FROM 9.30 TO 10.30, the "City of Dublin"—the pioneer Irish Life Office—creates a new record in the Insurance world by providing the first Broadcast programme provided by an Insurance Company in the Western Hemisphere. Listen in to 2RN (Dublin and Cork) for a novel and most attractive programme. By doing so you may gain a useful gift.

This Week's Special Recipes

Last week I alluded to the many modern devices which have simplified the work of the housewife and made her task much lighter than it was a generation or two ago. This week a friend in England directs my attention to some of the very latest labour-saving devices which have been put on the market.

One of these new ideas is ready-made stuffing, which is very inexpensive. It can be obtained in two kinds—sage and onions for duck or pork, and the usual mixture of parsley, thyme and bread-crumbs for turkey, veal or fish. This stuffing requires only the addition of water, and can be used in the ordinary way, or made into little balls and fried. By the way, apple sauce also can now be bought in tins.

Another innovation is icing sugar in various colours and flavourings—chocolate, orange, lemon, violet, etc.—which can be spread on cakes or used as a filling merely by the addition of a little water. Of course, the majority of women will still prefer the home-made article, but there is no doubt that the shops nowadays offer innumerable facilities to the housewife in a hurry.

A Christmas Pudding Recipe.

Here is one way of making a Christmas pudding:—Mix half a pound of shredded candied peel, half a pound of citron and half a pound of currants, together with three tablespoonfuls of flour.

Next mix quarter of a pound of chopped suet and quarter of a pound of breadcrumbs, half a grated nutmeg, the fruit and rind of half an orange.

Beat an egg; add a tablespoonful of sugar and the same quantity of grape juice.

Put all these ingredients, well mixed, into a basin. Tie down and boil for several hours. Re-boil when wanted.

Make Mincemeat Now.

Mincemeat made now will be well blended by Christmas. Try this recipe for a fairly large quantity:—Raisins, two pounds; sultanas, one pound; currants, three pounds; beef suet, four pounds; Demerara sugar, three pounds; mixed candied peel, one pound; nutmeg, one small; peeled and cored apples, one pound; the rind of two lemons and the juice of one, one teaspoonful of salt, one pint of good brandy.

Chestnuts.

Chestnuts are a much more important article of diet in the southern parts of the Continent than with us. They are served not only as a vegetable or roasted, but are ground and made up into bread. They may be served as soup, as puree or garnish with fish, as a vegetable, as a salad with lettuce, as "fool" in ices, or as a savoury with mushrooms, tomatoes or bacon.

Smoked Fish on Toast.

Pour some boiling water over a Finnan haddock. Leave it for five or ten minutes, till quite tender, then pick off all the meat and mince it up well. Then put into a small pan, along with some butter and a good shake of pepper. When it is well heated up, have some pieces of hot buttered toast ready, and spread it over these.

Another way for kippered herring, kippered salmon, or smoked sardines is to soften the fish with hot water, as in the last recipe (in the case of kippered salmon, cut it into thin slices first). Then pound up or mince finely, and mix with butter and pepper or cayenne. Spread on fingers of dry toast. Make very hot, and serve.

White Soup.

Boil one quart of white stock, add half a pint of milk, to which two ounces of rice flour have been mixed, and stir over a fire until boiling. Mix the yolks of two eggs with quarter of a pint of unsweetned tinned milk, and half an ounce of butter, and add to the soup.

Stir over the fire until thick, without boiling, and serve with small squares of toast or fried bread.

A Mixed Salad.

It is rather a temptation during the autumn and winter to neglect the salads on which we relied so much in warmer days. Green salad has a nutritive value that should not be overlooked, and it is not difficult to make it attractive. Here is a recipe which a friend whom I visited recently in Belgium gave me: it combines cooked and uncooked foods:—

Boil a cauliflower whole, and leave it to cool. Cover with thick mayonnaise, and decorate with shrimps, sticking them into the cauliflower, and scattering them round the dish, with slices of tomato and lettuce leaves.

My friend makes her mayonnaise by turning the yolk of an egg on a soup plate, with a wooden spoon or fork, and [illegible] ing oil, a drop at a time. On the care with which this is done, she explained, the thickening depends; it should thicken almost at once. She adds a little vinegar, in the proportion of about half a teaspoonful to each egg.

Bananas Conde.

Peel some ripe bananas, cut in two and cook gently in a syrup to which add some drops of vanilla essence.

Take a round dish, and prepare on it a bordure of vanilla rice, garnish with comfitted fruits cut in quarters and perfumed with Kirsch.

Then put on this dish the cooked bananas, pour over some apricot syrup, to which add some Kirsch and serve.

Recipe of M. Campeau, former head chef of the Hotel Cecil.

Helpful Hints.

A little sugar added to all soups greatly improves the flavour.

* * * * *

When making coffee always add a pinch of salt. This brings out the aromatic flavour.

* * * * *

If a teaspoonful of sugar is added to the water when boiling discoloured cauliflowers they will become beautifully white.

* * * * *

One of the secrets of making good marmalade is to boil the fruit and water to about half the quantity before adding the sugar. It will always "jell" if this is done.

* * * * *

Chops and steaks if laid in vinegar for half an hour before cooking will be quite tender; put either in a soup plate or dish, and well soak in vinegar; drain and dry with flour.

* * * * *

When boiling cabbages, cauliflowers and the like, drop one or two small pieces of bread into the water. These help to reduce the disagreeable odour that arises while cooking food of this nature.

MANUFACTURE OF CANDLES.

QUESTION OF DISPOSAL OF A PATENT.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

The hearing of an action by the Automatic Candle and General Trust, Limited, against Elizabeth A. Kerr and John L. Kerr was resumed. The plaintiffs, who conduct the business of candlemakers in Gloucester street, Dublin, sought an order to have it declared that an agreement with them by the defendants, who address was stated to be Apsley House, Charleston road, Rathmines, Co. Dublin, was still in force. An injunction to restrain the defendants from disposing of a patent for the making of candles, which the plaintiffs alleged they had purchased from the defendants, was another portion of the claim which the plaintiffs made. The conditions upon which the purchase was completed were set forth at great length in the statement of claim. Amongst other things, the company under the contract was to acquire a patent from the defendants for the manufacture of candles and any improvements upon that invention. The capital of the company was stated to be £21,000, and it was pleaded by the defendants that the agreement had been rescinded by notice in 1926. The first directors of the company were the defendants, with Mr. John C. Lougardge, and they contended that the company had no claim to the patent.

EXPERIMENTS WITH MACHINE.

Mr. W. M. Jellett, K.C., who, with Mr. R. St. J. Chadwick, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Mr. G. N. Potterton), appeared for the plaintiffs, stated that another branch of this action had already been heard and decided. The object of the present proceedings was to test whether the contract between the parties had been rescinded or was still in existence. The patent which the company acquired was for the manufacture of candles, and to do all sorts of wonderful things. There had been experiments with the machine, upon which a good deal of money had been expended, but the position which the defendants now occupied was peculiar, the operations of the company having been carried out under their direction and management as its directors under the Articles of Association.

Mr. Dickie, K.C., and Mr. Art O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. James O'Connor and Co.) appeared for the defendants.

"FLABBERGASTED."

Mr. Jellett referred to a number of transactions by the company, at a meeting of which in August, 1927, a demonstration of the candle-making machine, he said, was given by Mr. Kerr, who subsequently reported to the directors and the shareholders that it was a success, in being capable of turning out candles from 70 to 100 times as fast as by the Moulding process. The process was undergoing experiments with a view to bringing it to perfection, and when it was exhibited to people in England it was reported that they were "flabbergasted" by the results achieved—"More of the arts of the spider and the fly business," remarked counsel.

"I LOVE THE SHAREHOLDERS."

Counsel proceeded to point out that under the Articles of Association the defendants had complete control of anything in the business. The company, outside the defendants, had no foundation or existence at all, and it subsequently transpired that the premises in Gloucester street had been in possession of the Sheriff, from whom it had been retrieved by the defendants. At another meeting of the company, said counsel, there was a bombardment of questions, and Mrs. Kerr was represented as saying, "I love the shareholders," when she was asked her attitude in regard to them. According to the record of the minutes, everything, he asserted, that was done by Mr. Kerr and Mrs. Kerr at the meetings was nothing but moonshine and had no substance in it at all, while at the same time Mr. Kerr was responsible for an expenditure of £3,000 upon the development of the patent which it was now stated was not the property of the company, which, in those circumstances, would be nothing but a mere name. It had, however, gone into liquidation, and they wanted now to test whose was the patent or machine.

The further hearing of the case was adjourned until to-day.

Mr. John Masefield, the Poet Laureate, and Sir William Watson have been elected corresponding members of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.—(Reuter.)

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

IN FORCE IN THE FREE STATE.

FUGITIVE OFFENDERS ACT.

JUDGES' IMPORTANT DECISION.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON, MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Reserved judgment was delivered in the case of the State (Kennedy) against Edward J. Little, Justice of the Metropolitan District Court, which had come before the Court on an application of M. Kennedy, against whom proceedings under the Fugutive Offenders Act, 1881, are pending in the Dublin District Court, at the instance of the Canadian Government, to make absolute a conditional order of prohibition made by Mr. Justice O'Byrne on the 18th of last August, prohibiting Mr. Little, the District Justice, before whom the case is pending, from further proceeding with it. The main ground on which the application was made was that the Fugitive Offenders Act is not a law in force in Saorstat Eireann, and that there is no power in any judicial or executive authority in this country to send back to any of the countries which come within the purview of the Act of 1881 a person residing in the Saorstat who is alleged by the other country to be a fugitive offender.

THE TREATY PROVISIONS.

Mr. Justice Johnston, in his judgment, said that it was sufficiently plain that this case raised a question of considerable public importance, especially in the light of the provisions of the Treaty and the Constitution. It had been argued on behalf of Kennedy that the Fugitive Offenders Act was not a law which was kept in force by Article 73 of the Constitution in the area of the Irish Free State. The only limitations upon the operations of Article 73 were that the particular law shall be in force in the Saorstat at the material date, and that it shall not be inconsistent with the Constitution. The Irish Legislature itself apparently regarded this clause as most comprehensive in its nature, for one of the recitals in the Irish Adaptation of Enactments Act, 1922, used these words: "And whereas all Acts passed by the British Parliament which were in force on the 6th day of December, 1922 (being the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution aforesaid), in the area now comprised in Saorstat Eireann, will, by virtue of the said Article 73, have the force of law in Saorstat Eireann." He thought, therefore, that they should be very slow to do anything that would have the effect of depriving the Saorstat of the vast body of useful statutory law which regulated hundreds and thousands of necessary matters in the body politic at the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution.

"DOMESTIC" LEGISLATION.

It was reasonably plain from the Adaptation Act that a Statute of the United Kingdom which was in force in Ireland in 1922 was not to be rejected merely because of some difficulty of terminology, of procedure, or of change of circumstances. There must be something in the Act which rendered it unworkable in principle by reason of its inconsistency with the Constitution before it could be regarded as not coming within the scope of the Article.

It had been argued on behalf of the prosecutor that only "municipal" or "domestic" legislation came within the operation of Article 73. The principle of the Fugitive Offenders Act—or rather of part one of that Act—was to be found in the first paragraph of the second section. This section made it sufficiently clear that, so far as the United Kingdom was concerned, the applicability of the Act became absolute on its passing. Part one of the Act of 1881 at the moment of its enactment became immediately applicable to the United Kingdom (including, it was important to observe, the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man) on the one hand and the other possessions of the Crown on the other; and he had heard nothing that convinced him that the splitting up of the legislative and existing functions in the United Kingdom that was brought about by the Treaty, the Constitution, and the confirming Acts had made any difference in regard to the applicability of this legislation.

As regards the argument that the Fugitive Offenders Act must be regarded as inconsistent with the Constitution, Mr. Justice Johnston said that if any such inconsistency existed it would, he thought, necessarily follow that the Oireachtas could never pass such legislation without a very drastic amendment of the Constitution, an operation which, of course, could not, and should not, be lightly undertaken. It appeared to be that in truth the terms of Article 12 were in themselves sufficiently extensive to dispose of this part of the prosecutor's argument.

THE WARRANT.

The next point made on behalf of the prosecutor was that the warrant upon which he was apprehended failed to show jurisdiction. The warrant was said to be bad on its face, as it did not show that the person charged was a fugitive and that he was charged with an offence to which the Act of 1881 applied. His lordship thought that the warrant did show, with sufficient particularity for the purpose of a mere authority to apprehend, that Kennedy was a fugitive offender. It set out the offence, the place where it was committed, and the place of residence of the accused in the Saorstat. The warrant was a simple warrant to apprehend, and its endorsement by a judge was the determining authorisation to apprehend the fugitive and bring him before a magistrate. There was nothing in the procedure provided for in Section 5 of the Act which suggested that the warrant should set out the fact that the offence mentioned therein was one to which part one of the Act applied.

THE LAST POINT.

The last point in the case—namely, that the President of the High Court of Justice is not a "judge of a Superior Court in such part" within the meaning of the Act for the purpose of the endorsement of a warrant—was, in his opinion, scarcely arguable. The expression "Superior Court" was defined by the Act as meaning in Ireland "His Majesty's Court of Appeal and His Majesty's High Court of Justice at Dublin," and Section 17 of the Courts of Justice Act, 1924, transferred to the present High Court of Justice all the jurisdiction which was vested at the date of the Act of 1924 in "the existing High Court of the Supreme Court of Judicature in Ireland or any division or judge thereof." His lordship was of opinion, therefore, that the conditional order for a writ of prohibition must be discharged.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that he had read the judgment of his colleague, and agreed with the conclusions at which he had arrived. He could not, he said, see any justification in reading Article 73 as if it were limited to "municipal" or "domestic" legislation, and if it were not so limited it could only mean laws in force within the Free State at the date of the coming into operation of the Constitution. He agreed with his colleague on the sufficiency of the warrant and of the jurisdiction, and that the conditional order should be discharged.

GOOD LAW.

Mr. Justice O'Byrne, concurring, said that he accepted as good law the contention of Mr. Lavery, that any statute of the British Parliament that was in force in this country on 6th December, 1922, should be considered as being continued by Article 73, unless it was inconsistent with the Constitution. The Fugitive Offenders Act was in force when the Constitution came into operation. Mr. Gavan Duffy contended that it was inconsistent with the Constitution, but he admitted the advisability of the principle underlying the Act. After examination of the Constitution his lordship saw no reason for limiting in the way that had been suggested the effect of Article 73. That article should be so construed as to give it its fullest possible effect, and bring within its operation all laws, whatever their effect, and wherever they were intended to operate, if they were in force on 6th December, 1922, and were not inconsistent with the Constitution; and he held that the arguments put forward against the invalidity of the Fugitive Offenders Act failed. In his opinion all the grounds put forward on behalf of the prosecutor failed, the cause shown should be allowed, and the conditional order discharged.

A STAY REFUSED.

Mr. Fitzgerald asked for a stay of fourteen days, in order to move in the Supreme Court. The matter, he said, was one of great importance, not only generally, but to his client, as it might involve a matter of transport of five thousand miles.

Mr. Lavery said that he would ask that the conditional order should first be discharged with costs.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that the Court discharged the order with costs.

Mr. Fitzgerald submitted that the judgment of the Court must receive some attention before an appeal was brought. He thought it would be a matter of discourtesy to the Court to bring an appeal without having an opportunity of considering the judgment at length, and he asked for a stay, so as to have an opportunity of doing that.

Mr. Lavery remarked that the remand granted by the District Justice would not expire for another fortnight. Any application now made should be to the District Justice, as the present order refused to prohibit him from proceeding.

Mr. Fitzgerald repeated that he asked for the stay for the reasons he had mentioned. He should not be forced to give notice of appeal improvidently or without considering it. He wished to ensure that no steps would be taken to execute the judgment.

Mr. Lavery—There is no judgment, but to go back to the District Justice.

Mr. Justice Hanna—All we have said is that Mr. Little is entitled to go on with the proceedings. I see no reason for giving a stay.

Mr. Justice Johnston—I do not think a stay is necessary. We are discharging the conditional order, with costs.

Mr. Fitzgerald, K.C.; Mr. Gavan Duffy, K.C.; Mr. J. Maguire and Mr. Sandes appeared for Mr. Kennedy; and Mr. Lavery, K.C.; Mr. Finlay, K.C., and Mr. McGuckin (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Attorney-General.

Mr. Proud, solicitor (Messrs. Little, O hUadhaigh and Prour), held a watching brief on behalf of the Attorney-General for Alberta.

BANDON SOLICITOR'S PENSION.

CORK COUNTY COUNCIL'S APPEAL.

(BEFORE THE CHIEF JUSTICE, MR. JUSTICE FITZGIBBON, AND MR. JUSTICE MURNAGHAN.)

The hearing was resumed of the appeal by the defendants in the case of O'Driscoll v. Cork County Council, from an order of the High Court, dated 25th March last, making absolute a conditional order of mandamus, dated 29th July, 1929, ordering the County Council to determine the amount of the gratuity or compensation to which the plaintiff, Mr. Patrick J. O'Driscoll, is entitled as solicitor to the late Rural District Council of Bandon under Section 44 (3) of the Local Government Act, 1925, and Sections 1 and 3 (1) of the same Act. The appellants sought to have the mandamus order discharged with costs.

Mr. Fitzgerald, K.C., and Mr. Binchy, K.C. (instructed by Messrs. Thomas Exham and Sons), appeared for the appellants; and Mr. G. Gavan Duffy, K.C.; Mr. M. Comyn, K.C., and Mr. Joseph McCarthy (instructed by Mr. John J. Early) for the respondent.

It appeared that Mr. O'Driscoll was appointed solicitor to the Bandon Rural District Council in 1917, and his office was automatically abolished by the Local Government Board Act, 1925. In February, 1927, it was stated, he applied to the County Council for compensation, and received a reply, stating that the matter would be submitted to the County Council in due course. He renewed his application more than once subsequently, and ultimately applied for the writ of mandamus.

ARGUMENTS RESUMED.

Opening the appeal some days ago, Mr. Binchy while admitting that Mr. O'Driscoll was a pensionable officer, stated that he did not avail himself of his statutory rights in time. He also pointed out that such rights were given to county solicitors under the Local Government Act, 1898; and to District Council solicitors under the Local Government Act, 1919.

Mr. Comyn, continuing his arguments for the respondent, submitted that his right to a pension was a general common-law right, and that the remedy for enforcing it, referred to in the appeal, was not an exclusive remedy.

The expression, "existing officer," as defined in the Act of 1898, meant any officer holding office on the last day of March, 1898, and also on the appointed day; and, therefore, this man, he submitted, was an existing officer within the definition in the Act of 1898. He asked the Court to hold that he was duly appointed solicitor on the date specified, and had acted as such ever since. He also asked their lordships to hold that Mr. O'Driscoll's claim to compensation or pension was mandatory after the Act was passed.

With regard to the delay in making application to the County Council, he pointed out that Mr. O'Driscoll had made a number of applications, and in order to give the Council time to consider the matter he had given them two or three months more; and the reply he received after all virtually amounted to a refusal. Counsel cited a number of cases in support of his argument, that the conditional writ of mandamus had been properly made absolute in the High Court under the circumstances.

The further hearing was adjourned until next Monday.

DUBLIN MATRIMONIAL PETITION.

SETTLEMENT REACHED.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

A matrimonial petition came on for hearing, in which Mary Theresa Murphy, formerly of 21 Donore road, South Circular road, Dublin, but at present of 6 Cabra road, Dublin, prayed for a decree of divorce a mensa et thoro against her husband, Thomas Murphy, 21 Donore road, Dublin, an employé of Guinness's Brewery, and a former captain in the National Army, on the grounds of various acts of alleged cruelty from June, 1929, to August, 1930. The parties, it was stated, were married in September, 1922, at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Belfast, and subsequently lived in different parts of the Free State.

ALLEGATIONS DENIED.

The respondent, in his defence, denied the allegations of cruelty, and pleaded that if he had been guilty of assault upon his wife or any acts of cruelty towards her they were only sufficient to protect himself and to restrain the petitioner from assaulting him. He also submitted that the alleged acts of cruelty had been condoned by the petitioner.

Mr. Maguire, K.C., who, with Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Kennedy and McGonagle), appeared for the petitioner, opened the case, and when the petitioner was about to be examined by Mr. Sherry, there was a suggestion made for a settlement of the suit.

Mr. Justice Hanna, in those circumstances, invited counsel for the parties to his chamber, and, after a consultation, it was announced that the case had been settled on the condition that a deed of separation between the parties should be immediately executed, and that a separation allowance from that date be paid by the respondent to the petitioner.

Mr. Wood, K.C., and Mr. J. A. McCarthy (instructed by Messrs. Vincent and Beatty) appeared for the respondent.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

ALLEGED TRICK BY CONJUROR.

MONEY OBTAINED FROM STOCKBROKER.

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

John Liston, described as a conjuror, was charged by Detective Officer Andrew O'Connor with obtaining by means of a trick £7 from Mr. J. J. Davey, a stockbroker, of 2 Westmoreland street, Dublin, in April last.

Mr. Davey deposed that on the morning of 10th April last he received a telephone message purporting to come from Monasterevan, and giving the description of a man who would be seen at a point in D'Olier street at a certain hour. Witness was given a message to deliver to the man. He saw defendant, and witness told him that the position he was seeking with the Avoca Opera Company at Monasterevan had been given to him, and he was to go there at once. The defendant seemed very pleased at the news, but told witness that he had not the money to provide the stock necessary for his act.

TO GIVE HIM A START.

Witness said that he took the defendant to his office, and gave him £4 to give him a start at his work. Next day the defendant returned to his office, and said that he had done very well at Monasterevan, but he still wanted more money for stock. Defendant said, if he got another £3, he would pay back the whole sum at the end of a week. Witness gave him the money, for which he got an I.O.U., and did not see him afterwards.

At the last interview the defendant said that Monasterevan was a blaze of posters in connection with the success of the opera company. "In a few days," said Mr. Davey, "I had to go to Limerick, and I motored through Monasterevan, but failed to see any posters or hear anything about the Avoca Opera Company."

SWEEP TICKETS CHARGE.

In connection with charges against the defendant of selling tickets for the Manchester November Handicap Hospitals Sweep and appropriating several small sums of money, two sisters named Catterly, employed in Shrewsbury road, and Mrs. Bizzelle, a cook at a house in Ailesbury road, deposed to purchasing tickets for the sweep from the defendant in August last. In each case he told them that they would get an official receipt in due course. The receipts did not arrive.

Detective O'Connor said that defendant when charged admitted having got the money for the tickets, and said that he spent it and destroyed the counterfoils. He also admitted having got £7 from Mr. Davey for a company which did not exist.

Defendant was remanded in custody.

THE IMPORTATION OF A MOTOR CAR.

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

George Carroll, Lower Mountpleasant avenue, Rathmines, Dublin, was summoned by David McAsey, an officer of Inland Revenue, for having, as alleged, made a false entry in a declaration concerning the import of a motor van.

Mr. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted, and Mr. Conor Maguire (instructed by Mr. J. B. McCann) appeared for the defendant.

Evidence for the prosecution having been given, Mr. Maguire said that he had no case to meet, as the prosecution had not identified the car.

Mr. Hannan ruled against Mr. Maguire.

Defendant gave evidence, and said that he purchased the car in question by paying a deposit of £54 in cash. Subsequently he paid the remainder of the agreed price of the car and got it to the landing stage at Liverpool, where he handed an official all the documents he had. The car did not come on the same boat as witness to Dublin, but when it arrived later he went to the North Wall, where he handed in the papers belonging to the car and was sent to the Customs office to pay the duty. He was not allowed to take the car away, as it was invoiced at less than its cost. He denied that he used a £40 invoice for a fraudulent purpose.

Defendant was convicted and fined £500, Mr. Hannan observing that the penalty was fixed by Statute, and he had no power to mitigate it.

NON-PAYMENT OF SURCHARGE OF £790.

Francis McNamara, 373 North Circular road, Dublin, was summoned by A. C. Ellis, Loughaquilla, Cowper road, Local Government Auditor, for the recovery of £791 11s. 6d., being the amount surcharged against him by the complainant in his audit of Dublin Corporation accounts for the two years ending in March last.

Mr. A. J. Kavanagh, Corporation official, produced the order imposing the surcharge, and stated that the amount was unpaid. Defendant had been a clerk in the solicitors' department of the Corporation, and was entrusted with advances to stamp documents in the Stamp Office.

An order was made for the payment of the full amount of the surcharge.

Mr. Arthur Bradley appeared for the complainant.

BOOKMAKER FINED A TOTAL OF £875.

For reducing the amounts received in recording bets, William Coffey, bookmaker, 44 Cole's lane, was fined £500 in each of seven cases.

The fines were subsequently reduced to £125 each, making a total of £875.

Defendant pleaded guilty.

Messrs. J. J. Murray and J. Hynes, Special Inquiry Department, gave evidence that the bets in question were laid by the special inquiry staff.

A POLE REMANDED.

Solomon Solk, aged 25, a native of Lodz, Poland, and with an address in Martin street, South Circular road, Dublin, was charged with entering the Irish Free State without permission.

Guard 68A stated that when he called on the defendant he admitted being an alien, and that he had not permission to be in the Free State.

Defendant was remanded in custody for a week.

THE ZENANA MISSION IN INDIA.

IRISH AUXILIARY'S ANNUAL SALE OF WORK.

The annual sale in aid of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission (Irish Auxiliary) was opened in the Gregg Memorial Hall, Dawson street, Dublin, yesterday. This Mission has been working in India for over seventy-five years, and has established five hospitals and a number of primary schools, which are very well attended.

Lady Kennedy, in opening the sale, said that from what she could learn the lot of women in India was very much harder than that of the women of Turkey and Persia. The Zenana Mission had been established in 1852 to bring the Gospel of Jesus Christ to 155 million women and girls in India, and had 400 workers in the field at 50 centres. This work entailed considerable expense, and the object of the sale was to help in raising funds to meet the deficit.

The stallholders were:—Mrs. Ormsby Hamilton, President; Miss Martin and Miss McLoughlin; Mrs. Barbor and helpers; Miss Hill; Mrs. Elvery and Miss Homan; Mrs. R. W. Smith and Mrs. W. Guard, Miss Pim. The sale was organised by Miss Johnson Smyth and Miss Dowman.

NEW LIFEBOAT FOR HOWTH.

ARRIVAL OF THE LADY KYLSANT.

SAFEGUARDING THE IRISH COAST.

The Lady Kylsant—a virtually new motor lifeboat—arrived at Howth yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Presented to the Royal National Lifeboat Institution by the Royal Mail Steamship Company, the Lady Kylsant was sent to Weymouth in 1929, but, the Skerries station having been closed, and the Lady Kylsant replaced by another boat at Weymouth, she has been sent to Howth to complete the Irish coast defence between the Liffey and Dundalk. Of the Watson design, she is 40 feet 6 inches long, 11 feet 8 inches beam, has six water-tight bulkheads, and about 160 air cases. Her fittings include an electric searchlight, a line-throwing gun, and an electric capstan. Her engines, which are of the Institution's own design, are of 50 horse-power, and are designed to run under water. She carries a crew of eight officers and men.

A large company assembled to meet the boat on her arrival. It included Commander J. C. Gaisford St. Lawrence, R.N., D.L., Chairman of the Howth Branch of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, and Mr. B. J. Newcombe, Hon. Secretary, who received the boat.

THE SUPPER.

In the evening the officers and crew and other guests were entertained to supper by Commander Gaisford St. Lawrence at the St. Lawrence Hotel, Howth.

The Rev. Father Flood, P.P., Howth, said that if there was one class of men in the world who really deserved their highest admiration it was the men who went down to the sea in lifeboats to rescue their fellowmen. They read in novels and books of the sea, how cruel were the waves as they wrecked the ships, and the work of men, many of whom were not sailors by profession, going out in lifeboats to rescue their fellowmen, called for the highest form of praise and admiration. (Applause.)

Commander J. M. Upton, R.N.R., Irish District Inspector, Royal National Lifeboat Institution, in describing the voyage of the lifeboat, said that every day was a fine one, and only for the temperature it might have been summer. They left Weymouth at 9 o'clock on the 8th inst., and went into Brixton, a distance of about 54 miles, at a speed of about 6.7 knots an hour. They left Brixton next morning at 6 o'clock, and did 90 miles to Penzance in 15 hours. From Penzance to Padstow they went very quickly—they averaged 7 knots an hour. They left Padstow next morning at 7 o'clock, and ran across to Milford Haven. They then proceeded to Rosslare, and got a little wind, arriving there about 4 o'clock on Wednesday. They left at 6 o'clock on Thursday with a westerly wind, and arrived off the Baily Lighthouse at 3 o'clock that afternoon. It was getting a bit cold, so they came in a little earlier than they had intended, and arrived at Howth before 4 o'clock. The trip all round was a very fine one.

The boat had already been tested very well as regards her sea-worthiness, and he believed that she was as good a boat as they could require. Her engines were excellent, and they would not get in Ireland a better man to look after her engines than Inspector Dawkins. (Hear, hear.) With the material that they had got in Howth they ought to be able to deal with anything that might happen in that area. (Applause.)

VOTE OF THANKS.

Mr. B. J. Newcombe, in proposing a vote of thanks to the Chairman of the Branch (Commander Gaisford St. Lawrence), said that they could not have a better Chairman. He attended every meeting of the Branch, and was always ready to do what he could for the Institution. Mrs. St. Lawrence also took a deep interest in the work, and was President of the Ladies' Guild, by which their local fund was supplemented by about £80 a year. They believed that they always would get a good crew at Howth, and, now that a greater responsibility was placed on them owing to the closing of the Skerries station, he believed that they would be able to deal with any emergency that might arise.

The number of lifeboats on the Irish coast now was twelve motor lifeboats and eleven sailing and pulling lifeboats. Another motor lifeboat would shortly be placed at Clogher Head, Co. Louth, and one at Youghal, Co. Cork. During the last thirty years the Institution had spent on Irish lifeboat stations, including lifeboats, boat-houses, slip-ways, machinery, etc., a sum of approximately £200,000. Under the heading of "upkeep and maintenance," the average expenditure per annum was about £8,500. The total amount collected annually in Ireland was about £6,100. They were much indebted to the Governor-General of the Irish Free State (Mr. James McNeill) for his appeal to the Irish people to make the difference up. In Howth they had not done badly. They collected over £100 per annum. Now their responsibility would be greater, and it was up to all who were interested to put their shoulders to the wheel, so that they might raise a little more money.

Mr. Angus, coxswain, seconded the resolution, and it was passed with acclamation.

Commander Gaisford St. Lawrence briefly replied.

Mr. George Eastman, the Rochester (New York) millionaire camera manufacturer and philanthropist, has given 25,000,000 francs (£200,000) for the establishment of a dental and throat clinic for school children in Paris similar to that in London.—(Reuter.)

THE LORANG TRIAL

TO BEGIN NEXT TUESDAY.

Mr. Eustace Fulton, for the prosecution, made an application to Mr. Justice Swift at the Old Bailey, London, yesterday to fix the trial of Francis Lorang (49), director of the Blue Bird Companies, who has been committed for trial for applying to his own use, it is alleged, certain properties of the Blue Bird Companies.

Mr. Fulton said that the case had been adjourned from the last sessions in consequence of the illness of a witness. He was informed that as from Tuesday the witness would be in a condition to give evidence within ten days. As the prosecution would likely lose some days, he asked that the trial might be fixed early next week.

Mr. Justice Swift fixed the trial for Tuesday, saying that it must go on once it had started.

"If anybody wants to stop it going on," he added, "they must stop it from starting."

THE WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

ANNUAL WHITE RIBBON SALE IN DUBLIN.

Presiding at the opening of the annual White Ribbon Sale of the Women's Christian Temperance Union (Irish Free State), at 42 Dawson street, Dublin, yesterday, Mr. C. E. Jacob said that he took a warm interest in the work of temperance and total abstinence, believing, as he did, that it was the best thing for everyone. Young people of the present day should have the dangers of alcohol brought before them. Women in the home had a great influence, and would be able to show the young people that their brains and bodies were better without alcohol. He was gratified to note the progress which total abstinence had made, and would support every cause in favour of the movement.

Mrs. Lee Cole, in the absence through illness of Lady de Courcy Wheeler, declared the sale open. She said that they had been doing a good deal of work in addressing women and girls. They were also opposed to gambling, and she wished they would take a firmer stand in the matter.

DR. LANG AND THE CONFERENCE OF 1930.

OPEN DOOR TO A DEFINITE ROAD.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, addressing the Lower House of the Convocation of Canterbury in Church House, Westminster, yesterday, said that it was true that in themselves the results of the Lambeth Conference had no formal or binding authority on the Churches whose bishops attended it, yet they could claim a most real moral and spiritual authority, and at the very least a great weight and importance.

In his judgment at least, perhaps the most important thing about the Conference was the realisation, more fully and clearer than ever before, of the place in Christendom of the Anglican Churches throughout the world.

A MEMORABLE CONFERENCE.

"The Lambeth Conference of 1930 may be as memorable to the Anglican community as the Imperial Conference of 1926 is memorable in the history of the British realm and Empire," said Dr. Lang, who also referred in a like manner to the Round Table Conference on India, and continued: "Similarly the Lambeth Conference of 1930 recognised that the scattered ministries and isolated missions overseas had become a great commonwealth of churches."

English mainly, they had already ceased to be, and they no longer professed to reproduce the Church of England overseas. They would identify themselves inevitably more and more with the nations and people whom they served.

Here, also, they had India before their minds. During this very year, with splendid courage and faith in the future, and self-sacrifice, the Church in India had set itself free from the privileges, as well as the restraints, of establishment, in order that it might be free.

THE COUNCIL OF BISHOPS.

The one effective link of the future must be the Council of the Bishops, and the Lambeth Conference of 1930 proved emphatically that that link was real and strong. He had received testimony from bishops from every part of the world that to them the real and outstanding value of the Conference was the proof of the reality, fervour, and strength of the fellowship that united these bishops of the Churches together.

Turning to the subject of unity of the Church of Christ, Dr. Lang said that there was no foundation for the impression that the Conference of 1930 in some way went back from that of 1920.

"The door which was opened in 1920 had not been closed in 1930, but it is now a door that leads to a definite road following a definite ideal. What causes trouble and disappointment to many of us is to realise that most of our Free Church friends have never really entered that door at all.

"It is not true to say that of their leaders, I am thankful to say, and my experience of constant conversations with them still gives me hope, that if our minds are really set towards the same ideal, many of our difficulties and misunderstandings might be removed."

EASTERN ORTHODOX CHURCHES.

Dr. Lang referred to the prolonged intercourse with representatives of the Eastern Orthodox Churches, and said that he had already taken steps to follow up those most interesting and hopeful conversations by appointing, in conjunction with the ecumenical patriarch, a doctrinal commission to investigate the teaching of the Anglican and the Orthodox Churches, and to endeavour to interpret them each to the other.

"If the hopes we have are realised, then the community of the Anglican Churches will be in communion with similar communities of Orthodox Churches, with their undoubted place in Catholic Christendom, and their heritage of long and often sorely tried loyalty to the Catholic Church.

"There is only one cloud. There is no place at present for the largest and greatest Christian Communion, the Church of Rome."

The Archbishop said that the Conference reaffirmed their previous resolution that there could be no fulfilment of the Divine purpose in a scheme of reunion which did not ultimately include the great Latin Church of the West.

"May be in the years to come there may arise some movement within that Church to reconsider its claim that unity can only be achieved by absorption into itself and submission to the sovereignty of its Pontiff.

"But we cannot refuse to open one door because another is closed against us."

CONVOCATION OF YORK.

DR. TEMPLE AND RE-UNION.

The Archbishop of York (Dr. William Temple) in his address to the full Synod of the Convocation of York yesterday, said that those chiefly interested in reunion between the Church of England and the Free Churches had drifted into a misunderstanding, because each was assuming the other to intend what was not in fact intended.

The Lambeth Conference, declared Dr. Temple, was concerned with advances towards union both with the Orthodox and the old Catholic Churches on the one hand, and with the non-Episcopal Churches on the other.

"In both directions the task was no longer one of issuing a general call for unity, but had reached the stage of definite negotiations. This accounts for the comparative absence of glow and warmth in the deliverances of the Conference of 1930 as contrasted with that of 1920.

FREE CHURCH DISAPPOINTMENT.

"There has been an acute feeling of disappointment in many Free Church circles in this country," declared Dr. Temple, "so far as I can estimate the grounds for that disappointment, they are mainly these:—

"(1) The report of the Committee on unity lays upon the historic episcopate a degree of emphasis which seems to our critics disproportionate and disturbing.

"(2) Both the report of the Committee and the resolutions of the Conference are thought to register a retrogression from the position taken in 1920.

"(3) No reference is made to the so-called Declaration of the Anglican Bishops who represented the Church of England in the Joint Conference on July 6, 1923.

A MISUNDERSTANDING.

"Two things have, I think, become plain as a result of comments made upon the Lambeth resolutions. One is that those chiefly interested in reunion between ourselves and the Free Churches had drifted into a misunderstanding, because each was assuming the other to intend what in fact was not intended. We must recover full mutual understanding, even at the cost of emphasising differences, before we can fruitfully discuss further the way to reunion.

"The other matter that has become clear is that the point at issue is not the claim of this, that, or another principle of Church order, but the bearing of the whole question of order upon the life of the Churches as a spiritual society.

"The comments made show that our fellow Christians in the Free Churches find it both painful and shocking that any of us should at once believe that God bestows grace upon them through their sacraments and yet maintain that it would not be right for us to participate with them in those sacraments.

"This seems to point to a divergence of view so deeply ingrained as to be quite spontaneous between our respective conceptions of the place of sacraments in the life of the Church, and, therefore, also of individual members of the Church."

THE LAMBETH QUADRILATERAL.

Referring to the Lambeth Quadrilateral put forward by the Bishops of the Anglican Communion as a basis for negotiation with a view to union, Dr. Temple said that on three points—Scripture, Creed, and Sacraments—there was agreement sufficient for negotiation.

The fourth point—the historic episcopate—remained.

"This is the element," declared Dr. Temple, "for which we are in a special sense trustees for the Church of the future as we enter into negotiation with non-Episcopal Churches with a view to union. But the report emphatically recognises that those with whom we seek to be in fuller unity must equally safeguard the special treasures of their own traditions. We are not offering an ultimatum, but a contribution to the general good, and the commendation of the South India scheme is evidence that our ideal is not merely one of absorption."

THE NATION'S PROBLEMS.

Concerning the warm encouragement given by the Conference to the Churches of India, Burma and Ceylon to go forward with the scheme of re-union in South India, he said:—

"The Conference felt that in giving this encouragement it was making a real sacrifice, and potentially committing the Anglican communion to further sacrifices in the cause of union."

Referring to the problems at present besetting the nation—"those themes of universal anxiety and concern"—Dr. Temple called for prayers for those who had the responsibility of government.

"Especially in this province," he said, "we are constantly weighed down by the spectacle of what is involved for our fellow-citizens by industrial and economic depression.

"By the wisdom and the spirit of brotherliness alone could they hope to find a real remedy."

DEATH OF MR. PEADAR WHITE.

The death occurred yesterday in a private hospital in Dublin of Mr. Peadar White, of the Dublin Electricity Department. He was associated with the Nationalist movement for the past thirty-five years, and was one of the founders of the Leinster Literary Society, which was the forerunner of the Celtic Literary Society. When, in 1899, the United Irishman was established by Arthur Griffith and Denis Devereux, one of its chief contributors was Peadar White. He was associated with the late Henry Dixon, M. Quinn, and others in the movement for the extension of rural libraries, which led to the establishment of Cumann na Leabharlann and the founding of numerous Carnegie rural libraries throughout the country. He was enthusiastic for the revival of the Irish language, and was a member of both the McHale and Ard Craobh Branches of the Gaelic League. With the rise of the Irish Volunteer movement he was also identified, and, indeed, for a time served on its Executive.

Mr. White did a great deal of work as honorary secretary of the Rooney Memorial Committee, and, apart from the publication of the two volumes containing the poems and essays of William Rooney, the trustees of the Rooney Memorial Fund had been arranging for some time past at his request, to found Irish scholarships for working boys in the Dublin Municipal Technical Schools.

THE EUCHARISTIC CONGRESS.

Yesterday the Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, received Commendatore Piero Toni at the Archbishop's House. The Italian representative introduced to His Grace Messrs. E. Di Mascio, Secretary, Dublin Fascio; G. Gigante, P. Fusco, and Cervi, who, on behalf of the Italian Colony in Dublin, handed the sum of £50 towards the Organising Committee of the Eucharistic Congress, 1932. Archbishop Byrne expressed his gratitude to the Italian Colony.

HAYSHED FIRE AT STILLORGAN.

For several hours yesterday the Rathmines section of the City Fire Brigade was engaged at an outbreak of fire which occurred in a hayshed in the farmyard of the Grange, Stillorgan. They prevented the flames from spreading to the residence, which is the home of the Rev. Precentor E. H. Lewis-Crosby, M.A., but a considerable amount of hay and the shed were destroyed.

Sir John Lavery passed a good night after undergoing an operation in a London nursing home on Wednesday, and yesterday was reported to be making good progress.

BANK CLERK SHOT.

Mr. Donald Fox, a young bank clerk employed at the Dominion, Colonial and Overseas branch of Barclay's Bank in Gracechurch street, London, was accidentally shot on the bank premises yesterday. He was given immediate medical attention, and was taken to Guy's Hospital, where he was found to be dead. It is understood that the accident occurred after a party of clerks had returned from revolver shooting practice. The shot was heard by people outside the bank. Investigations into the circumstances were made by detectives.

The shot man, who was about twenty years of age, lived at Golden Manor, Hanwell.

The Spanish Elections.

A Cabinet Council has authorised General Berenguer to submit a scheme for the Spanish elections. It is unfortunate, even if, perhaps, unavoidable, that the elections should have been deferred until now; for doctrinaire politicians have had opportunity to confuse the minds of the electorate with a multitude of discordant, and often mutually antagonistic, faiths. When Primo de Rivera fell from power the cry, naturally and desirably, was for the resuscitation of the Cortes. Then the old political parties still preserved some of their influence, and might have been able to bring the country back to an ordered constitutional existence. Such was the original intention of the late Dictator when he assumed office; his régime was to be in the nature of a purge which would free Spain from apathy and corruption. Dis aliter visum. The dictatorship, while it succeeded in the majority of its efforts, failed to capture the public imagination as the Fascists have captured modern Italy. Finally, General Primo de Rivera, after an abortive effort to secure military support for his Government, departed under something of a cloud. General Berenguer succeeded to his office and equally to his difficulties. As soon as he became Prime Minister he promised the people a Cortes at the earliest possible moment. The elections, he said, would be "furiously sincere." Spain waited with joyous anticipation, and she is waiting still.

The causes of General Berenguer's delay in the holding of the elections are both administrative and political. An election, if it is to be "furiously sincere," presupposes an adequate census from which the lists of voters may be prepared. Spain's existing census is seven years old, and, even in its youth, was never comprehensive or precise. The provision of a new census has been entrusted to the Marquis de Guad el Gelu, the Minister for Labour, who seems to have found the task unusually tedious. Here we impinge upon the political aspect of the problem; for the tardiness of the noble Marquis's results may have been dictated by higher circles. General Berenguer has succeeded to a dictatorship—which, in fact, he has preserved—without the titles or avowed status of a dictator. His very raison d'être is to conduct Spain from the extreme of dictatorship to the via media of constitutional government—in short, to achieve the "thus far and no farther" which, Cowper says, "never can and never ought to be the lot of man." We disagree with the poet, but we admit that few duties are more difficult. It is manifest that General Berenguer, alarmed by the republican disorders that hailed the late Dictator's fall, has erred on the side of a caution which, however usual in such cases, as a rule is shown by the event to be incautious.

According to the Madrid Correspondent of The Times, elections held nine months ago would have reflected the true feelings of the nation. The Cortes, thus elected, would have been comparatively free from extremists, and could have evolved, in collusion with the Crown, a form of government that would have been acceptable to everybody. This happy moment has passed, and rumours, whisperings, agitations and tumults have bewildered the people to such an extent that the Cortes no longer irradiate the sky like a new dawn. Now many Spaniards think that they desire a republic—a régime which any thoughtful student of her history must recognise to be most unsuitable to Spain. The elections, which we may suppose to be imminent, will occur, therefore, at a most inauspicious time, as may be realised from the fact that Spain, in spite of nine months' intensive application to politics, has neglected to evolve an agrarian party. Such an omission proves beyond doubt how far political abstractions have captured the mind of the nation. General Berenguer may be wise to-day to hesitate, since already he has hesitated so long, before he submits the decree convening the Cortes to the King. On the other hand, further delay may make matters worse. The situation is delicate in the extreme, and, whatever the result may be, Spain is not likely to return to normal life without many convulsions. Yet to doubt her ultimate return to a calm existence would be absurd; for at heart the Spaniards are among the most conservative peoples on earth.

Tests for Motorists.

The great British Traffic Act will come into full operation on April 1st, 1931; but after the beginning of next month a number of its provisions will have become binding on motorists. On December 1st the clauses relating to the physical fitness of drivers, as well as to careless and dangerous driving, will begin to operate. January will see the abolition of the speed limit, recognised generally as a profitless nuisance, and the institution of a system of compulsory third-party insurance; and by April the laws governing public service vehicles will have been correlated and put into practice. Mr. Herbert Morrison, the Minister for Transport, has high hopes that this measure will prove to be effective. Many of its clauses have met with violent opposition among the motoring public, and it has been attacked as an autocratic infringement of general rights. Yet it is the first elaborate attempt made in Britain to lessen the great and growing toll of the road, and we wish it every success. Certain provisions, doubtless, are autocratic, but many drivers are amenable to nothing save autocratic action. The simplest and least exacting of highway codes, if it received faithful observance from every motorist, would be sufficient to ensure safety on the roads. It is obvious, therefore, to anybody who reads the daily list of accidents that many drivers either are handicapped by physical defects or lack the decency to observe the common code—and it is against such that the British Act is designed. Two provisions are of the utmost significance—that which renders third-party insurance compulsory, and that which demands from the applicant for a driving licence a declaration of his physical fitness. The merits of the former stipulation are immediately evident. In regard to the second, three specific questions must be answered, in any one of which an unsatisfactory reply instantly will damn the applicant's expectations. The first question is; "Do you suffer from epilepsy or sudden attacks of disabling giddiness or faintness?" In the second place the potential driver is asked: "Are you able to read at a distance of twenty-five yards, in good daylight, with glasses, if worn, a motor car number plate containing six letters and figures?" The third question is: "Have you lost either hand or foot, or are you suffering from any defect in movement control or muscular power of either arm or leg?" We may suppose that, if this catechism is answered faithfully, road accidents will be accidents in the true sense rather than exhibitions of incapacity or ineptitude. Presumably, the same measures will become law throughout the Six Counties within a short time. It will be interesting to compare the results achieved in the North by Mr. Morrison's bill with the effect of the Free State's new plans for the control of traffic.

A Curious Protest.

The first six Provosts of Trinity College, Dublin, came from Cambridge, and Mr. R. W. Ditchburn, F.T.C.D., whose letter we print to-day, comes also from that great University. The old men's opinion of Mr. Ditchburn's letter—if we can imagine them, discinct, in some celestial common-room—would be interesting. Trinity College was founded by a British monarch and has been befriended by her successors: Mr. Ditchburn must be familiar with names for which pious thanks are rendered nightly in the College's Grace after meat. These monarchs—benefactores nostri—include His present Majesty, King George V., under whose Charter Mr. Ditchburn holds his office and its emoluments. On Armistice Day a Service of Remembrance for the dead of the Great War was held in the College Chapel. Within a few yards of the Chapel stands a little temple that enshrines the names of some hundreds of College men who fell in that War. They died in the King's uniform, under the King's flag, and the world's peace—the process of "reconciliation and fellowship" which is now at work in all lands—was promoted by their sacrifice. For more than three centuries the British monarch has been the King of Trinity College, and to-day by a solemn Treaty and Constitution, confirmed by a democratic Parliament, he is the King of the Irish Free State. At the close of the College's Memorial Service for men who died in the King's cause and uniform the congregation sang "God Save the King." Mr. Ditchburn protests. He says that this singing was "altogether wrong," and that, if he had foreseen that "God Save the King" would be thrust upon him, the Memorial Service would have been deprived of his support. Why?—and what does this Fellow of Trinity College mean by "our present differences?" Sir James Jeans is trying to explain the universe in terms of mathematics. Perhaps, Mr. Ditchburn may be able, by a similar resort, to make his dislike of "God Save the King" intelligible to simple minds.

Hooverville.

Such names as Prosperity road and Easy street smack of John Bunyan; they suggest the city of Vanity Fair. In fact, they belong to America's newest town. It is rising, as the New York Correspondent of The Times relates, with trans-Atlantic swiftness between the shore of Lake Michigan and one of Chicago's richest residential districts. Some of the city's thousands of unemployed are building it for their own residence, and it is being constructed entirely out of waste material and refuse. The dwellings are built from derelict timber, old bricks and sheets of corrugated iron taken from collapsed houses on vacant lots. To this town of the unemployed its makers have given the fair-sounding name of "Hooverville." At the corner of Prosperity road and Easy street lives "the Mayor of Hooverville," a disabled miner named Mike Donovan, who was chosen by the popular voice. The colony's form of government is described as "communistic." If Mike Donovan—whom we regard confidently as the author of the town, its title and its street names—has not read "The Pilgrim's Progress," he has builded better than he knew; for surely these things are an allegory. The new town of "down and outs" tells, with a truth at once cruel and humorous, the story of a country's defeated hopes and of a statesman's baffled ambition. America's great "prosperity" bubble has burst; her self-complacency has been shattered, and the recent elections portend a political revolution. Hooverville—a monument to these facts—is the last compliment of which Mr. Hoover could have dreamed two years ago.

THE FUTURE OF INDIA.

COMMENTS ON THE SIMON REPORT.

INDIAN GOVERNMENT'S DESPATCH.

In a despatch published yesterday the Government of India express their views on the proposals for constitutional reform, as outlined in the Indian Statutory Commission's report. Their main suggestion is for a vigorous central authority.

The despatch points out that the Indian Government are in full agreement with the view of the Commission that the new Constitution should not be unduly rigid, and that it should allow of natural growth and diversity. They also accept the ideal of the ultimate constitution of India as an all-India federation, including not only British India, but also the Indian States, but recognises that that ideal is not likely to realise itself, save in its own due time.

A vigorous central authority is required that will be responsible for defence against external attack, the maintenance of internal tranquillity; for the finances of India as a whole, and its credit in the markets of the world, and all other matters of common concern, which must be handled by a central Government. The most difficult problem is what form the central authority should take. Whatever the plan adopted, the Government of India are convinced that no scheme can work with success unless it is recognised that Parliament and the Indian Legislature have each their special contribution to make to the welfare of India, which is the joint purpose of both.

Assuming that the economic interests involved are adequately safeguarded, the Government of India support in principle the proposal that Burma should now be separated, but ask the Imperial Government not to come to a decision on the subject until the question has been discussed at the Round Table Conference.

THE CENTRAL EXECUTIVE.

Dealing with the problem of the nature of the Central Executive and its relations with the Legislature the Government of India draw attention to the changes proposed by the Commission in the composition of the Assembly, and observe that there is little ground to anticipate that the proposed substitution of indirect for direct election would produce a Legislature of which it could be predicted that it would work harmoniously with the Executive contemplated by the Commission. They suggest that the proposals of the Commission are hardly likely to produce the strong Central Government which the Commission desire to see. The Government of India would prefer to pursue a somewhat more cautious policy in regard to the Legislature than in the past, and to consider whether it is not possible to contemplate some development of the Commission's proposals for the Executive in its relations, on the one hand, to the Secretary of State, and, on the other, to the Legislature.

Dealing with dyarchy, the despatch says: "We are not insensible to the fact that in existing conditions there must be an inherent difficulty in attaining complete unity within the Government at the centre, except at the cost of serious lack of harmony with the Legislature. But unity should be the ideal, and it does not seem to us a wise course to emphasise the duality by adopting a system of formal dyarchy. Dyarchy offers no possibility of an extension of the sphere of responsibility, except by way of an abrupt transition."

The conclusion reached is that it will seem necessary to look for some solution on the lines of a unitary Government, and it is suggested that such a Government, while containing a definite official element and not formally responsible to the Indian Legislature, would yet include an appreciable popular element consisting of elected members of the Legislature, who might command sufficient support in that body to afford in normal circumstances the promise of reasonable harmony between the Executive and the Legislature.

It is agreed that paramountcy should vest in the Viceroy, and support is given for the proposal for the establishment of a Council of Greater India.

IRISHMEN AND ROAD WORK IN ENGLAND.

QUESTIONS IN PARLIAMENT

Lieut.-Colonel Moore (Conservative, Ayr Burghs), in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Minister of Labour if her attention had been directed to the prosecution of three Irishmen at Middlesex Sessions last month for shopbreaking, and, in view of the statement by the police officer in attendance at the Court, that the men had been brought over from Ireland by the Government for road work in England, whether she would inform the House of the reasons for such Government action.

Miss Bondfield said that no Irishman had been brought over for work on the roads. The allegation contained in the second part of the question was inquired into at once, and it was found to be absolutely without foundation. A statement to that effect was issued to the Press at the time, and it was published in some newspapers.

Mr. Kinley (Labour, Bootle) asked whether the Minister would consider taking action to see that the officials should be dealt with in future.

Miss Bondfield—I am afraid I have enough troubles of my own. (Laughter.)

LONDON LETTER

THE IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.
THURSDAY NIGHT.

The final stage of the Imperial Conference began this morning, when General Hertzog, the Prime Minister of South Africa, attended at Buckingham Palace for a farewell audience with the King. General Hertzog intends to leave London to-morrow on his way to South Africa, having delayed his departure already by a week in the hope that something definite might result from the reports of the committees. The Dominion Prime Ministers, with the other delegates to the Imperial Conference, will go down to Elstree on Saturday to see British talking pictures made—an engagement which is a direct result of the programme of British talking pictures shown to them a few days ago at the New Victoria Theatre.

The Government's Life.

If self-satisfaction affords a criterion, the Labour Government will be in office for a long time to come; for not one of the Ministers will entertain the idea that the Government is in danger from outside influences. This confidence seems to be perfectly honest, and some Ministers profess a firm opinion that they will be in office for another two, and, quite possibly, three, years, while others think that they will see the present Parliament run its full course. It must be borne in mind, however, that, ever since Labour secured office for the second time, the idea has been that the Government will go to the country after the introduction of its 1931 Budget, and this point of view still is held by many members of the House of Commons.

Sir Archibald Sinclair.

At the House of Commons to-day the decision taken at the Liberal Party's meeting last night, that Sir Archibald Sinclair should become the Chief Whip, was discussed with some little interest; for it is known that Sir Archibald has demanded a guarantee that his little party will receive complete support, or otherwise he will not accept the post. It is suggested to-day that Sir Archibald Sinclair is unlikely to become Chief Whip, because there is really no agreement in thought or action among the Liberal members—particularly in regard to the Education Bill and the Trades Disputes Bill, both of which will be considered this session. It was whispered also that the Liberals had come to a definite decision to turn out the Government at the first suitable opportunity; but this idea is received with amusement by both Conservatives and Labour men, among whom the opinion prevails that Mr. Lloyd George has not made up his mind that the time is ripe.

Liberal Unity.

The Liberal Party is in an extremely difficult position at the moment; for, while the temptation to put the Government out of office is great, the party has other issues to be considered, and is not altogether anxious to precipitate an event which may lead to its disappearance for a time. Sir John Simon's outspoken comment on the party's attitude towards Government measures has had a great effect, and it is said that several members, in addition to those already supporting him, have expressed adherence to his point of view. If Sir Archibald Sinclair contrives to secure a promise of definite and continued support, and becomes Chief Whip, the threat to the Government's existence will become more obvious, because on emergency all the Liberal Party is likely to go into the Lobby with its leader. Yet there are comparatively few people at Westminster who believe that Liberal unity will prevail sufficiently long for such a step to be taken.

Important Conferences.

Highly important conferences, affecting something like 1,500,000 workers, were opened in London to-day. Some seventy representatives of the railway trade unions, many of whom had travelled all night, met the general managers of the railway companies at St. Pancras this morning, where they were addressed by Sir Ralph Wedgwood, Chairman of the General Managers' Conference. The proceedings were private, but it is understood from a statement issued this morning that the situation of the railways was reviewed, and it was made clear that, in spite of the economies already in operation, the need for further saving in working expenses was imperative. It is expected that the negotiations following upon the proposed general reduction of wages will be somewhat prolonged. The other Conference, which related to the mining situation, was held at the House of Commons, where Mr. E. Shinwell, the Minister of Mines, presided over a gathering of employers and representatives of the mining industry. The main point of the Conference is to find the best means to effect economies in the working of the mines.

The King's Voice.

During the delivery of the King's Speech in the Royal Gallery yesterday, a mobile recording machine was placed in a small courtyard of the House of Lords, and from it cables were led to six microphones standing around the Throne. In the van a man was standing at a recording instrument on which a wax disc was revolving, and as soon as he heard the King's voice through a loud speaker, he placed the recording needle on the wax. The disc, when completed, was wrapped in blankets, and hurried to the factory at Hayes where a reproduction was made from it in three and a half hours—a "record" as regards time, since hitherto the making of a reproduction from the wax has taken at least six hours. In the evening a copy was sent to Buckingham Palace, where the King had it placed on a gramaphone in order that he might listen to his own speech.

Novel Railway Trains.

A new type of railway train will be put into operation by the London and North-Eastern Railway during the next few days, and its introduction is expected to revolutionise travel by rail in country districts. The new train is described as a twin steam rail coach, and in appearance it is unrecognisable as a steam train, looking more like a carriage on the tube railways. The smoke funnel is concealed in the roof, and the interior is completely different from the usual design. The two coaches are carried on three bodies, and a passage runs right down the centre of them, while the seats are arranged, as in omnibuses, facing the front of the train. The coaches are upholstered finely, and the fares will be cheap. The experiment is a definite attempt to secure the return of traffic in the country districts, and it means the modernising of the branch lines system. The first train has been undergoing exhaustive tests, from which it has emerged triumphantly.

The Reformation of Whitehall.

Mr. George Lansbury, the First Commissioner of Works, has plans for the conversion of Whitehall into a boulevard, and he will introduce a bill in the House of Commons at an early date to secure a setting back of the building line in connection with a scheme for the erection of a new block of Government offices. The preliminary plans of these buildings provide for their extension on the Embankment side to the frontage line of Scotland Yard, thus covering the present enclosed gardens of Montagu House.

HILL FALLS ON SLEEPING CITY.

LYONS STREETS BURIED UNDER LANDSLIDE.

FEARED LOSS OF ONE HUNDRED LIVES.

TWENTY-THREE RESCUERS KILLED IN SECOND FALL.

It is feared that one hundred lives have been lost in a landslide which buried several streets of crowded tenement houses in the city of Lyons during the small hours of yesterday morning. The dead include twenty-three firemen and police, who were engaged in rescue work, when they were buried beneath a second fall of earth.

There had been many warnings of the danger to be expected from the steep hill of St. Jean which overhung the city, and on Wednesday a five-storey hospital was evacuated, as the walls showed signs of collapse. The retaining wall at the base of the hill was wiped out of existence in the first landslide.

The difficulty of rescue work was intensified by the failure of the lighting system. Only a few bodies have been recovered, and it is feared that several days must elapse before all the debris is cleared away and the full extent of the casualties revealed.

HOUSES CARRIED AWAY.

DARKNESS HINDERS RESCUE WORK.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
LYONS, Thursday.

Prosperous and contented Lyons is a city of gloom and desolation to-day. In the early hours of the morning great masses of earth fell from the steepest side of the hill of St. Jean, which dominated the silk city, burying several streets of crowded tenement houses.

The lighting system failed, and many firemen, heroically working in the darkness to extricate the victims, were killed under crashing beams and masonry.

It was announced this evening that only two injured women and eight dead bodies had been recovered from the ruins. Twenty-three firemen and police are known to be buried, and, in view of the number of houses that have collapsed, it is to be feared that the preliminary estimate of a hundred dead may be justified.

HUGE MASS OF DEBRIS.

The victims lie buried in over 20,000 cubic yards of brick and mortar, extending over a width of fifty yards and a depth of eighteen feet. Although over two hundred men are at work, it is estimated that the clearing away of the débris will take at least three or four days, even if no further subsidence occurs.

Carpenters are now engaged in shoring up other buildings believed to be in danger.

Whole houses were carried off or cut clean in two when, at about one o'clock this morning, the earth of the upper part of the hill on which the district is built made five separate slides on its granite bed, breaking down the thirty feet retaining wall designed to hold it back.

FATE OF GALLANT RESCUERS.

The first slip pushed down the hill four large apartment houses on one side of the Rue Tramassac. A little over an hour later, while the rescuers were at work in the ruins, a block of eleven houses on the opposite side of the street tumbled down on top of them, and to the rumble of falling masonry were added the cries of the injured occupants.

Shocking as the occurrence now appears, it seems clear that an occurrence of this nature had been expected by the authorities for some time past. Under the pressure of hundreds of tons of earth set in motion by the recent heavy rainfall, the retaining wall had shown signs of weakness, and cracks had appeared in many houses of the neighbourhood.

PRELIMINARY WARNINGS.

Two months ago a steam roller at work on one of the roads sank into the ground, and yesterday a wing of the five-storey hospital, containing one hundred beds, was evacuated by order owing to the danger.

It is recalled that some years ago M. Deperet, an eminent Lyons geologist, sent a report to the municipality, in which fears were expressed as to the stability of the hill, which formed part of a glacier moraine.

President Doumergue has sent a contribution of ten thousand francs for the families of the victims.

In the Chamber this evening M. Tardieu assured the members, on behalf of the Government, that all measures would be taken to limit the extent of the disaster.

The visit of Coste and Bellonte, the famous airmen, who were to have stayed at Lyons on Saturday, has been postponed.

ESCAPES AT THE LAST MINUTE.

ROPE RESUCES FROM THE FALLING HOUSES.

LYONS, Thursday Night.

At a late hour to-night it was announced that nineteen firemen, three policemen, and a police superintendent, had lost their lives in the landslide this morning.

The authorities still hope that the number of dead will not reach the total of a hundred which is generally feared. One estimate even puts the dead at not exceeding forty.

It will be impossible to say exactly how many have perished until the laborious and dangerous task of clearing away hundreds of tons of débris has been completed.

SURVIVORS' STORIES.

"I was awakened at midnight by a noise like a gas explosion," said one man who escaped when his house crashed. "A few minutes later I heard the motor horns of the fire brigade. I looked out of the window and saw a young man popping his head out of the window opposite. Then I saw the firemen arrive and drive up the street. I went back to bed. So did my opposite number. An hour later there was another landslide. The house opposite collapsed, burying the firemen, several cyclist policemen, and my young friend whom I had seen at the window. I thought it was time to make good my escape, and, with the help of my brother, I managed to get my old mother, aged eighty-eight, out of the house safely. A girl living on the same floor was rescued by a rope from her window."

WOMEN'S EXPERIENCES.

A middle-aged woman, describing her experience, said: "The house shook. I thought it was an earthquake, but nothing happened, and I went to bed again. Half an hour later there was another shock. The two rooms next to mine were reduced to a heap of bricks and mortar. The firemen saved about forty people in our house by a ladder."

"I had just arrived from Macon and gone to bed," another woman said. "Suddenly there was an ominous crack. I was thrown out of bed. I heard a man shout 'Help!' I was crazy. I hurled myself against the door, but it was shut. The firemen rescued me by the window."

The Prime Minister, M. Tardieu, telegraphed to M. Herriot, Mayor of Lyons, the deep sympathy of the Government. He informed M. Herriot that it had been decided to award posthumously a gold medal for bravery to the firemen and policemen who had been killed in the course of rescue work.

PRESS 'PLANE CRASHES.

An aeroplane chartered by two Paris newspapers to fly to the scene fell into the Saone just before reaching its destination. The pilot and the reporter-photographer who occupied the machine reached the shore safely, but the aeroplane sank.

FRANCO-GERMAN RELATIONS.

M. BRIAND DEFENDS HIS POLICY.

VIEWS ON HITLERITE SUCCESSES.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
PARIS, Thursday.

During the debate on the Government's foreign policy in the Chamber to-day M. Briand said that the world was traversing a terrible crisis, and this was not the moment to throw the country into a panic. France must assume the rôle of champion of peace. Those who talked lightly of war should reflect that war would spell a social catastrophe, beside which war itself would be but a slight evil.

"As for Locarno, it brought France's allies to guarantee her frontiers. Is the result not satisfactory?" he exclaimed. "Then tear up the Pact of Locarno. I defy anyone to adopt another policy. It is impossible. What must be done is to persevere in it all desirable foresight."

With regard to the recent German elections, M. Briand said that there was nothing surprising in the fact that in a country of 60,000,000 inhabitants there should be "a reservoir of malcontents" who uttered cries of hatred against France, but there were millions of other electors whose only thought was to improve the lot of their country and who had happily evolved since Locarno.

NO PERMANENT MENACE.

He rejected the idea that there must be a permanent menace of war between France and Germany. It was in the interests of France to mollify the situation in the direction of peace, and people in Germany would understand that peace was also in the interests of the whole German nation.

There was the Young Plan, M. Briand went on. It was said that it would be attacked. At the present time it was not attacked. The Young Plan contained clauses providing for the adjournment of payments, but there had been no question of that yet, and he hoped that there would not be. Admittedly, there were both in France and Germany men who made dangerous speeches and pushed the two nations into hostile sentiment. It was the duty of the leaders of all countries, and particularly of France, to try to establish contacts between nations. That did not prevent the defence of treaties or the organisation of frontiers.

THE GIANT SEA-PLANE.

READY TO RESUME JOURNEY TO-DAY.

Dr. Dornier motored to Calshot from London yesterday afternoon to see that arrangements for the Dornier Do X, the giant German seaplane, to leave to-day were complete. Dr. Dornier, in an interview with a reporter, said that he hoped weather conditions would be sufficiently favourable for the Do X to begin the final stages of her Atlantic flight from Lisbon in about a fortnight's time.

The flying boat was "cleared" yesterday afternoon by the authorities in the same way as a ship leaving port. She received a clean bill of health, and everything is ready for the departure this morning. The start will, of course, depend entirely upon the weather.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN

UNVEILS MEMORIAL TO HIS FATHER.

Sir Austen Chamberlain last night unveiled a memorial portrait of his father, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, at the headquarters of the League of Empire in London.

Sir Austen said that he knew that if his father were aware of the honour done to him he would have appreciated the recognition of his interest in Colonial matters. The fiscal questions in relation to the Empire, in which Joseph Chamberlain was so interested, were just as vital to-day as they were when his father first propounded them.

MARTIAL LAW IN PERU.

FIFTEEN KILLED IN MINERS' RIOTS.

GENERAL STRIKE CAUSES CHAOS.

TRAINLOADS OF BRITISH AND U.S. REFUGEES.

From "The Times" Correspondent.
NEW YORK, Thursday.

The Peruvian Provisional Government proclaimed a state of siege to-day in the departments of Junin and Lima, following a riotous outbreak of 1,500 miners at Mal Paso, in the Cerro de Pasco region, yesterday, in which fifteen persons, including two Americans, were killed.

The Cerro de Pasco Copper Mining Company, which is owned by United States citizens, has withdrawn all its foreign employés from the mines to Lima.

The General Federation of Workmen has declared a general strike in Lima and Callao (the port of Lima) in consequence of a dispute between a British cotton firm (Duncan, Fox and Co.) and its employés, and workers on the Central Railway of Peru, which connects Cerro de Pasco with Lima, have voted to join in the strike.

FEDERATION OUTLAWED.

Because of the Federation's threat to extend the strike unless the dispute with Duncan, Fox and Co. is satisfactorily settled, the Government has outlawed the organisation.

Despatches from Lima attribute the outbreak at Mal Paso partly to anti-foreign agitation and partly to bad feeling against the Cerro de Pasco Company because of its dismissal of some employés last September and its refusal to take them back and raise wages. The immediate occasion of the outbreak, however, was an attempt by about 1,500 miners to demonstrate in connection with the interdicted Miners' Congress at La Oroya, the principal mining centre in the Andes region.

SERIOUS CLASH WITH POLICE.

A small body of police attempted at La Oroya to keep the miners from marching upon Mal Paso. They were unsuccessful, but twenty miners were injured.

When the miners reached Mal Paso they began to loot shops and invaded some private houses. Two Americans—John W. Chapman, an electrician, and E. L. Tripary, a storekeeper—and an Austrian hotel manager, who attempted to drive the rioters away, were shot dead, and twelve of their assailants were killed by the police. About twenty-five other persons were wounded.

TRANSPORT PARALYSED.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
LIMA, PERU, Thursday.

Owing to the general strike the railways are almost at a stand-still, the tramway and omnibus services have been paralysed, and martial law has been declared in the departments of Junin and Lima.

British and American refugees are pouring into the capital. A short train containing three hundred refugees jammed like cattle arrived here this morning from the minefields.

Stories are told of fierce armed encounters, in which, at least, a dozen workmen are reported to have been killed and more than a score seriously wounded. The driver of the refugee train said that rioters had bashed in the head of an American engineer with pieces of rock. Another American is said to have been beheaded by the strikers.

BRITISH PROTEST.

The British Chargé d'Affaires has made strong representations to the Peruvian Government demanding the protection of British lives and property. It is not known, however, whether there are any British casualties.

On the same train as the refugees were a number of agitators who had been arrested and accused of fomenting disorders.

The authorities have issued a statement stating that Communist agitators are responsible for the rioting.

It may be recalled that in 1919 there was a bad strike in the same area. The police were summoned in large numbers and turned machine guns upon the mobs. According to the authorities, the agitators responsible for the present outbreak are the same as originated the trouble in 1919.

SCIENCE IN INDUSTRY.

PRINCE AND FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS.

The Prince of Wales, speaking at the dinner of the Association for the Promotion of Co-operation between Scientific and Technical Societies and Institutions within the British Empire in London last night, said that the movement which the Association had inaugurated, if steadily supported and wisely guided, might confer benefits upon industry as a whole, both in this country and in the Empire, the extent of which we could only dimly foresee.

This generation had witnessed the production on a great commercial scale of agricultural fertilizers as by-products of the iron and steel industry and of the gas industry, and more recently, under the guidance of Lord Melchett, direct from coal and air, both products of which the British Empire had no lack.

COAL AND OIL.

Coal and oil, he said, are both forms of power. Oil is essentially a portable fuel which can be converted into power as we require it at a moment's notice. Coal burnt at a central station delivers energy at the gates of our factories, at the doors of our homes, and in our streets by means of electric wires or in the form of gas.

It is dangerous to speculate in the presence of an assembly such as this on future developments, but I am tempted to wonder whether I may not live to see lorries, in which the petrol tank has been replaced by a bottle of compressed gas, carrying the products of agriculture grown with the aid of fertilisers derived from coal to clean towns no longer defiled by coal as used to-day."

OUTCOME OF THE MOVEMENT.

The Prince added that he felt sure that the outcome of the movement would be a still greater scientific development of the resources, not only of this country, but of our Empire as a whole, which was bound to have a favourable effect on the course of wages and of industry.

Sir William Larke announced a gift of £10,000 towards the scheme by Mr. Robert Mond.

CANADIAN PRIME MINISTER.

VISIT TO DUBLIN.

Mr. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, will arrive in Dublin next Monday, and will remain here for a few days.

Mr. Scullin, Prime Minister of Australia, will arrive later in the week.

PROPOSED BIG REDUCTIONS.

WAGES ON BRITISH RAILWAYS.

STATEMENT BY COMPANIES.

MR. CRAMP AND "ABSURD DEMANDS."

Railway wages reductions, described by the unions as of a "sweeping and drastic nature," were put forward by the four big railway companies yesterday at a Conference in London between the unions and the companies.

The main points of the companies' proposals include immediate reductions in rates of pay as follows:—

Adult Male Wages Staff—6s. per week. The present minimum of 40s. to be reduced to 38s.

Junior Male Wages Staff and Female Wages Staff—3s. per week.

Adult Males Salaried Staff—£10 to £15 per annum.

Women Clerks—3s. to 4s. 6d. per week.

OTHER PROPOSALS.

Other proposals are:—The standard weekly hours, whether 48 or less, to be worked as the company may require; the standard weekly hours to include Sunday duty when necessary; payment to be made only for time actually worked; overtime at the rate of time and a quarter to be paid only for time worked in excess of the standard weekly hours; Sunday duty and night duty to be paid for at ordinary rate, but if in excess of the standard weekly hours, to be paid for at the rate of time and a quarter; and consequent revision of the aggregation allowances payable to salaried staff.

Sir Ralph Wedgwood, Chairman of the General Managers' Conference, who submitted the companies' programme, made a full statement explaining their financial position.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

An official statement issued by the companies after the Conference stated:—"Although the companies have taken drastic steps to reduce expenditure, the recovery of the prosperity of the railway industry is seriously hindered by high railway operating costs, of which wages form so large a proportion. The companies, therefore, have no alternative but to seek relief from their present difficult position by means of a substantial reduction in the existing labour costs."

UNIONS "GREATLY SURPRISED."

The unions were greatly surprised by the nature of the proposals. The National Union of Railwaymen and the Railway Clerks' Executive are not considering the demands immediately, and a few days will elapse before the unions will meet again to give their reply—probably some time next week.

It is believed that there is very little likelihood of an agreement being reached by direct negotiations between the companies and the unions if the companies adhere to their proposals, and that it will be necessary to carry the claims to the National Wages Board.

Two of the three unions—the National Union of Railwaymen and the Railway Clerks' Association—did not yesterday table the new programmes that they had prepared. These will probably be put forward in the form of counter proposals in time for the hearing by the National Wages Board.

LOCOMOTIVE MEN'S CLAIM.

Mr. J. Bromley, M.P., Secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Enginers and Firemen, stated yesterday that his Executive had forwarded to the railway companies a claim, as instructed by their delegate conference last May, and that the claim was tabled at yesterday's meeting.

The points of the claim were: Abolition of classification; guaranteed day for each time of booking on duty on Sunday; the rescinding of the National Wages Board's minutes regarding extended rota of duty, and the minimum fireman's rate to cleaners after seven years' service.

The agreement under which a six months' truce was to be observed ended on Wednesday.

The N.U.R. new programme includes a minimum weekly wage for all adult workers of 60s. and a guaranteed week for railway shopmen.

The Railway Clerks' Association are seeking substantial increases in the salary scales for all grades of male and female employés.

The Executive of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen last night adjourned consideration of the companies' proposals.

The N.U.R. Executive will give their reply to the companies in about a fortnight's time.

"DEMANDS ARE ABSURD."

Mr. C. T. Cramp, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, interviewed last night, said:—"In my judgment, the demands of the companies are absolutely absurd in the length to which they go. I was simply astonished when a copy of the proposals was placed before me this morning, and at once said, as I say now, that neither these demands nor anything like them could possibly be accepted by this Union—except for the non-unionists in the railway service, for whom I have no sympathy, and am prepared to accept all the companies' proposals.

"We are sending copies of the proposals to all our branches to-night in order that the members may know exactly what the demands of the companies are. We shall not be meeting the companies again on these proposals for a week or two."

IF PROPOSALS ARE FORCED.

Mr. J. Bromley, M.P., Secretary of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, in a statement last night, stated: "The railway companies presented to us such claims for the breaking down, not only of the wages, but the conditions of service of railwaymen, as would take them back in working conditions to thirty years ago. These will more especially affect train men, and, therefore, members of my Union.

"Of course, at the present time it behoves all of us to do our best to prevent strikes or other disturbances of that character; but, frankly, if the claims of the companies, or anything like them, are attempted to be forced on to the members of my Union, nothing, in my opinion, can prevent a battle.

"As far as I am concerned, I am going to allow this to be a soldier's battle, and my Executive will keep our members continually posted as to the position, and I have no doubt whatever as to what their answer will be."

ENGLISH RAILWAY ADMINISTRATION.

NO GOVERNMENT INQUIRY.

The British Minister of Transport, in a parliamentary reply issued yesterday, announces that he does not propose to set up an inquiry into the administration and management of the railways.

LIMITATION OF ARMAMENTS.

THORNY QUESTION OF METHODS.

FRANCO-GERMAN RIFT.

LESS HOPEFUL FEELING AT GENEVA.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
GENEVA, Thursday.

Owing partly to divergent views between the French and German delegates during to-day's debate in the Preparatory Disarmament Committee regarding the methods of attaining the limitation of land armaments, a less hopeful feeling prevails this evening regarding the reaching of really practical results.

Many delegates feel the necessity of proceeding prudently in the matter of the method to be adopted in view of the present situation of the world. Count Bernstorff (Germany), Litvinoff (Soviet Government), and General Kasprzycki (Poland) were the most outspoken speakers on the subject.

Count Bernstorff repeated that he wished the Committee to finish its work as soon as possible, so that the Conference might be summoned with the least possible delay. He regretted that only technical arguments had been advanced, whereas the problem was one of moral, historical and political importance. In his opinion, the situation would not improve if the Convention proved unsatisfactory.

THE GERMAN VIEW.

Public opinion, the German delegate added, would not be satisfied if war material was not limited by direct methods. The Budget method was not effective. The essential aim of disarmament was the levelling of armaments. The study of Budget questions by experts must not entail the adjournment of the Conference and a further session of the Committee.

The Chairman assured Count Bernstorff that there was no question of postponing the Conference.

The Polish delegate favoured Budget limitation, and said that political pacification was necessary, and disarmament and security must advance pari passu.

SOVIET VERDICT.

Mr. Sato (Japan) could see only two possibilities—namely, indirect limitation through the Budget, with the United States applying the system of direct limitation, or indirect limitation, by means of publicity.

M. Litvinoff opposed Viscount Cecil's draft resolution, and proposed the simultaneous application of direct limitation and Budget limitation.

Viscount Cecil explained that the first two paragraphs of his resolution affirmed the principle of most complete publicity, as well as the insufficiency of that method to ensure the limitation of material.

DISTURBED ATMOSPHERE.

Before the vote on Viscount Cecil's two paragraphs was taken the atmosphere was a little disturbed by M. Massigli (France) observing that in order to enable the Committee to finish its work in a spirit of co-operation he had abstained from discussing Count Bernstorff's remarks regarding equality of obligations. Since, however, Count Bernstorff had again raised this point, he (M. Massigli) considered it indispensable to have a thorough explanation on this and other questions before the Committee dispersed.

The first two paragraphs of Lord Cecil's resolution were finally adopted by 22 votes to nil and 21 votes to nil respectively. The final paragraph will be voted upon to-morrow so as to enable the British and German delegations to confer on certain verbal alterations.

JAPANESE PREMIER SHOT.

SERIOUSLY WOUNDED IN TOKYO.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
TOKYO, Friday.

Mr. Hamaguchi, the Japanese Prime Minister, was shot at and seriously wounded at the railway station here at 8.55 this morning. The bullet penetrated the Prime Minister's abdomen. His assailant was arrested.

After a cursory examination by a doctor at the stationmaster's office it was stated that the Prime Minister's chances of recovery were good.

The would-be assassin was a young man.

NEW PARLIAMENT IN SPAIN.

KING'S AUTHORISATION TO PREMIER.

From Reuter's Correspondent.
MADRID, Thursday.

Spain's new Parliament was foreshadowed in an announcement issued this evening.

The official communiqué says that at a meeting of the Cabinet, held under the presidency of the King, His Majesty authorised the Premier to submit to him, whenever he thinks fit, a decree convening Parliament, with a view to reaching a settlement of the most urgent problems which call for action by the Legislature.

ACCIDENT TO LORD STRATHCONA.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A CAR.

Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, who was slightly injured on Wednesday night when he was knocked down by a car in St. James's street, London, on leaving the Government reception to the Indian delegates, is stated to be suffering few ill effects from the accident.

He has cancelled all engagements for this week, but hopes to resume them next week.

Lord Strathcona is thirty-nine.

MR. BALDWIN INJURED

A STRAINED LIGAMENT.

It was announced yesterday by the Conservative Central Office that Mr. Stanley Baldwin has strained a ligament in his foot, which will incapacitate him for a few days.

While he will be able to carry out his ordinary engagements the injury will, for a short time, make it difficult for him to appear in his place in the House of Commons.

£151 FOR THREE PENNIES.

Three pennies of Edward the Elder (901-925) brought a total of £151 at Glendinings yesterday.

The highest priced one, £58, bears a lofty Saxon minster, probably that of York.

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

SIMLA DESPATCH.

A NARROW OUTLOOK.

In a leading article The Times to-day observes:—The Government of India—that is to say, the Viceroy and his Council—completed their report on the proposals of the Statutory Commission on September 20th. Their views are made public this morning, and were presumably circulated to the Round Table delegates yesterday, when the Conference had actually been opened and the first business session was only three days ahead. At this stage of the proceedings there was, perhaps, some substance in the argument that it would be unwise to introduce a new factor into the constitutional discussion till the non-contentious ceremonial of Wednesday was over. But it is surely asking too much of the delegates to assume that they will really have mastered this mass of difficult detail—the despatch alone fills upwards of two hundred and fifty printed pages without its appendices and enclosures—will have checked it by the earlier document, of which it is a survey, will have formed their own conclusions and be ready to debate them all by Monday morning.

It is not surprising that there have been appeals in various quarters for a postponement, and, indeed, the case for carrying all this undigested material into the Conference next week can only be based on what may be held to be the psychological consequences of further delay. Still a little delay at the beginning might speed the business in the end, if only it were used to give the Prime Minister time to get into touch with the British parliamentary delegation, of which he is the leader.

THE DESPATCH.

The despatch itself, it may be said at once, will dissipate a good many wild predictions of its contents. It is not in substance a brand-new scheme of Indian constitutional reform. No one can claim it as an "alternative" or a "rival" to the Simon scheme. If, in some respects, it goes further than Sir John Simon and his colleagues in the direction of responsibility, there are other respects in which it is palpably more cautious. The criticism which must occur to everyone who reads the despatch in the light of modern thought is that its outlook is altogether too narrow to help the Conference in its main decision.

Its authors are a little too near the ground to see the horizon. They give the impression of a set of earnest and sympathetic commentators, by no means all of one mind, but struggling loyally to avoid any public dissent, who have kept strictly to the text before them, have worked against time to reach a number of conclusions upon it, and have then caused them to be placed on record by a painstaking civil servant. No doubt, that is just what they set out to do. It was not their business to be imaginative. The importance of their criticism on specific points is beyond all question, but it is a little depressing that at this moment, when the whole destiny of India is under review, they should almost have gone out of their way to discourage the hopes of a new and larger experiment in constitutional progress.

THE CONFERENCE'S CHOICE.

The plain truth is that the fundamental choice before the present Conference lies between a scheme of Government into which the whole Indian population—States as well as provinces—can fit naturally without retrogression or upheaval as time goes on, and a scheme which will, in effect, reproduce on a gigantic scale the partition of Ireland, an Ireland, moreover, not merely clean divided in two, but broken at every point by a chain of Ulsters. That choice is primarily for the people of India themselves. If they take the larger view, they will concentrate, first and foremost, upon the provinces, postpone for the time any reform at the centre, and claim their right, once the provinces have become successful autonomous units, to determine their own form of federal unity with the States. If they prefer merely to go forward on the present lines, to think only in terms of a Central Parliament of British India, and to leave the States out of account till a distant future, then, no doubt, they may still achieve a certain progress on the lines suggested, but they run the risk of losing for ever the chance of an Indian "Dominion" worth the name.

Whichever view they take, the Simla despatch will have its value; for it contains a mass of practical suggestion on every detail of constitutional change. But it is essential to remember in reading it, that it is a document limited, for all intents and purposes, to the development of parliamentary institutions in British India alone. Its uses will be found in committee, rather than in any survey by the Conference of the Indian problem as a whole.

HONOUR FOR DR. BANTING.

Yesterday afternoon the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons of England conferred the Honorary Fellowship of the College on Dr. Banting, of Toronto. The honour, the highest which the Council can offer, is signal, remarks The Times. No other member of the College—Dr. Banting is already M.R.C.S.—has ever before received it. But the discoverer of insulin certainly deserved no less at the hands of British surgeons. His work, as Lord Moynihan pointed out, has a direct bearing on the practice of surgery: it was made possible in the first instance by the achievement of Lister. In its essence it is an application of physiological knowledge to the needs of clinical practice, and, therefore, represents that synthesis of effort which is the foundation of the science of medicine.

Lord Moynihan, who has just returned from Canada, referred to the lustre which Dr. Banting's work has shed on medical research in that land. The discovery of an effective treatment of diabetes is certainly the most important contribution to therapeutics which has so far been made by by any of the British Dominions. It stands, and will stand, as an inspiration and an example to the hundreds of eager young workers who, in Canada, in Australia, in New Zealand, in South Africa and in other parts of the Empire, are dedicating their lives to the prevention and cure of disease.

MR. SNOWDEN AND PREFERENCES.

PROMISE TO IMPERIAL DELEGATES.

The Special Representative of the Morning Post writes:—Late last night it was reported that Mr. Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, had promised the Dominion delegates to the Imperial Conference that he would continue the imperial preferences which now exist.

TEMPERS LOST AT IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

QUOTA PLAN NOW REGARDED AS DEAD.

DELEGATES DISGUSTED.

SUMMARY OF THE GRAHAM REPORT.

By Our Special Representative.
LONDON, Thursday, 8 p.m.

The fact that, for all practical purposes, the Imperial Conference has been a dismal failure can be stated now without hesitation. Not only has it failed, but bitternesses have been created which may have a deplorable effect on imperial affairs. This morning the heads of delegations met and "disposed of" the Graham Committee's report. In the afternoon they were to have talked about foreign affairs, a subject that was so important that a plenary session was postponed to enable it to be discussed; but there was another change of plan, and when the heads met after lunch they decided to thrash out the agenda for the plenary session to be held to-morrow. Apparently they agreed to abandon their discussion on foreign policy.

They talked until after six o'clock, and they propose to go on talking after dinner. Indeed, it is possible that they will have a very late sitting; for Mr. Bennett was at a tea party this afternoon, and many of the points that were discussed in his absence may have to be recapitulated for his benefit. We may assume now that not only the Bennett plan, but also the quota plan, is virtually dead. The Graham Committee submitted a very clever report, weighing up the pros and cons of the quota scheme, and indicating that, subject to considerations of high policy, it was "feasible." No recommendation was made by the Graham Committee, but it did state that a quota could be worked. When this report went to the heads the British representatives announced that important matters of high policy were involved, and that decisions on such a grave matter could not possibly be taken in such a short space of time.

UGLY SCENES PREVENTED.

This attitude infuriated some of the Dominion delegates, who frankly lost their tempers, and but for the suavity of Mr. Scullin, who acted as peacemaker, ugly scenes might have resulted. As it was, there were a few wigs on the green at yesterday afternoon's meeting.

There is no doubt that the Dominion representatives are heartily disgusted with the course of events, and have made no secret of their resentment at what they consider to be their unfair treatment. If the British Government had made up its mind before the Conference began that there would be no additional preferences, and that its own quota scheme could not be adopted without all sorts of further consideration, why were the overseas delegates not told so frankly at the outset? Then much time would have been saved. Mr. Snowden has not budged an inch from his original attitude, and it is nonsense to say that the Dominions' proposals have been examined in an impartial manner. Every member of the British Government must have known perfectly well from the first day that nothing would be done at this Conference to meet the Dominions' wishes, and the fact that a pretence of "careful consideration" has been maintained by Downing street has caused exceedingly nasty comments among the visiting delegations.

Everything is over now bar the shouting, and I should imagine that there will be plenty of that.

WITH BACKS TO THE WALL.

After all the wonderful hopes that were held out to the peoples of the Empire concerning the extension of inter-imperial trade, the economic unity of the Commonwealth and the growth of family co-operation, the Dominion Premiers this evening are fighting with their backs against the wall to drag a guarantee from the British Government that existing preferences will be stabilised for three years. Mr. Snowden does not want to give them even that. We are left with a vague hope that the quota suggestion may be allowed to remain open, whatever that blessed phrase may mean.

Mr. Macdonald would like to push the whole business off to another Conference to be held next year in Ottawa, as he has just made momentous discovery—namely, that one Imperial Conference cannot hope to deal exhaustively with a double programme of major constitutional and economic problems. My messenger boy could have told him that six weeks ago. Whether a further Conference will take place in Canada to go into the quota proposal thoroughly remains to be seen, but at the moment the Dominion Premiers are so much annoyed that they are inclined to think that no future Conference can get them anywhere.

Of course, there always is the chance that the Labour Government in the United Kingdom may be thrown out of office during the next six months, in which event a very different complexion would be given to affairs. The Conservative Party, through Mr. Baldwin, has accepted the principle of Mr. Bennett's preference plan, and one must presume that a change of Government would lead to the adoption of early steps to put this promise into practice. Another Conference then would become absolutely necessary; for the matter is being left in such a chaotic condition that a completely fresh start would need to be made.

By a strange piece of irony, the only delegates who are taking a calm view of the economic problem are the Irish. From the start they have based their attitude on the principle that "blessed are they who expect nothing; for they shall not be disappointed." Mr. Hogan gave up hopes of a butter quota at an early stage, and, like a sensible man, went back to his job in Dublin. Mr. McGilligan, having completed his constitutional case, has been holding a kind of watching brief at the economic meetings, but has taken no part in the economic dog fight between Messrs. Stevens and Parker Molony on the one side and the British representatives on the other. The Free State will get nothing out of the Conference.

ROSE AT MIDNIGHT.

LONDON, Midnight.

The heads of delegations have just concluded their final meeting in the House of Commons, and the plenary session will be held to-morrow morning at 10.30. As I have already indicated, nothing has been or will be, done about the several economic proposals that have been advanced as alternatives to the original Bennett scheme. Everything is "left open," and that is the end of it all.

I am able now to give a summary of the Graham report, which is regarded as the chef d'œuvre of the Conference. This much-advertised report recommends nothing on the subjects that matter. It merely rehearses arguments for and against this and that proposal, and winds up by saying that it really could not be expected to investigate such vital matters thoroughly in the short space of four weeks. Of course, not; but its members knew that just as well four weeks ago as they do to-day, and, if they had said so at the start, think of all the trouble that would have been saved.

At any rate, here is what the Graham people have said:—

(1)—Wheat quota. The proposed quota for Dominion wheat was 55 per cent., and its object was to give a guaranteed and increasing market to Canada and Australia at world prices. This project was bound up with the suggestion of a quota for home-grown wheat, which had been under the consideration of the United Kingdom Government for several months. The report discusses generally the question of price. Would a quota allow prices to remain at world levels? Answer, "Yes." Furthermore, from the Dominion standpoint, a quota would be a great advantage, because it would protect the Dominion growers against dumping, which is their worst enemy. Russia, like Canada, grows hard wheat, and is likely to be a fierce competitor against her in the future. Separate quotas for individual Dominions are ruled out, but a general quota for all the Dominions, plus the home producers, would be possible. The same remark applies to flour, but the whole matter must be given far more thorough examination before anything can be done.

(2)—A quota for canned fish, canned fruit, fresh fruit and dairy produce. This proposal is vetoed on the ground that, whereas wheat imports can be controlled easily at various "bottle necks," the control of imports of these other commodities would involve either control at the Customs, which would interfere with certain international obligations of the United Kingdom Government, or control of wholesale and retail traders, which would cause all sorts of complications. Therefore a quota for these commodities is impracticable.

(3)—Import boards for canned fish, fruit, etc. Here we should have a statutory corporation, with a monopoly of the purchase of home and imported produce, and there would be no difficulty in regard to import control. The chief objection to this plan is that it might lead to unseemly quarrels between Commonwealth Governments in respect of prices and quality. On the other hand, import boards could deal most effectively with dumping. The idea is worth pursuing, but here again it needs much longer consideration.

(4)—Bulk purchase. This proposal involves long-term contracts, either by importing syndicates, reinforced by State credit, or by the State itself, in direct competition with private concerns. Dumping might upset this whole scheme. But obviously this is another matter for which time is wanted. Nothing could be recommended without consultation with trade interests as to the best methods to be employed. Here again the matter is "worth pursuing."

(5)—Organisation of channels of trade; in other words, direct exchange of goods between Dominions and United Kingdom. The project has possibilities, but, like all the others, must be examined further.

So there is the Graham report in its essentials. It does make definite recommendations in respect of the Empire Marketing Board and the Imperial Economic Committee, but in respect of nothing else. In the circumstances neither the heads of delegations nor the plenary Conference will be able to recommend anything for the improvement of inter-imperial trade. The very schemes which were proposed by the British representatives as alternatives to Mr. Bennett's offer of increased preferences have been shelved not by the Dominions, but by the British Government. It is almost incredible, but it is a cold fact. We shall be told that the Graham Committee has done "extraordinarily useful work." We shall hear to-morrow that everything in the garden is lovely.

Indeed, the overseas delegates to-night presented Mr. Ramsay Macdonald with a silver salver in token of their esteem; but that is all on the surface. Whatever may be said or left unsaid at the plenary Conference to-morrow, the fact remains that the Dominion delegates are disgusted men, and that the cause of the British Empire instead of being promoted has been damaged gravely by the vacillations and subterfuges of the last six weeks.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

FIRST MEETING OF COASTAL BOROUGH COMMITTEE.

The first meeting of the Borough of Dun Laoghaire Vocational Education Committee was held yesterday evening, Mr. P. J. Hernon, Manager for the Borough, presided at the opening proceedings. Mr. E. P. Barrett, Inspector to the Ministry for Education, attended.

Mr. Hernon said that that body was quite independent of the local authority. The maximum contribution they could demand from the local authority was a rate of 3d. in the £, which would be increased by ½d. a year until 1942.

On the motion of Mr. J. M. Devitt, seconded by Mr. E. J. Mallins, the Rev. L. Potter, C.C., was elected chairman.

Mr. Samuel Byrne was elected vice-chairman, on the motion of Mr. E. C. Smyth, seconded by Mr. McCabe, Mr. Devitt and Mr. F. M. Bently supporting the motion.

Mr. Byrne then took the chair, in the absence of Father Potter.

Mr. Devitt moved that Mr. T. Alex. W. Hill be appointed Chief Executive Officer, at the remuneration he was receiving as Principal of the Blackrock, Dun Laoghaire and Dalkey Technical Schools. Mr. Mallins seconded, and the motion was unanimously adopted.

The National Bank, Ltd., were appointed Treasurers to the Committee.

The Chairman, the Vice-Chairman, Messrs. Devitt, Jacob, Mallins, M'Cabe and the Rev. Myles Ronan were appointed as a Finance Committee, in conjunction with whom Mr. Hill was instructed to draw up an education scheme to be submitted to the Minister before 1st December.

Mr. S. Ashlin consented to submit a design for the seal of the committee.

THE NATIONAL DEFENCE ASSOCIATION.

A statement was issued last evening on behalf of the Executive Committee of An Cumann Cosanta Naisiunta (the National Defence Association). The statement deals with the position of the Association in relation to the Free State Army.

RAILWAY RATES ON BEET.

PROPOSED INCREASE.

GROWERS' OPPOSITION.

The Court of the Irish Railway Tribunal sat yesterday in Dublin Castle and resumed consideration of the application of the Great Southern Railways Company for a revision of exceptional rates exceeding 40 per cent. below the standard rates chargeable for beet.

Mr. Phelps, K.C.; Mr. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. J. Healy (instructed by Mr. J. J. McDonald) appeared for the railway company; Mr. F. Monks (instructed by Mr. Arthur Cox) appeared for the Irish Sugar Beet-growers' Association; Mr. T. Bacon (instructed by Mr. Duggan) appeared for the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company, Carlow.

Mr. Hanrahan, Traffic Department Great Southern Railways, concluded his evidence. He informed Mr. Bacon that he was satisfied the proposed rates would not put traffic off the line.

SUGAR COMPANY'S CASE.

Mr. Bacon, addressing the Tribunal, said that, once the present exceptional rates were allowed to stand for the current season, they did not oppose any increase which the Tribunal found to be economic. It was never the attitude of his company to oppose it. Mr. Floyd had said that the rate was very low. They agreed that it was, but the question of an increase was another matter. The Sugar Company preferred to get the beet supplied by rail rather than by road, but an increase in rates would result in a large percentage of the traffic leaving the railway and going by road.

If a point were reached where the profits on beet came down to anything approximating the profit on any other article of agricultural produce, in the raising of which the labour was not so great, then the farmer would not grow beet in the outlying areas. If the sugar manufacturing company paid the increased rate it would mean that they would be paying, say, to a Waterford or Tipperary farmer more than to farmers at their own door.

BEET-GROWING AND TILLAGE.

Mr. O. Singer, general commercial manager of the Carlow sugar factory, replying to Mr. Bacon, said that the subsidy paid to the factory last year was £108,253, and this was based upon 10,000 tons, out of a total output of 20,547 tons. Most of the output of the factory was sold to port cities and towns, such as Dublin, Waterford and Limerick. The company deducted the freights for beet from the growers' account, and paid it to the railway company. Since 1926 they had paid in freights £105,033. They also paid freights on sugar since 1926 £68,664. On residuals the company paid during the same period £17,835.

Continuing, the witness said that there were 13,400 acres of beet grown, and he believed that he would be right in saying that if it were not for the sugar factory most of that ground would not be tilled. The sugar company preferred to get the beet forwarded by rail rather than by any other means of conveyance. During the early days of the factory they had to get people in remote counties to grow beet to keep them supplied, and it would be unfair if these people would have to drop out now. Last year the net profit of the factory was £66,000, but conditions in the sugar market had become very much worse since. He believed that it would be no exaggeration to say that sugar was now £3 a ton less. He considered that the increased rate would have the result of restricting the area in which beet would be grown. The sugar company had agreed to pay 2s. towards the transport of beet from outlying counties, where the tonnage was 6s. or over. The amount so paid was approximately £2,000 a year.

Answering Mr. Kelly, the witness said that the factory had not created a reserve equal to the cost of the factory. The total cost of construction of the factory was in the neighbourhood of £430,000. They had written off £208,000. In addition they had a reserve fund of £65,000, and also a reserve of £7,500 for doubtful debts. The £65,000 might be swallowed up in one bad season. It was their hope to have the factory written off at the end of the subsidy period.

Mr. Kelly—You get a subsidy of 16s. 11d. per cwt. Does the Free State consumer get any benefit for that 16s. 11d.?—I do not think so. We sell our sugar in competition, and we have to come down to the level of imported sugar.

EFFECT OF INCREASED RATES.

Answering further questions, the witness said that he agreed that the rates given by the railway company were exceptional to help the industry in its commencement. His conviction was that the railway company would injure themselves by increasing the present rates.

Answering Mr. Monks, the witness said that while they had to meet competition in the sale of sugar, there was no competition in the purchase of beet. He thought that his board would not continue to pay the 2s. to farmers in outlying districts.

Mr. Kelly—And in addition to the growers having to pay £1,800 on your present exceptional rates, they will have to pay the entire of the new rate?—That is only an assumption on my part.

THE BEET-GROWERS.

Mr. Monks, for the Beet-growers' Association, stated that the beet-growing industry could not afford an extra penny freight cost at the present price of 46s. per ton, but the growers were prepared to have a percentage variation in freights in proportion as the price they got from the factory varied. The growers were most anxious to give the carriage of beet to the railway company, but they said very candidly that they would have to organise a proper system of road transport unless put on an economic basis on the railway.

If the Railway Tribunal adopted the rate suggested for next year's beet crop it would mean a difference of 2s. a ton in price to the growers.

THE PROFIT ON BEET-GROWING.

Mr. Michael Doyle, ex-T.D., Wexford, stated that he farms 360 acres, but, unfortunately, tillage not being a paying proposition, the most of the farm was in grass. He grew three acres of beet, twenty acres of grain, four or five acres of roots, and two acres of potatoes. He thought that in the case of a subsidised industry outlying counties should get a chance as regards freight. The average sugar content of his beet for the first three years was about 17 per cent. Last year it was 17½ per cent. The cost of production was £21 16s. 3d. per acre, and it left him a profit of a shade over 10 per cent. He did not think that the crop could bear an increase in freight from 6s. to 8s. 1d.

Answering Mr. Phelps, the witness said that the railway company was entitled to fair remuneration.

The Chairman asked Mr. Singer if the sugar company would continue the rebate to the growers of about £2,000 per annum.

Mr. Singer said that the future outlook for the factory was not at all as bright as it had been for the past three years. He would, however, put the matter before his directors.

A GROWER'S LOSS LAST YEAR.

Colonel Bernard J. Fagan, Monasterevan, stated that he lives 26 miles from Carlow by road and 43 miles by rail. His present rate was 4s. 5d. per ton, and the proposed new rate would be 6s. 1d. He had a farm of 150 acres, and this year had ten acres under beet. His average yield per acre was: 1926-27, 11 tons; 1927-28, 12¼ tons; 1928-29, 12 tons; 1929-30, 8 tons. The sugar content was about 17 per cent. He had made a profit of about £8 an acre on the crop some years, but last year, owing to reduced subsidy and adverse conditions, he lost approximately £3 an acre.

Mr. Kelly—It seems the railway company are going to lose you as a customer?—I am afraid so.

So that you are not interested in the raising of rates?—I am interested in the industry.

Further questioned, the witness said that he would continue to grow beet if it proved profitable.

The Tribunal adjourned until this morning.

BRITISH COAL MINING.

"COMING CRISIS."

QUESTIONS OF WAGES AND HOURS.

Miners' leaders meeting Mr. Shinwell, Secretary for Mines, last night, told him that a crisis was approaching in the coalfields.

They spoke at an informal conference at the House of Commons between Mr. Shinwell, representatives of the Mining Association and the Miners' Federation. The discussion was upon reduction of miners' hours from eight to seven-and-a-half a day on December 1.

WORKING HOURS.

Negotiations for new agreements are taking place in the districts, and the owners in South Wales and Scotland have declared that a seven-and-a-half hours day must entail "cuts" in wages. Something approaching a deadlock has been reached, the miners' representatives having refused to entertain wage reductions. In many of the other districts the owners have made proposals for operating the clause in the Coal Mines Act which permits a spread-over of hours to ninety a fortnight, instead of a rigid seven-and-a-half hours day, and the miners' representatives in those districts have declined to agree.

The Miners' Federation have called a National Delegate Conference for Thursday next.

The miners' leaders told Mr. Shinwell last night that they looked to the Government and the provisions of the Act, including the setting up of the National Appeal Tribunal to avert the danger of a stoppage.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

The following official statement was issued last night:—

"Mr. Shinwell had a meeting with officials of the Mining Association (Mr. Evan Williams and Mr. Lee) and the Miners' Federation (Mr. T. Richards, Mr. Cook and Mr. E. Edwards, M.P.) at the House of Commons to-night. An informal discussion took place on Part Three of the Coal Mines Act, 1930 (which deals with the seven and a half hours' day, which is to come into force on December 1), and the application of the spread-over, the principle of which is provided for in the Act, subject to agreement in the districts, and with the approval of the Mining Association and the Miners' Federation.

"The officials of the Mining Association explained that they had no powers to discuss the bearing of the principles of the Act on the district agreements.

"Mr. Shinwell ascertained that the Mining Association had no objection to his consulting the district associations on the matters discussed, and he proposes to act accordingly."

QUESTION OF MIXED MARRIAGES.

R.C. ARCHBISHOP REPLIES TO ANGLICAN BISHOP.

Dr. Richard Downey, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Liverpool, speaking at the annual dinner of the Knights of St. Columba at Liverpool last night, replied to references to Roman Catholics by the Anglican Bishop of Liverpool, Dr. A. A. David, in his presidential address at the Liverpool Diocesan Conference on Wednesday. Dr. Downey said that he could assure Dr. David that the Catholic Evidence Guild was forbidden to attack anyone else's religion, and if he would cite a single case of such attack, he (Dr. Downey) would take away the delinquent's certificate.

"The Catholics did not deny that a marriage contracted before the Registrar was legally valid. It was not valid in the eyes of the Church.

"His lordship," continued Dr. Downey, "wrote to ask me to explain to him the Catholic standpoint with regard to mixed marriages. I did so, but it is evident from his lordship's address that he did not understand my letter, and he even misquoted it. Nearly a month ago he promised to send me instances in which priests were supposed to have made certain statements with regard to such marriages. I am still waiting for his lordship to send them to me, and I shall be pleased to investigate them when I have received them."

The toast having been honoured, Mr. George G. Lyttle, Belfast, thanked them for their hospitality. It was his first visit to Limerick, and he should confess that he was glad he had accepted the invitation of the club. Mr. W. P. Musgrave, Cork, said that Cork Rotarians always were happy to visit Limerick, and Limerick Rotarians to visit Cork. Mr. Fred Summerfield, Dublin, also replied. District Justice Flood said that the Rotary movement kept one in touch with Ireland and the world, and played its part in this way.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

AGRICULTURAL POLICY.

LABOUR GOVERNMENT'S PROPOSALS.

VIGOROUS CRITICISM OF NEW BILL.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Thursday.

The House of Commons to-day gave a first reading to a bill presented by the President of the Board of Trade (Mr. W. Graham), which provides for the constitution of a Consumers' Council; defines its powers and duties, and empowers the Board of Trade to regulate by Order the prices chargeable for certain commodities.

AGRICULTURAL POLICY.

Dr. Addison (Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries) moved the second reading of the Government's Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Bill. It was quite time, he said, that an attempt was made to restore prosperity to the countryside, and increase employment thereon. During the last ten years there had been a loss of one hundred thousand land workers. There had been a draft of the population from the rural districts to the towns. No nation could continue draining the blood and enterprise from the countryside without having to pay for it; we were paying for it now. There was no reason why a great deal of what we now imported should not be grown at home. Last year we imported £20,000,000 worth of eggs—nearly twice the value of our food crops—and we produced about the same amount at home. Our opportunities were enormous. It was generally agreed that the types of agriculturist who succeeded were the small cultivators, the specialist farmer, and the man with large capital with large-scale enterprise.

LARGE-SCALE FARMING.

At a later stage he hoped to introduce proposals affecting the vital question of marketing and the difficulties experienced in many of the cereal areas. (Hear, hear.) The first thing necessary was to provide employment, and to adopt those expedients most likely quickly to produce good results. Then they must try to build up a system which would give the labourer a chance. This bill proposed, in the first instance, to set up a large-scale farming corporation. It was a remarkable fact that agriculture was the only interest in the land where they had not the collective application of capital, where they had not the collective assembly of science, skill and organisation designed to develop the industry. For a long time leading opinion in agriculture had been in favour of the proposals contained in this bill. No doubt some of his proposals would be denounced as the production of a feather-brained Minister of Agriculture; but they had the authority of the Selborne Report, which advocated the establishment of demonstration farms of 3,000 acres and upwards. These demonstration farms would not be sanctioned unless he was reasonably satisfied that they would be commercially self-supporting.

In regard to the proposal for the reclamation of land, he owed something to the friends of Mr. Lloyd George, who had negotiated with him during the recess. Then there was the question of the provision of allotments for the benefit of men who were now unemployed. He also looked for a large development of small holdings. So far, about 10,270 had been provided, and only 493 appeared to have failed. These small holdings paid three per cent. on the capital expenditure, and there were not many landlords up and down the country who got three per cent. on their land. (Hear, hear.) It was not proposed to establish small holdings and then leave the occupants to themselves. They must be established on settled lines and be trained by experts. Men and women who were capable of running poultry farms and market gardens would have technical guidance during the first year of their occupation, and they would be assisted in the marketing of their produce. He further ventured to suggest that there were great possibilities in the canning industry. Our national capacity was immense, and it was time that we threw down the challenge to adversity. (Cheers.)

REJECTION MOVED.

NO ADEQUATE RETURN FOR EXPENDITURE.

Mr. Walter Guinness expressed the view that the bill would provoke a great deal of controversy. They had been asked, he said, to put aside controversy and consider the proposals from a purely agricultural point of view; but he would remind the Minister that the Labour Party voted against all the measures brought forward in that connection by the Conservative Party. So far as he understood it, the idea was that 100,000 families were to be settled on the land. Was it realised what a colossal convulsion that would mean. It meant the transfer of the control of nearly one-fourth of our arable land. As to the finance of the bill, it was proposed to spend £6,700,000 on large-scale experiment and land improvement. That expenditure would give no adequate return and was not justified in our present financial position.

Contrary to the statement of the Minister, he said, agriculturists were overwhelmingly opposed to the bill. Dr. Addison had a bad financial record. He was the champion spender in a day of prodigal expenditure. In the present measure he saw the germ of a policy which might develop into such a land policy as now existed in Russia. He went on to say that the Prime Minister was too busy to see the Farmers' Union, but not too busy to see the Daily Herald, and make a violent attack on the Union and the farmers it represented.

Dr. Salter—You are wasting time with disgusting personalities.

The Speaker—If the hon. member cannot behave, he had better leave the House.

Mr. Guinness, continuing, said that members opposite seemed to be suffering from a superiority complex in an acute form, the chief symptom of which was that they imagined they knew everybody's business much better than the people actually engaged in it. (Opposition cheers.) Large-scale operations on a scientific basis had already been tried, with the result that on a farm of 2,300 acres there was an average loss of £8,200 a year, or £14 per acre. The production of the bill at the present moment showed that the Government were indifferent to the real difficulties of agriculture, and were also blind to the necessity of cutting down expenditure in every possible direction. He concluded by moving the rejection of the bill.

"A FRAUD AND A DELUSION."

Sir Joseph Lamb, who is a Governor of the Harper Adams Agricultural College, ventured the opinion that the bill was both a fraud and a delusion. It could do nothing to relieve the present disastrous condition of agriculture. The bill was a little bit of "Socialism in our time." (Laughter.)

Mr. Granville, a Liberal, said that the bill would certainly not enable the Government to carry out its pledge to "make farming pay."

Mr. A. N. Skelton, Conservative member for Perth and Kinross, created a mild sensation by announcing that, unlike most of his colleagues, he did not propose to vote against the second reading of the bill. He hoped, however, that the Minister would drop Clause 1 (which deals with large-scale farming), as it seemed to him that it would be a mere waste of money.

Mr. T. Johnston, replying to the discussion, said that it ought to be made quite plain that the present bill was only a part of the Government's agricultural policy. A subsequent measure would deal with the problems of marketing and cereal production. The immediate question was whether there was an economic possibility of greater employment on the soil of the country. They were facing changes in agriculture which could not possibly be met by fiscal devices, and these changes were due to developments in industry, over which agriculturists had no control. There was less demand for oats, owing to the coming of mechanical traction and the driving out of the cart horse and the pit pony. There was, however, plenty of scope for dairy produce, and there was no reason why, for instance, British activity, British genius, and the British hen—(laughter)—should not produce the millions of eggs we at present imported from foreign countries.

The debate was adjourned until Tuesday.

The House, before adjourning, agreed to the money resolution of the Education (School Attendance) Bill.

BERMALINE—ACCEPT NO OTHER.—(Advt.)

BRITISH ROAD TRAFFIC ACT.

QUESTIONS FOR DRIVERS.

MOBILE POLICE UNITS TO BE FORMED.

Mr. Herbert Morrison, Minister of Transport, explained to a Press Association reporter, in an interview last night, the final arrangements which have been made for bringing into operation the various sections of the Road Traffic Act. The dates upon which the more important provisions of the Act will take effect for the first time are as follows:—

December 1st—New driving licences to be subject to declaration of physical fitness, etc.; new provisions regarding careless and dangerous driving, first stage of public service vehicles provisions.

January 1st, 1931—Abolition of the speed limit, compulsory insurance against third party risks, second stage of public service vehicles provisions.

April 1—New licensing system for public service vehicles comes into full operation.

MOBILE POLICE UNITS.

Mr. Morrison said that regarding the date for the abolition of the speed limit "This will allow police authorities more time for the organisation of the mobile police units, towards the cost of which assistance is to be given from the Road Fund for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the Act, particularly in relation to dangerous and careless driving. Provision is being made for about 1,000 police vehicles, and about a third of these will be motor cars.

"The operation of Section 19 of the Act, which deals with the maximum number of hours which may be worked by the drivers of locomotives, public service vehicles, motor tractors, and goods-carrying vehicles, will be deferred until 1st February next. Representations have been made both by employers and organised labour to the effect that, if an earlier date were decided upon, insufficient time would be available for representations to be made to the Minister by joint industrial councils and similar organisations for modifications of the provisions of the section in particular cases.

"Under the provisions of the Act, a person under sixteen years of age in possession of a motor cycle driving licence will not be allowed to drive a motor cycle after 30th November unless he satisfies the licensing authority that he was in the habit of driving a motor cycle for the six months prior to 1st January, 1930, in which case he must surrender his old licence on the 1st December and obtain a new licence under the new Act.

"Similarly a person under twenty-one years of age will not be allowed to drive a locomotive or tractor, or heavy motor car, unless he satisfies the licensing authority that he was in the habit of driving a motor vehicle of that class for the six months prior to the 1st January, 1930, and, in this case also, he must surrender his old licence and obtain licence under the new Act.

PHYSICAL FITNESS.

"Section C of the new declaration form is an entirely new departure, being a declaration as to the physical fitness of the applicant. Three specific questions have to be answered.

The first question is—"Do you suffer from epilepsy or sudden attacks of disabling giddiness or fainting?" An applicant who answers "yes" to this question is debarred from obtaining a licence.

The second question is—"Are you able to read at a distance of twenty-five yards in good daylight with glasses, if worn, a motor car number plate containing six letters and figures?" An applicant who answers "no" to this question is also debarred from obtaining a licence.

The third question is—"Have you lost either hand or foot, or are you suffering from any defect in movement, control or muscular power of either arm or leg; if so, give particulars." If the answer to this question is "yes," and the applicant has not during the past six months been in the habit of driving a motor vehicle he may sign Section D of the application form, which is a claim to be subjected to a driving test.

If, however, the applicant who answers "Yes" to Question 3 has been in the habit for the previous six months of driving a motor vehicle, and has done so without danger, he can sign Declaration E to that effect, and under the provisions of the Act he will be entitled to a licence without being subjected to a driving test.

In addition to the three specific questions already referred to the applicant for a driving licence must declare that he is not suffering from any other disease or disability which would be likely to cause the driving by him of a motor vehicle to be a source of danger to the public.

The complete change over from the present system to the new one is fixed for April 1.

THE CONFERENCE FAILURE.

NO ACCEPTABLE POLICY.

MR. AMERY'S OPINION.

Mr. L. S. Amery, speaking at Birmingham last night, said:—Mr. Bennett gave us a great lead, and every one of the great statesmen of the Dominions echoed what he said. Now that the Conference is closing, and closing, I am sorry to say, in failure on essentials, we are entitled to voice our regrets that this Government has proved incapable, even in the situation as critical as that with which we are confronted to-day, of rising above old prejudices and partisan considerations, and finding, at any rate, some method to meet the wishes of those who want to help us.

We are told that on the issue of tariff preferences there is a flat refusal, but I am afraid that it is only too clear that on the so-called alternatives there has been no real effort to think out and present to the Dominions anything in the nature of a policy which can be accepted. I am afraid that they are going away impressed with the belief that the Government of this country has not meant business, and that they have been invited over in something not far short of false pretences.

"UNWILLING TO DO BUSINESS."

SIR JAMES PARR AND THE PRIME MINISTER.

Disappointment with the Imperial Conference was expressed by Sir James Parr, ex-High Commissioner for New Zealand, who addressed members of the Ulster Association in London yesterday.

In New Zealand, he said, their problem was to find markets for their foodstuffs, and they were all very hopeful and desirous that a great bargain might be evolved within the Conference by which they would find a sheltered market, and preference for their goods, in return for the finding of employment for tens of thousands now on the dole, and the giving of orders for more motor cars, electrical equipment, machinery, and many other classes of manufactured goods.

Such a bargain, he continued, apparently is not going to be made. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald is unwilling to do business. It is a sad thing and a grave thing, and a decision which, in my humble judgment, is fraught with very grave consequences to us all. Let us hope and pray that this is not the end of it—that another Imperial Conference may come about under more favourable auspices, and in a better and more sane atmosphere.

CRIMINAL LAW COMMITTEE

The Free State Criminal Law Amendment Committee held its tenth sitting yesterday, when evidence was taken from the Reverend M. Fitzpatrick, C.C., St. Michael's, Limerick.

STOCKS CLOSE FIRM.

REUTER'S TELEGRAM.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

A firm tone prevailed at the opening, and after the absorption of an early flurry of selling yesterday, the advance was resumed, and gains ranging from 1 to 7 points were registered, with American Smelting, Allied Chemical, Union Pacific, and Western Union Telegraph rising from 4 to 7 points. Copper issues were conspicuously strong, the improvement being attributed to the stiffening in the price of the commodity. Short covering became heavy as the bear retreat was accelerated by various unfounded rumours, including a revival of the report that the Stock Exchange authorities were considering punitive measures against certain bears. A widely-circulated report that the Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank was planning a constructive statement was also denied. French metallurgical interests complained that American producers were withholding copper to force up prices. Trade circles, however, state that 14 cents could be viewed as reasonable here. The Chicago and North-Western Railroad Company has declared a dividend of 20 cents, making the total for 1930 four dollars, against the previous annual dividend of five dollars. In final dealings profit-taking reduced the extreme gains of 2 to 9 points, but the closing was firm. Anaconda Copper, General Electric, Houston Oil, American Tobacco "B," Kennecott Copper, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Consolidated Gas, North American, Allis Chalmers, and Columbia Carbon advanced from 1 to 4 points. Allied Chemical gained 5, and Union Pacific 7 points, while Fox Film, Westinghouse Electric, and Case Threshing Machine declined from 1 to 2 points. Government Bonds steady; Railroad Bonds irregular. The day's sales totalled 3,446,000 shares.

Money on call closed steady at 2 per cent. bid, and 2½ per cent. asked. All business during the day was concluded at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper was quoted at from 2¾ per cent. to 3 per cent. Sterling exchange easier. Silver ⅛c. up at 36⅛.

CHARGE AGAINST COUNCILLORS.

THREE RETURNED FOR TRIAL.

In the Clonmel Courthouse yesterday, before District Justice Troy, Messrs. J. O'Dwyer, Morrissey, P. Morris and John Cronin, County Councillors, were charged that, between January 1, 1930, and September 1, 1930, being members of the South Tipperary County Council, and appointed by that body to serve on the Board of Health, they did corruptly receive, and agree to receive, a gift, fee or reward from Andrew Ryan, Farnaclara, as an inducement to vote for Richard Ryan in respect of the letting of a labourer's cottage, the letting of which concerned the Council.

Defendants were further charged with conspiracy.

Mr. F. Connor, State Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution.

Mr. J. G. Skinner, solicitor, appeared for Morrissey, Cronin and Morris, and Mr. H. Shannon, solicitor, for O'Dwyer.

The principal witness was an old man, Andrew Ryan, a labourer, residing at Farnaclara. He said that his son, Richard, a labourer, was seeking the tenancy of a cottage at Rathnaneem, and sent in an application in February. Meeting O'Dwyer, one of the defendants, he asked him to vote for his son, and that his son would be able to give him (witness) money for it. With Thomas Burke and Dwyer (defendant) witness went to Cashel. Dwyer said that there were other applications for the cottage, including a man named Coffey, but he would not vote for him, as he was a tradesman. They drove to Clonmel, and to Cronin's house, and Dwyer had a private conversation with Cronin, and then asked witness: "Would you and your son be able to give me and Cronin £30 for this cottage?" Witness said that it was too much, as his son was married, and had six children, and his wife was in hospital. Asked by Dwyer what he could give, witness said £20. Dwyer said that this would not do. Cronin said that he might be a poor man, and not have any more, and if he gave £20 they would get the cottage for his son. He would wire next morning to Morrissey, Morris and Sullivan, and would also get Pat McGrath.

Some time later Dwyer called witness, and told him to follow him to Clonmel, as Cronin wanted to see him. He went with Dwyer, and the next morning Cronin said that he had arranged to go and see Morris and Sullivan. Morrissey then joined them, and they went out and had five drinks. Witness paid for the drinks. Cronin asked Morrissey to vote for Ryan getting the cottage, and he said that he would. They also met Patrick McGrath, who promised Morrissey to vote for Ryan. Morris at his own place also gave a similar promise. On the trip witness paid for all the drink, the motor and a dinner. He also gave £1 to Dwyer.

Before the meeting of the Board, at which the letting was made, witness met Dwyer and Morrissey. The latter had a drink at witness's expense. He asked Dwyer did he think Morrissey would vote for his son, and Dwyer said, "Follow him out and give him £1, and ask him." Witness did as directed, and gave Morrissey the £1. During the meeting Morrissey left the room, and witness asked him did he vote, and he said "No." He was not going to vote at all that day. Witness asked for the return of his £1. Morrissey handed back the note. Before the vote for the cottage Dwyer came in to witness and said that he wanted money for Morrissey, and witness gave him £5. O'Dwyer also told him that "old Morrissey renaged them." He went back to the Boardroom, and, returning soon, asked for £2, saying, "I want it for Sullivan." He came out again, and asked for witness's son to sign for the cottage. Witness handed £20 in notes to Cronin, and Cronin handed some of the notes to Dwyer.

Witness heard subsequently that a motion was in by a man named Burke to rescind the letting to Ryan and give it to Coffey. The motion was passed, and Coffey got the cottage.

Witness next consulted his solicitor, Mr. Frewen, and got a communication from Richard Quinlan, an attendant at the Clonmel Mental Hospital. He got back £22 of the money.

Thomas Heafy deposed that he attended the Board of Health meeting at which cottage-letting was taking place, and saw O'Dwyer come out of the meeting and say to Ryan and his son: "Morrissey has given us the slip, but I have Pat Morris for a fiver." He saw no money passing.

Richard Ryan then gave evidence.

Mr. Skinner—Do you know you are a member of this conspiracy and liable?—No.

Did you see Morris at Tobin's public-house?—Yes, the day I won the cottage he was with other members of the Board there.

Mr. Shannon—As Mr. Skinner says you are a member of the conspiracy, were you ever told you might be prosecuted?—No.

Did you ever give O'Dwyer money?—No. He never asked me for it. I never saw my father give him any.

Was it because your father helped O'Dwyer in his election that he promised to help in getting the cottage?—Yes.

To Mr. O'Connor—O'Dwyer never asked me for money except on the day I got the cottage, when he asked for £5 for Morris.

Sergeant Corcoran, Tipperary, said that when he arrested the four defendants and charged them, Dwyer said: "I will make no statement." Morris said: "I know nothing about it." Cronin said: "I will be able to answer that," and Morrissey said: "I deny the charge."

Andrew Ryan, recalled, was examined by Mr. Skinner—Did you know you were committing an offence in doing this about the cottage?—No, because as far as I know, for ten or fifteen years no cottage is got without paying for it to the County Council. (Laughter.)

After further evidence,

Justice Troy said that he was satisfied that there was no evidence against Morris, and refused informations against him. He considered that there was a prima facie case against O'Dwyer, Morrissey, and Cronin, and returned them for trial to the Circuit Court. Bail was accepted.

"Good-morning, Miss Lemur—you look very well!
I always considered you frail.
But how you've improved since I last rang your bell!
Why, you've doubled the length of your tail!"

"Ha! Ha! Mr. Monkey, you're very amusing!
I fear it has not grown a section.
But this wonderful MANSION POLISH we're using
Has marvellous powers of reflection!"

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

ONE WHO REALLY ENJOYED.

PINNACLE WINS ON STAMINA.

GALLANDO BEST IN A BIG FIELD.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

DERBY, Thursday Night.

One of the few people who, I imagine, really enjoyed the racing here this afternoon was the individual who coupled Stick Out and Cloud Nymph in the daily totalisator double, and for his half sovereign scooped the pool, which amounted to £700 13s., which was not a bad day's work. Stick Out, a daughter of Simon Square, was a 100 to 7 chance in the Chatsworth Plate, who was always holding an advantage throughout the last two furlongs, and finally won by a neck and a length from Golden Earl and Knight of the Vale.

The winner belongs to Mr. R. L. V. Sherwood, who gave up training at St. Gatien House a few seasons ago in order to have more time to devote to his stud farm at Chieveley. Stick Out is trained for him by Beedle, who was for many years his headman, and took over the stable on his retirement.

Cloud Nymph is a six-year-old daughter of Argosy, who has generally shown her best form on the Derby course, and now won the Allestree Welter Handicap for the second year in succession. She was a 100 to 8 chance, and Childs brought her with one of his well-timed runs to beat Merry Miller and the favourite, Saugor, by half a length and a length.

GOOD PERFORMANCE OF PINNACLE.

Mrs. Chester Beatty, who is going to devote more of her attention in future to racing in Egypt, won the Osmaston Nursery with Pinnacle, a son of Gainsborough, who stayed on too well for the others, and beat Mink and Boy Painter by three-parts of a length and half a length. Boy Painter was a strong favourite, but never looked like winning.

This third on him was the best that Gordon Richards could accomplish during the afternoon, while Fox also had to be content with a single third on Knight of the Vale. Neither of the leading jockeys seems to be in any sort of luck just now, but Fox is in so strong a position that he need not worry so long as his rival is not riding any winners.

There was a huge field for the Elvaston Castle Selling Plate. Gallando, a filly by Knockando, whom Vasey trains, won all the way, and had a two lengths' advantage at the finish from the Sweet Rocket filly.

Mr. Sidney Beer won the other selling race with his French-bred three-year-old, Maugre, who beat Lady Haine by three lengths. There was more bidding for these winners than there has been for any successful platers during the week. Gallando was bought in for 280 guineas and Maugre for 260 guineas.

SELECTIONS.

The big event of the week is the Derby Cup here to-morrow. The winner of the Irish St. Leger and the Irish Cambridgeshire, Sol de Terre, who had been sent from Ireland to run, was found to be lame when he arrived at Derby, so he was sent off last night to Newmarket, where Captain Boyd-Rochfort will train him for his engagements next season. Sir Joshua won this race last year, and, with 6lb. more to carry, has a fair chance of winning again to-morrow.

Baytown, who will be running his last race, is much fancied, and with the going to suit him, he is likely to do well. Le Voleur, from a most favourable mark in the handicap, won the Newbury Autumn Handicap in a common canter. He is, of course, much worse handicapped here, but, all the same, I expect him to do well.

Servus is a very consistent performer, and on the book has the beating of Sir Joshua. Noble Star was unfortunate in the Liverpool Cup, but may do better here. The race may rest between Sir Joshua, Baytown and LE VOLEUR, and I give the last-named preference.

The Friary Nursery may be won by CAREFUL SAILOR, and the Quarndon Maiden Plate by TREMENDOUS.

GALTEE MORE.

SPORTING GOSSIP

Cloud Nymph for the Stud.

Mr. Norman Field's six-year-old mare Cloud Nymph ran her last race, when winning the Allestree Welter Handicap for the second year in succession at Derby yesterday. She is to be retired to the stud.

Promising Hurdler Destroyed.

Midnight Sun, a promising young hurdler, the property of Captain J. W. Bridges, injured himself so badly while contesting the Cowley Maiden Hurdle Race at Cheltenham yesterday that he had to be destroyed.

S. Donoghue Goes Abroad.

Stephen Donoghue, the well-known jockey, has left Dartmouth on the s.s. Carmania for Jamaica. He is accompanied by his wife, and will visit Cuba, Florida and New York. Donoghue has not been able to ride since his mount Pamplona fell at Nottingham on August 11, causing him to break a leg. He has been riding as first jockey to Sir Victor Sassoon, who has engaged him again for next season. It is on Sir Victor's advice that Donoghue has decided to take the trip. He is expected back in England some time in February. He recently celebrated his forty-sixth birthday.

J. Sirett Retained.

J. Sirett will again ride as first jockey for Major Molony's stable next season.

Horse's Number Withdrawn.

La Fontaine was given as a runner for the Elvaston Castle Selling Plate at Derby yesterday, with M. Wing riding, but the colt was found to be lame, and his number was withdrawn.

£700 for Ten Shillings.

Only one backer coupled Stick Out and Cloud Nymph, the winners of the races which comprised the "tote" daily double at Derby yesterday. He thus scooped the pool, receiving £700 13s. for his 10s. investment.

Horses Supported in the North.

Mint Master and Redeswood were backed in the North of England yesterday for the Manchester November Handicap. Redeswood was also supported earlier in the week. The best prices have also been snapped up about them.

November Handicap Scratching.

Break of Day was struck out of the Manchester November Handicap at 9 a.m. yesterday.

DERBY TO-DAY: PROBABLE STARTERS AND BETTING.

SERVUS FOR THE CUP

SCARLET FLY'S GOOD CHANCE.

The Derby Cup, which is the centrepiece of this afternoon's concluding programme of the Derby autumn fixture, is always one of the most open big betting races of the last month of the season, and this year's race is no exception. Sir Joshua, who won the race last year, is again fancied, but as he is now in his tenth year it is doubtful if he will repeat his success of twelve months ago, more especially as he will be carrying top weight of 9st. It must be admitted in his favour, however, that he was third in the Newbury Autumn Handicap last time out, and here he will be meeting Le Voleur, the winner of that race, on 16lb. better terms. On the other hand, Le Voleur has improved, and he won with so much in hand that it is small wonder that his connections have decided to give him another opportunity of adding to his Berkshire success.

Baytown was not disgraced in the Cesarewitch, and this is about his best distance. As an each-way proposition he seems about as good a bet as there is in the race. Oletta and Poor Man, from S. Darling's stable, have been well sharpened up in recent fast work at Newmarket, but the best from headquarters should be Servus, who represents Lord Derby in preference to Richborough. In recommending Servus I am basing my calculations on his consistent form. In eight outings this season he has won three races and has been placed in four of the others. The chief danger to Servus should be Alight, who is very temptingly handicapped with only 7st.

The Chaddesden Handicap will be contested by nearly twenty useful sprinters, and, anticipating the absence of Maryland Point and Stalactite, I take sides with Scarlet Fly and Africorn. The latter missed an easy race earlier in the week specially for this. He was only narrowly beaten by Marzipan at Thirsk after a good win at Doncaster. I think that he holds a reasonable chance in what is certainly a very tricky handicap. On the score of favourable handicapping, however, choice falls on Scarlet Fly.

The Quarndon Maiden Plate is left to Tremendous, although the indications are that the three-year-old Charger will be backed down to favouritism.

ECLIPSE.

FUTURE OF FAMOUS WHITNEY STABLE.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

The future of the late Mr. Harry Payne Whitney's famous racing stable, which has won about £800,000 in twenty-five years, is assured by the announcement that the well-known light blue and brown colours will henceforth be seen on the American Turf under the name of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of the multi-millionaire sportsman. Last year the late Mr. Whitney headed the list of winning owners in New York State, with winnings amounting to over £72,000.

HUNTING.

DUHALLOW HOUNDS.

Meeting at Glanworth on Thursday, November 6th, these Hounds moved on to draw Dunmahon. Finding here, they hunted in covert for some time before their fox got to ground under one of the overhanging pieces of rock. They then went on to Ballyclough, and hounds were hardly in covert before they spoke, and, bursting on past the house, they ran on up to Lismount and into Ballinrush. Crossing to the other side of the glen the fox made several efforts to cross the main road, and, finally succeeding, went on to Glanseskin, where he got to ground. Ballinacarriga was blank, but Corn Hill held a fox, which went away immediately and ran a small left-handed ring towards Ballinahoun before settling down to make straight for Johnstown, where he got to ground in a quarry.

There was a large field out on Saturday at Buttevant. Regan's Rock supplied the first fox, which, after leaving at the bottom end, only went half a dozen fields before returning back into covert. The second time, however, he was bolder, and, heading in the same direction, ran past Velvetstown, then bore right-handed by Ballyhoura and up the mountain, as though for Glenmore. Changing his mind, he turned back to Ballavonear, where hounds marked him to ground above the glen. Lough Eagle was the next draw, and a brace were soon on foot. Hustling one of these up and down the glen for a few minutes he soon had to leave, and hounds hunted on towards Knockanaad, bearing left-handed past Rossagh to Kilcoleman. Here hounds changed foxes, and ran fast back to Lough Eagle, and eventually marked their fox to ground in a bank three fields from the covert. Knockaneed was then drawn, but the foxes were of the stay-at-home variety, and beyond just having a glance outside the covert occasionally, resolutely refused to leave, and, after over an hour's hunting, had to be left, as it was now late.

From the meet at Fort Grady on Monday, November 10th, hounds had a good day in the woods. Foxes were plentiful, but scent very poor. Clonmeen, drawn late in the afternoon, was unfortunately blank as was the Park. Kilcanway, however, as usual, held. Hounds hunted back to Carrig Glen, on through the Park to Carrigoon, and doubled straight back to the Park and glen, and on to Kilcanway, where the fox finally defeated them. Finding in Killurah Glen, they soon marked their fox to ground in a rabbit-hole. Quickly dug out and let go above the glen, and hounds ran fast to Kilcanway and on to Carrig, where they hunted for the best part of an hour.

FERMANAGH HARRIERS.

OPENING MEET.

These hounds held their opening meet in fine weather on Wednesday last. According to custom, the venue was Captain Doyle's, of Dunbar. The "cap" was taken for Earl Haig's Fund, and a substantial amount collected. On moving to the old racecourse of Banagher a hare was quickly put up, and a nice run of about twenty minutes ensued over a "trappy" country. Later on a hare got up subsequently, but, owing to bad scent, nothing came of it. [illegible] good gallop to Ballygonnell [illegible] and this finished. Among those present were:—The Master, Mrs. Verschoyle; Capt. Verschoyle, Mr. E. McNulty, Mr. [illegible] secretary; Mr. Rutherford, Miss Atteridge, [illegible] Traill, Mr. Kelly, Mr. J. Dredger has been disqualified for the Petrol Handicap Hurdle Race at Hexham on October 16. After Dredger had won the race by half a length, Mr. Townend, the owner of Peardrop, who finished second, objected to Dredger on the ground of having run at an unauthorised meeting. The local Stewards decided that the objection had not been sustained by reason of insufficient evidence, but the Stewards of the National Hunt Committee have upheld Mr. Townend's appeal against the decision of the local Stewards, and have awarded the race to Peardrop. They have cautioned Mr Bradshaw, the owner of Dredger. The Stewards of the National Hunt Committee have further disqualified Dredger in the following races on the ground that the horse was an unqualified animal under Rule I. (2)—viz.: Sedgefield, May 24, the Eden Novices' Steeplechase (second); Sedgefield, October 29, Shotton Steeplechase (second). Stolen Prince, originally placed third in the Eden Novices' Steeplechase, and Chance, originally placed third in the Shotton Steeplechase, become second in their respective races.

MESSRS. GOFF'S SALE.

MESOPOTAMIA FETCHES 600 GUINEAS.

Over 120 lots were submitted to auction at Messrs. Goff's sale at Lower Mount street yesterday, and in most instances there was brisk bidding for the various horses offered. The sale, which commenced at 2 o'clock, did not conclude until close on 6 o'clock, and the great majority of the lots were sold. The Brownstown stable horses commanded chief attention, the top price of 600 guineas being paid for one of the draft—namely, Mesopotamia—who was purchased by the English trainer, Mr. G. N. Bennett. Mesopotamia is a two-year-old by Allenby—Sailor's Gift, and won the Lawn Plate at the Leopardstown Second August meeting. Mr. Bennett also purchased Spirituelle, another two-year-old, from the same draft, and Craftsman, the former fetching 200 guineas and the latter 180 guineas. Considering that the market for the sale of bloodstock has been so weak in other parts, the sale all-round must be regarded as satisfactory. Prices and purchasers :—

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL IN PARIS.

An enormous crowd saw the Arsenal football team beat the Racing Club de France by 7 goals to 2 at the Colombes Stadium, in Paris. The French team are the winners of the French Football Cup. This photograph shows the two teams lined up before the monument to Ives du Maboir, the famous French athlete, on which they laid a wreath before the match.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

"THE FOUR" TO GO TO BELFAST.

AGAINST ADVICE OF CLUB.

RIGHTS OF AMATEURS.

At an adjourned meeting of the Management Committee of the Bohemian Football Club, held at Dalymount Park last night, the crux brought about by the selection of four players of the club to play for Ireland in the Amateur match against England to-morrow at Belfast was again under consideration. The following official statement was issued :—

"The following resolution adopted by the Management Committee of the Bohemian Football Club: 'that the Committee of the Bohemian Football Club, in loyalty to the Football Association of the Irish Free State, support the F.A.I.F.S., and advise our players to abide by their ruling,' was communicated to Messrs. Bermingham, Horlacher and Morton.

"The Committee consulted with the players at length, and they retired from the meeting to consider their decision. They returned and informed the Committee that they had decided to fulfil their obligations to play in Belfast."

COMPLICATED SITUATION.

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

The position created by the selection of the four Bohemian players to play in the Irish Amateur team against England at Belfast to-morrow, and the decision of the Emergency Committee of the Football Association of the Irish Free State prohibiting three of them from taking part in the match, has become even more complicated during the last twenty-four hours.

Yesterday it was announced that the Secretary of the Irish Football Association had that morning received the resolution passed by the F.A.I.F.S., and that a letter had also been received by him from A. Morton, J. Bermingham and A. Horlacher stating that they would play.

In that way the storm centre, as it were, shifted to Dalymount Park. The news published early in the day that the players had disregarded the request of their Committee to abide by a resolution, which set out that the Committee had decided to remain loyal to the F.A.I.F.S. and requesting the players to abide by it, caused considerable surprise.

Discussing the matter yesterday with a prominent officer of the Bohemian Club I gathered that the committee of the club did not quite know where they were,and if what he said occurred prior to and after the selection of the players did occur, one can well believe that the Committee found themselves in an exceedingly awkward position, even before last night's meeting, faced, as they were, with the alternative of standing by the players whom they had congratulated on their selection or virtually turning them down.

RIGHTS OF AMATEURS.

As to the right of the Emergency Committee and the F.A.I.F.S. to prohibit the three players from playing opinions at Dalymount Park are sharply divided. The President, Mr. T. Greene, who is a solicitor practising in Dublin, holds that the Emergency Committee had not the power to take the decision they did where amateurs are concerned, and he has gone to considerable lengths to state the case for the amateur footballer. And it is significant that the view of the Football Association (England) is "that amateurs can play where they like."

Others highly placed in the councils of the club side with Mr. Greene that Rule 24 of the F.A.I.F.S. does not apply to amateurs, that it expressly states it is not intended to apply to amateurs. On the other hand, it is argued, in support of the Emergency Committee's action, that Rule 25 binds even amateurs by decisions arrived at in certain circumstances, while the legal mind contends that such special circumstances do not exist in this case.

Again, while others are of the opinion that the Selection Committee of the I.F.A. chose the players in a spirit of good will and amity towards the F.A.I.F.S., their action is regarded in football circles in Dublin as an attempt to ensnare the local Association into an acceptance of the claim of the I.F.A. that they have the right to call on players from all parts of the country, and to arrange the International matches.

The players have been prohibited from taking part in the match; if they play they will probably be suspended. The Bohemian Club has declared its loyalty to the F.A. I.F.S., and so the parties who are now primarily concerned are the players themselves.

LINDRUM V. McCONACHY.

"ALL IN" WRESTLING.

NEW SPORT INTRODUCED TO ENGLAND.

A curious sport has come to England. It is called "all in" wrestling, and a Russian, a Serb, an Englishman and a Welshman showed that it is certainly an improvement upon the ordinary catch-as-catch-can type of wrestling at the London Sports Club last night. "All in" wrestling is catch-as-catch-can added to ju jitsu. The rounds, of which three comprise a match, are of ten minutes each. Points are awarded if neither wrestler is thrown within that time, and a man is allowed three seconds to recover when his shoulders have been firmly forced to the canvas. If he cannot escape within three seconds then his opponent is awarded the fall.

There were two exhibition contests. Athol Oakley, who captained the British team at the International meeting in Brussels, beat "Bulldog" Bill Garnon, the Welshman, in 9 mins. 39 secs., and George Zobanski, the Russian champion, demonstrated all sorts of holds and tricks without being able to throw the champion of Serbia, George Murdock.

BOXING.

NIPPER McFARLANE DEFEATS JACKY QUINN.

Last night at the Liverpool Stadium in the principal fifteen-rounder Alf Howard (Liverpool) outpointed Harry Mason (Leeds). In a supporting fifteen-rounder, Jacky Quinn, Irish fly-weight champion, met Nipper McFarlane, Bolton. The latter retained his unbeaten record by a point's decision. Both lads put up an excellent exhibition of scientific boxing, both using double-handed punches with great accuracy. Quinn displayed wonderful stamina for an 8st boxer.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN HESITANT.

MIXED CHANGES IN INDUSTRIALS.

The Funds had all the appearance yesterday of looking down from the heights they have reached, and casting an eye at the profits which have accrued during the uninterrupted rise. A slight reaction will do no harm. Profit-taking is good, not only for the sellers, but for the market. National Loans will not be sold by the genuine investor. Speculative movements may affect the prices slightly on the eve of an account. Land Bonds and Agricultural Credit Bonds are not likely to go out of favour. British Funds for the moment are marking time until the French Exchange trouble is out of the way.

Coming up to the dividend time, Bank shares are naturally favoured, and there is no reason to suppose that these institutions have not had a profitable six months.

A feature yesterday was the jump of 6¼ in Dublin Distillers Debentures, on which six months' dividend is nearly due. Guinness units were easier. Rails merely marked time. Business in Industrials made a mixed showing. Unilevers and Tobaccos improved, and so did Courtaulds, but Coats were lower, and "Cottons" fell nearly two shillings.

Shells were a strong spot following the rise in London, and closed half-a-crown better, after being higher. Bolands Debentures were buyers, and Kapp and Peterson Ordinary came to business at 5s., a price bid for some weeks.

LONDON FIRM.

INTERNATIONALS ACTIVE.

Several factors contributed to the return of strength manifest in the London Stock Markets yesterday. In the first place, much satisfaction was derived from the maintenance of both the Royal Dutch and Shell dividends, and, as a consequence, Oil Shares advanced smartly in a number of directions. There was, however, some reaction later in the day. Other helpful factors were the rise in metal quotations, the settlement of the diamond sales agreement, and the strong tone evident in New York at the close overnight. Trading generally was on an appreciably wider scale, the international descriptions especially attracting good support, and at the close price movements, with a few minor exceptions, were in the upward direction, many of them being of quite substantial amounts.

British Funds, although by no means actively supported, continued to display a firm appearance, and further advances were scored, War Loan Fives gaining ¼ to 102½, the 3½ per cent. Conversion Loan and Local Loans rising ½ each, and Consols 2½ per cent. and 4 per cent. each finishing ¼ firmer. There was not a great deal going on among Foreign Government Stocks, and, while Chinese issues strengthened in a number of instances, Peruvian Corps. made an easier showing. Extremely quiet conditions characterised Home Rails, the tendency being to await news from the conference, and for the most part the overnight values were repeated. Colonial and Foreign Rails, on the other hand, were supported. "Can-Pacs" marked a further smart advance, and San Paulo Ord. were a good market, but otherwise little material change was shown.

Business was on a considerably wider scale in the Industrial sections, and, though here and there dull spots were noticeable, the general trend of values was in favour of holders. Elsewhere, Rubber Shares kept firm with the sustained strength of the commodity, whilst Mining issues generally displayed a firm front.

Nickels were a good market in the late "Street" dealings, the final quote of 20⅜ leaving them 1½ up on balance. Hydro Electrics gained a similar amount at 26⅜, and Radio Corporations recovered 2 to 15¼.

The Record leaders reflected American advices. Columbia Graphophones rose 1/16 to 2⅜ and Gramophones (H.M.V.) 1/16 to 2 3/16.

Cables and Wireless Stocks trended upward, the Preference closing at 73½ and the "B" Ord. at 13½.

Moderate support was forthcoming for Engineering descriptions. Thornycrofts rallied 1/16 to 1 11/16, with buyers about for Guest Keens at 25.

Motor shares were slightly harder, but Austins were on the dull side.

Electric Supply shares were fairly well maintained, but the Equipments moved irregularly. Associateds and General Electric further improved.

The Tobacco leaders recorded improvement. "Imps." recovered to 4 11/16 and "Bats." to 5⅛.

Brewery issues were inclined to sag. Barclays receded to 26s. 6d., Guinness to 106s. 3d., Ind. Coope to 63s., and Watney Defd. to 58s. 3d.

Newspaper shares were brighter under the lead of Daily Mail Trust, which advanced 1/16 to 2½ on the dividend announcement.

Rayons and Textiles found fresh supporters. American Celanese Common gained ⅛ at 3⅜, and Canadian Celanese a similar fraction at 2⅜, with Courtaulds closing 1/16 better at 2 5/16. British Celanese Ord. remained around 9s. 6d., the Second Preference closing steady at 7s. 6d.

Among Textiles, Fine Spinners rallied to 20s. 3d., J. and P. Coats to 59s. 9d., and Bleachers to 18s. 9d.

The Margarine issues again received support, although they once more left off slightly below the best at 2 3/16 and 2¼ respectively for Unilever and Unilever N.V. The new Ords. were finally 1s. higher at 28s., after 28s. 6d. The volume of trading in this direction remained small.

National Bank of India recorded further improvement of ¼ at 44¼. Conversely Union of Australia lost that much to 8¼. Commercial Unions were dealt in on a good scale around 2¾, and Sun Insurance in the neighbourhood of 81s.

P. and O. Defd. advanced a few pence to 42s. 3d., but Cunards reacted to 16s. 6d.

A welcome feature in the Miscellaneous section was a rally in Kreuger and Toll which were bought up to 23½, and finished with a gain of ⅜ at 23⅜. Swedish Match recovered 1/16 to 13 9/16. Imperial Chemicals were picked up in the later dealings, and closed a few pence better at 20s. 6d. United Molasses strengthened to 20s. 9d. British Oil and Cake at 28s. 9d., Dunlops at 12s., and Wallpaper Defd. at 39s. 3d. all hardened on balance.

OIL SHARES UNCERTAIN.

Dealings in Oil shares yesterday were less animated than in the earlier days of the week, and although a satisfactory tendency prevailed for the greater part, price movements finally recorded were of an irregular character. Chief interest centred on members of the Royal Dutch Shell group. Firmness was displayed by these shares right from the start, and when it was known that the Royal Dutch was again paying 10 p.c. less tax and the "Shell" 10 p.c. tax free, both shares were bid for at advancing prices. In neither case, however, was the best price held, a setback taking place in the afternoon as a result of selling from Paris, it being reported that a small failure had occurred in that centre. Nevertheless, they both registered advances as a result of the day's business. Elsewhere dullness developed in Anglo-Persians and Burmahs, which were offered rather freely; while "bear" selling was also in progress, and both finished lower. Firmness was displayed by the Eagle issues, and Canadians improved to 8s. and Mexicans to 7s. 9d. In the Venezuelan group, V.O.C. were a better market, finishing 1/16 up. Among Trinidad issues, the recovery in Leaseholds continued. Apex, however, lost the turn.

RUBBER SHARES BETTER.

Interest remained on a rather quiet scale in the Rubber Share Market, but with commodity values well maintained the tendency in the share section was a shade firmer. In the raw material market spot and November sold 4⅜d. per pound; December went back to 4⅜d., after 4 7/16d. per pound, and January to March closed at 4½d. after 4 9/16d. per pound.

AMERICAN COPPER CURTAILMENT PLAN.

DRASTIC EFFECT ON NEW YORK MARKET.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

NEW YORK, Thursday.

As a sequel to the copper production curtailment scheme heralded on Wall street yesterday, copper consumers here to-day advanced their bids for the metal to 10½ cents, ½ cent above the domestic level of 10 cents spot established yesterday, following on a few weeks' period during which copper had sold for 9½. Bidding by consumers at first was 10¼ cents. Later in the day they raised their bids another ¼ to 10½.

Traders report that consumers were able to obtain little or no metal even at the increased price.

It is stated by the Attorney-General in Washington that producers of copper, zinc and other minerals have not yet approached him to get an opinion as to whether the production of these articles could be curtailed in view of the Anti-Trust laws. He says that he cannot express an opinion until the matter has been officially brought to his attention.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET.

Although business in the street last evening was not very extensive, the general tendency was firm, and one or two of the leading trans-Atlantic favourites changed hands with some freedom. Outstanding were Radios, which were at one time offered down to 14, but later met with bidding, and rose to 15, as compared with their close of the "House" level of 14¼. International Nickels were also in demand, but after rising to 20½ reacted to 19¾, and finally closed at 20¼ bid. Brazilian Tractions, after some fluctuation, remained at 27¼. Hydros and International Holdings were steady. Columbia Graphophones at 2 5/16 were fractionally harder. One or two of the copper leaders were supported, and N'Changas improved to 2, while Anacondas moved up to 7¼. Consolidated Goldfields were fractionally easier at 1⅛. Of Oils, Royal Dutch were supported at 25 5/16, whilst Shells added 1/16.

LONDON MINING MARKET FIRMER.

SMART RISE IN CHARTERED SHARES.

While there was no material expansion in the volume of business passing in the Mining share market yesterday, rather firmer conditions ruled. Among Kaffirs, more attention is being directed to the gold shares, many of which were in good demand at advancing prices. Goldfields were distinctly harder, and, of the other Finance descriptions, Central Mining, Rand Mines, Union Corporation, "Generals" and Anglo-French were all better. "Johnnies," too, were a good market, and in this case the buying was induced by the announcement that agreement had been reached in the matter of diamond production and sales. Rhodesians also had a better appearance, and a steady demand for Chartered lifted the price smartly. The Northern issues were dull at the opening, but the sharp rise in the price of copper created a good impression, and the consequent demand for the shares resulted in some smart gains, the market in most cases being in short supply. De Beers were wanted on home and Paris account, and jumped up sharply, and the Preference, Jagersfontein and Consolidated Diamonds were also better. The price of tin jumped up £3 17s. 6d. to £115 per ton, and the share market exhibited a stronger appearance. The price of copper rose smartly, and this stimulated activity in the share market, where Rio Tinto jumped up 10s., and Tharsis, Mount Lyell, Messina and others also appreciated. Elsewhere, Burma Corporation were a distinctly harder market, and Minerals Separation moved up with Northern Rhodesians, but Panama relapsed on a little selling on an unwilling market. Closing prices:—

SPINNING COMPANY'S CAPITAL.

SHARES REDUCED TWO-THIRDS IN VALUE.

At an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of Swan Lane Spinning Co. (1920), Ltd., of Bolton, held at Bolton last night, a resolution was declared carried that, the capital of the company be reduced from £1,750,000, divided into shares of £1 each to £604,336 13s. 4d., dividend into 1,813,010 shares of 6s. 8d. each. There were a few dissentients.

Another resolution declared carried provided that, upon such reduction taking effect the capital of the company be increased to its former amount by the creation of 3,436,900 new shares of 6s. 8d. each.

The Chairman, Dr. J. Cotes, explained that the second resolution was merely to save the company having to pay stamp duty in the event of fresh capital being sought, and that only with the consent of three-quarters of the shareholders could the capital of the company be increased.

A shareholder suggested that only with the approval of the shareholders should the capital be increased to its former amount.

The Chairman gave an undertaking that at the next meeting a new article of association would be brought forward on the lines suggested.

MR. MONTAGU NORMAN TO BE RE-ELECTED GOVERNOR.

The Court of Directors of the Bank of England have agreed to recommend to the proprietors in April next that the Right Hon. Montagu Collet Norman, D.S.O., the present Governor, be re-elected Governor, and that Sir Ernest Musgrave Harvey, K.B.E., the present Deputy Governor, be re-elected Deputy Governor for the year ensuing.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOAN AND BILL RATES EASIER.

THE GOLD DRAIN TO FRANCE.

Easier conditions prevailed in Lombard street yesterday, partly owing to heavier Treasury bill maturities. Borrowers, however, usually had to pay 2¼ per cent. for loans over the night, but towards the close balances were offering down to 2 per cent. Old money was renewed at 2 per cent. for either a day or a week.

Bank Rate Discount (changed May 1, 1930)	3%
60 days (fine)	2 7/32%
3 months	2 7/32 2¼%	Trade	3 3½%
4 "	2¼ 2 5/16%	"	3¼ 3½%
6 "	2 5/16 2⅜%	"	3½ 4%
Loans to Brokers Day-to-day	2 2¼%
" for a week	2%
Deposit Allowance: Banks at Call	1%
" " Discount Houses at Call	1%
" " " at Notice	1¼%

Bill rates were easier, in sympathy with money. Fine three months' bills were taken at a shade under 2¼ per cent., while the banks were buyers of late December at 2⅛ per cent. February bills were wanted at 2 3/16 per cent., while the new Treasuries were changing hands around 2 3/16 per cent.

Silver recovered ⅛d. on China buying to 16 11/16d. per oz. spot, and 16 9/16d. for forward delivery. Gold remained at 85s. 0¾d. per oz. fine.

At the Bank of England £314,734 in bar gold was sold to France, and £39,000 in sovereigns exported.

Somewhat irregular conditions prevailed in the foreign exchange market yesterday. The New York dollar appreciated to the extent of 1/16c. to 4.85 11/16, as did Canadian dollars by 1/16c. to 4.85¼. Among the Continental currencies, francs opened firmer, but were finally another 1¼c. cheaper on balance at 123.67½. Swiss francs reacted, closing 1¼c. higher at 25.05. Reichsmarks improved 1½pf. to 20.38½, and belgas ¼c. to 34.82½. Pesetas weakened 6c. to 42.02½, and florins ½c. to 12.07½. Italian lire closed ½c. dearer at 92.78½. In the South American section, Argentine dollars rose ⅛ to 38 11/16, and the Brazilian milreis hardened 1-64 to 4⅞. Montevideo fell ⅛ to 39⅝.

ALLIED STORES MERGER BREAKS DOWN.

We are officially informed by the International Tea Company's Stores, Ltd., that negotiations in regard to the proposed merger with the Home and Colonial Stores, Maypole Dairy Company, Meadow Dairy Company, Pearks Dairies, and Lipton have broken down.

GOLDFIELDS DIVIDEND CUT.

Consolidated Goldfields of South Africa £1 shares recently fell to little over their par value owing to fears that there would be no dividend for 1930, presumably because of the depreciation in the value of shareholdings. It is now announced that 7½ p.c. will be paid for the year against 15 p.c. for the two preceding years. On the announcement the shares recovered to 1⅛. It is impossible to appraise their value until the report is available showing the extent to which profits have been affected. The shares are largely dealt in in Paris, and the price is frequently influenced by operations from that centre. In recent years the company has extended its sphere of activities far beyond the South African gold mining and finance field.

SHARP ADVANCE IN COPPER.

Following the announcement that the conference of copper producers in New York had reached a tentative agreement with representatives of the Kantanga mines and the International Nickel Company, which will result in a 15 p.c. reduction in outputs, values of copper registered a sharp advance. On the Metal Exchange in London there was a keen demand for forward standard, which lifted the three months' position to £49 10s., a rise of £4 5s. The overnight advance of 50 points in the New York price of electrolytic to 10 cents per lb. was reflected in the market for refined copper in London, with electrolytic £3 10s. to £4 dearer at £51 to £52, wire bars £4 higher at £52, and strong sheets £2 up at £75. Sales at the first session yesterday totalled 3,000 tons, the largest single session turnover this year, and considerably in excess of some of the weekly totals.

FINE COTTON SPINNERS.

A good deal of disappointment among investors must have been occasioned by the passing of their interim dividend by the Fine Cotton Spinners' and Doublers' Association (says The Financial News). The action of the board was not to be wondered at, seeing that for the previous two years the payment of even decreased dividends has necessitated them having to raid the company's reserve funds. Prudent finance obviously could not allow of such a policy being continued indefinitely. There are two points that a holder might consider. A good deal of the Fine Spinners' trading profits for the last three years have been employed in writing down the value of their stocks of cotton to current values. The price of Egyptian cotton fell during 1929 from an average of 19.35d. per pound to 14.65d. per pound, while for this year it has again fallen further, at one time to under 9d. per pound. There is also the question of the intense competition that has been taking place in the Lancashire industry owing to the general trade depression. These two factors might right themselves concurrently, or in spite of the general situation in this country, which lends additional point to the potentialities of Fine Spinners Ordinary.

U.S. OIL PROPOSAL.

The American Petroleum Institute at its annual convention in Chicago discussed the question of unification—that is to say, the operation of an entire oilfield as one unit—a scheme designed to check overproduction. The discussion was led by Mr. T. K. Swigert, of the Shell group. Increased efficiency in the stopping of losses on production by greater mechanical efficiency was also discussed. Still another cut of 15 cents per barrel in the ruling rate for Pennsylvania crude oil was announced on Wednesday from $1.60-$2.00 to $1.45-$1.85. The two previous reductions in the price of Pennsylvania crude were also 15 cents each, and took place on 22nd October and 1st November.

WHOLESALE PRICES IN BRITAIN.

As measured at the Board of Trade, British wholesale prices in October showed, on balance, a decline of 2.2 per cent. as compared with September, and a decline of 17.0 per cent. as compared with October, 1929, the index numbers for the three months being 68.0, 69.5, and 81.9 respectively (1924 = 100). Although the index number for the food group showed a fall of 2 per cent. comparing average prices in October with those for September, the major part of the reductions in price occurred before the end of September, and there was some tendency towards higher prices in the fourth week of October. Among industrial materials, decreases were balanced by increases during the second half of the month.

BRITISH AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY.

FIFTEEN YEARS' COMPETITION WITH NORWAY TO END.

REUTER'S TELEGRAM.

OSLO, Thursday.

The competition between the British-American Tobacco Company and Norwegian tobacco manufacturers which has lasted more than fifteen years, is likely soon to end, the British company having expressed its willingness to sell its tobacco factory in Oslo to a Norwegian company, in which the British-American Company will be interested to the extent of 45 per cent. According to the draft agreement, the British-American Tobacco Company declares that it will not purchase an interest in the Norwegian tobacco manufacturing industry, and British-American products manufactured abroad may be imported in the ordinary manner.

DUBLIN CHESS CLUB.

ANNUAL MEETING.

At the sixty-fourth annual general meeting of the Dublin Chess Club, held on Wednesday in the club rooms, Lincoln place, there was a crowded attendance of members. The chair was taken by the President, Mr. W. Moffat Wilson.

Several letters of regret were read, the most interesting being one from Mr. W. Nicholls, retired inspector of schools, who explained that the night air of this season out of doors had a bad effect on the bronchial tubes of one who had reached the age of ninety-three.

The Managing Committee's report was presented and adopted. The total membership of the club now amounts to 85, of whom ten are country members resident outside County Dublin. The reports of the other honorary officers, treasurer, secretary and librarian, were also considered highly satisfactory. Among recent additions to the library, special mention was made of the chess works received from the representatives of the late Mr. Swift Paine Johnston, M.A., formerly Assistant Commissioner of Intermediate Education.

To fill the vacancies occurring by rotation on the Managing Committee the following were elected:—Messrs. J. A. Bonner, J. J. Doyle, J. J. Morrissey, S. A. French, J. J. O'Hanlon and N. H. Wallace. Mr. W. Moffat Wilson was unanimously re-elected President, and other re-elections were:—Vice-presidents, Messrs. J. Sweetman and F. Hobson; hon. librarian, Mr. George Peyton, LL.D.; hon. treasurer, Mr. H. McIlwaine; hon. secretary, Mr. T. G. Cranston; assistant hon. secretary, Mr. S. A. French. Messrs. Cranston and McIlwaine were chosen to represent the club on the Leinster Chess Union.

The President distributed the prizes won during the previous year, a list of which has already been published. At the close of the formal proceedings there was a lightning tourney, which was won by Mr. W. Hassell.

ADOPTED CHILD'S DEATH.

RESULT OF A FALL AT PLAY.

Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for South County Dublin, held an inquest in St. Columcille's Hospital, Loughlinstown, yesterday on Agnes Loughlin, aged 17 months, an adopted child, who died in the hospital following a fall.

Mrs. Brigid Lawless, Thornhill, Old Connaught, Bray, said that on the 18th June last she was given custody of the child, Agnes Loughlin, from the Catholic Rescue Society, South Anne street, Dublin, for which she was paid 30s. per month up to October last. Then she made application to adopt the child, and the Society agreed to give her £28 in instalments of £5. On last Sunday the child was in the kitchen playing about, when she fell, and the back of her head struck the ground.

Dr. Moore, Bray, said that there was a slight bruise over the forehead. In his opinion, the cause of death was cerebral compression following an injury to the head. The child was well nourished. He was satisfied that the injuries had been caused in the manner described.

The Coroner, in recording a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, said that he was satisfied that every possible care was taken of the child by Mrs. Lawless.

The Salvation Army Commissioners from all over the world, at their meeting at Mildmay Hall, Newington Green, yesterday, decided that no general of the Salvation Army shall appoint his successor, and that any successor shall always be elected to that office. They also decided that no general should have the power to nominate his successor.

THE VIENNESE RIOTS.

The police in Vienna have discovered huge stocks of hidden arms and machine guns. During the confiscation of the arms riots broke out, and the police called in the aid of the troops, who are here seen guarding one of the main thoroughfares.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

LIGHT BLUES' EASY WIN.

TRINITY BEATEN AT ALL POINTS.

SMEDDLE SCORES FIVE TRIES.

At Cambridge yesterday Dublin met with an overwhelming defeat by seven placed goals, one dropped goal, and four tries to two tries—51 points to 6. It was probably the biggest win by either side since the two Universities have met, and it left one with the enigma as to whether Cambridge were outstandingly good or Dublin deplorably poor.

Certain it was that Cambridge held a decided advantage at practically every point, and only save at scrum-half, where the Irishman, Stokes, paid very close attention to Simpson, could they be said to acquire any semblance of balance. Nevertheless, Simpson extracted himself cleverly from many difficult positions, and when the Cambridge backs got moving they outwitted the Dublin defence time after time. The Irish defenders seemed to gather no inspiration from the lengthy passes of Cambridge, and they allowed themselves to get bunched up, so that a cut through was almost inevitable. In this way Phillips, Collison, and Adams were frequently making openings, although the latter often bored his wing-man, Tanner, so close to the touch-line that his chances were fewer than came the way of Smeddle, who was altogether too clever for his opponents, and who had the satisfaction of scoring no fewer than five tries.

The Irish forwards showed none of the old characteristic rushes, and were slower in breaking up than Cambridge, for whom Brook, as wing forward, played a splendid game, and had an important part in the scoring of several of the tries. When Cambridge had obtained their opening try, after eight minutes' play, there was a steady amassing of points up to half-time, broken only when McNeice made a smart interception and raced away for a try near the corner flag. The score at half-time was thirty points to three, and Cambridge added eight more before they had to defend for a longer period than at any other time during the game. Dublin got more of the ball, but their backs were not clever enough to break through, and it resulted from some scrambling play on the Cambridge line that Sutton obtained possession and forced himself over.

This minor success steadied Cambridge for a short time, but the last ten minutes saw them getting the Dublin defence in a tangle again, with the result that, following on some cleverly devised openings, the attack culminated on the Cambridge right wing, and Smeddle ran in three times. Of the tries, Smeddle in all obtained five, whilst Collison got two, and Tanner, Brook, Greenwood and Williams one apiece. Askew kicked seven goals and Collison dropped a goal. Result:—

Cambridge University—8 goals (1 dropped) and 4 tries (51 points).
Dublin University—2 tries (6 points).

FIRST MUNSTER TRIAL.

PROBABLES BEAT POSSIBLES.

The initial Munster trial match between Probables and Possibles took place yesterday at the Markets Field, Limerick, in dull, but fine, weather, and before a very large attendance. There were several changes in the teams as already published, M. Murphy taking the place of McNeice at right wing, while J. Griffin substituted Williamson at centre, and T. Murphy took the position of W. W. O'Sullivan as out-half for Probables. In the Possibles' side J. O'Dea took the place of J. Griffin as centre three-quarter; while in the forwards Lyons and J. Graham cried off, and were substituted by Matthews and M. J. Graham.

The early stages favoured the Possibles, who were, however, prone to bunching and faulty handling, which deprived them of at least two scores. Their forwards sent back the ball more frequently, and were more than a match for their opponents in the loose. After a quarter of an hour's play Probables invaded the Possibles' territory, and Egan placed a penalty goal from the twenty-five mark. M. Graham was repeatedly prominent in leading his forwards, assisted by Coffey and Cooney, but the defence prevailed. The Probables were well served by Sheehan and T. Murphy, but the weakness was very noticeable at centre, where Riordan's speed was at fault and resulted in dropped passes. The Probables improved their position with another penalty goal by Egan ten minutes from the interval, and almost immediately Possibles engaged in a fine round of passing, initiated by Sullivan, in which J. Griffin, O'Dea and M. O'Connor took part, bringing play to the line. Probables, however, cleared from a dangerous position, leaving the half-time score:—Probables, 6 points; Possibles, nil.

In the early portion of the second period Probables, who were now getting possession in the set scrums, soon developed a back movement, engaged in by Sheehan and J. Griffin, who interpassed, and M. Murphy, being the last to receive, knocked on at the corner flag. Possibles eased and took play to the centre, where Hickey was put in possession and ran to the twenty-five, to be tackled by Sheehan. The same player dummied through for some distance, but the movement was again checked when serious for Possibles. After a nice movement of inter-passing between J. Griffin and M. Murphy, the former scored far out. Egan failed with the goal kick. At this juncture O'Sullivan, the Possibles' full, was injured and had to retire, Connery being taken out of the pack to fill the vacancy. Later Riordan, after receiving from T. Murphy, cut through to score in good position, but Egan again failed to goal. By a combined back and forward movement Possibles opened a heavy attack, but the movement finished when O'Dea short-kicked over the line for M. Murphy to clear. Possibles, however, returned, and in a great forward movement, led by M. Graham, O'Halloran and Coffey, Graham beat Egan for Coffey to secure the touch. Mathews failed to add the points. Casey and Hickey were next conspicuous for Probables, the latter being only held up on the line. Powell was next in the picture, breaking through at the centre, and M. Graham, carrying on the movement from mid-field, beat the opposition before Mathews grounded. Sullivan easily goaled. Before the close Probables increased their lead, and as the result of a back movement M. Murphy scored behind the posts for Hanrahan to convert. Result:—

Probables—3 goals (2 penalties) and 2 tries (17 points).
Possibles—1 goal and 1 try (8 points).

Mr. W. Russell (Constitution) refereed.

A further trial will take place in Cork preparatory to selecting the Munster team to meet Ulster at Belfast.

THE PAPAL NUNCIO.

LIMERICK'S WELCOME.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LIMERICK, Thursday.

The Most Rev. Dr. Pascal Robinson, Papal Nuncio to the Irish Free State, arrived in Limerick this afternoon on a semi-private visit. He was accompanied by his private secretary, and made the journey from Dublin by motor car. At Annacotty, a few miles from the city, he was met by the Most Rev. Dr. Keane, Bishop of Limerick, who welcomed him on behalf of himself and the diocesan clergy. The Mayor, Alderman Donnellan, wearing his robes, and accompanied by the Town Clerk, Mr. William M. Nolan, and Mr. John McCormack, Chairman, County Council, also extended greetings; and for the remainder of the journey the residents along the route cheered the Nuncio, who arrived at St. John's Presbytery about one o'clock, and was received by the Cathedral Chapter.

At 2.30 the Nuncio left for St. John's Cathedral, and proceeding through the presbytery grounds walked under a canopy borne by four clergymen, and was heartily cheered by a very large concourse which had assembled. St. John's Band played "God Bless Our Pope," which was sung by the members of the Arch-Confraternity of the Holy Family. The Papal colours and bunting were displayed in Cathedral place and other approaches.

A religious service was held in the Cathedral, at which the Nuncio presided, and there was a very large congregation, including the Mayor and members of the Corporation, County Council, Judge McElligott, and Mr. J. M. Flood, District Justice, who wore their robes. The Bishop of Limerick gave the Benediction.

THE RECEPTION.

Subsequent to the religious Service a reception was held in St. John's Schools, at which the guests were introduced to the Nuncio.

The Most Rev. Dr. Keane said that the visit of the Nuncio to Limerick that day had awakened memories of three hundred years ago. At the time of Archbishop Rinucinni's visit Ireland was in a troubled state, and his travels were not free from perils, but the conditions to-day were more fortunate and pleasant. There was another difference: the Cathedral from which Archbishop Rinucinni gave his blessing was different to that in which they were now assembled.

The Papal Nuncio, in reply, thanked the bishop for his most heartening address. He was very glad to come to Limerick, and had been looking forward with great pleasure to the visit, and desired to express his special gratitude for being provided with the opportunity of meeting so many of the clergy and laity. It gave him particular pleasure to meet the Mayor and members of the Corporation, and when he arrived in Ireland last January the first letter of congratulation that reached him was from the Corporation of Limerick. In reply he expressed the hope that, in due time, he might have an occasion of thanking them personally, and now that the occasion presented itself he gladly availed himself of it to record in the most public way his indebtedness to the municipal authorities. Not only for the letter to which he had referred, but also for their proposal to bestow the highest civic honour on him, a proposal which, with their understanding and consent, he had been reluctantly constrained to decline.

In conclusion, he said that it was his earnest hope and prayer that the blessing of St. Munchin, and their other patron saints, might ever rest on the ecclesiastical and civil authorities of Limerick; upon its many religious institutions, and upon its devoted people.

DUBLIN PORT AND DOCKS BOARD.

THE LORD MAYOR AND IDLE SHIPYARD WORKERS.

At yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, Mr. C. E. McGloughlin (Chairman) presiding, the Engineer recommended the Board to purchase an additional steam hopper to attend on the bucket dredger.

The Lord Mayor of Dublin (Senator A. Byrne) hoped that, when the Board would consider the matter, they would, if possible, get the boat built in Dublin. There were a great many shipworkers idle in Dublin. The shipyards at both sides of the river were heavy ratepayers, and he thought that anything the Board could do to ease such a situation should be done.

The Chairman said that it was the practice to get all they could done in Dublin, and when they were dealing with the purchase of the boat they would consider the local tenders.

A letter from Mr. H. W. Nesbitt, Scout Master, 2nd Port of Dublin Baden Powell Sea Scouts, asking for permission to erect a hut on a piece of ground at the rere of the boat house on the North Bull, was referred to the Engineer for report.

CORONER AND DOCTORS' CERTIFICATES.

COMMENTS AT INQUEST AT KINGSTOWN.

Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for South Co. Dublin, held an inquest yesterday in St. Michael's Hospital, Kingstown, on Michael Burke, aged 63 years, of Cabinteely, who was found lying on the roadway at Kill avenue last Monday. He was taken to St. Michael's Hospital, where he died the following day.

Inspector Gilbride represented the Civic Guards.

Patrick Davis, Cabinteely, son-in-law, said that on Monday morning his father-in-law complained of a pain in the stomach. He had been subject to these pains.

Dr. Murray, St. Michael's Hospital, said that Burke was admitted at about 2.30 p.m. on Monday in a collapsed condition and suffering from severe abdominal pain. He saw him on several occasions during the day and on the following morning. He died at 11.15 a.m. on Tuesday.

THE CAUSE OF DEATH.

As a result of a post-mortem examination, Dr. Murray said that in his opinion the cause of death was peritonitis, following perforation of the anterior walls of the stomach, and heart failure.

The Coroner said that he had a certificate from another doctor stating that the cause of death was atheroma of the coronary arteries of the heart. He was sorry to say that this was another instance of the carelessness with which some doctors gave certificates. He (the Coroner) returned a verdict in accordance with the evidence of Dr. Murray. The certificate of the other doctor would not be registered.

WORK OF THE LINEN GUILD.

ROYAL CITY OF DUBLIN HOSPITAL.

The annual meeting of the Linen Guild of the Royal City of Dublin Hospital was held in the hospital, Baggot street, yesterday afternoon, under the chairmanship of Viscountess Powerscourt.

In the annual report the Hon. Secretary (Mrs. English) referred to the loss the Guild had sustained by the death of Mr. Richard Booth, who had been such a splendid worker for the hospital. They were also very sorry to have lost Mrs. Foot, who took a keen interest in the hospital, and had been a member of the Guild for some years.

EFFORTS TO RAISE FUNDS.

The members of the Linen Guild had, as usual, supported the efforts of the Committee in raising funds to provide a good supply of linen for the hospital, and the Matron's list had again been completely supplied, amounting to £156 0s. 10d. The daffodil sale realised the "record" sum of £50 3s. They thanked very heartily Mrs. and Miss Clarke, who so kindly and successfully assisted by having a stall of flowers and country produce; also Mr. Cornwall, for practically re-stocking with fresh supplies of flowers and country produce for Saturday, when Miss Cornwall re-opened the sale. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Smith gave them permission to have tea, organised by the Linen Guild Committee, at their sale of rock plants in May, at Ballawley Park. The Committee wished to thank Mrs. Crawley, Mrs. Darley, Mrs. Vernon, Mrs. Crichton, and all others who kindly helped, the amount thus raised being £26 19s. 1d. Mrs. Musters very kindly gave us £1, part proceeds of a fête. At the autumn jumble sale Miss Parsons, Miss Cornwall, and their helpers made £27 16s. Among working members, the Committee wished to thank Mrs. Flood for all the knitting she had done, and Miss Beauman for making children's frocks.

ACTIVITIES OF THE GUILD.

Proposing the adoption of the report, Mrs. A. Dickie said that it was incumbent upon all members to spread information about the activities of the Guild, and so bring in fresh members and added support. The work of the Guild was being carried on quietly and unobtrusively without thought of reward. It was work which deserved not only the best thanks of those present at the meeting, but of the entire county.

Dr. Graham, seconding, said that the City of Dublin Hospital had taken no active participation in the Hospitals' Sweep Stake. They wanted £16,000 to wipe off the debt on the hospital. They did not want to run a "sweep" for that purpose. They wanted to raise through the generosity of their supporters and friends not alone the sum necessary to wipe off the debt, but a good deal more to enable them to build. That was an oldish building which needed renovation, repair and enlargement, especially in the extern department.

The report was adopted.

NEED FOR MORE MONEY.

Proposing the re-election of the Committee for the year 1931, Dr. Ella Webb spoke of the need for increasing supplies of linen to the hospital. That was one of the things that made more for the comfort of the patients than anything else.

Dr. Synge, seconding the motion, as a member of the medical staff of the hospital, thanked the members of the Linen Guild for their work during the year. There was a noticeable improvement in the supply of linen in the hospital. They needed money badly to improve their dispensary accommodation. Their present dispensary was in the basement, and it was one of the worst in the Dublin hospitals. He also referred to the fact that the City of Dublin Hospital received a great number of cases the result of motor accidents, owing to its proximity to the main motoring roads. That threw extra work on the staff, the hospital, and the Linen Guild.

The motion was adopted.

IMPROVEMENT OF BUILDINGS.

Viscountess Powerscourt expresesd regret at the loss sustained by the departure of Mrs. Hoy, who had been for many years hon. secretary of the Guild. She welcomed Mrs. English, who had so successfully taken up the position. They all knew, she added, that the hospital needed a great deal of money, partly to pay off its debt, and partly to improve its buildings and carry on its excellent work. There was a greater urge, therefore, on all the members of the Guild and friends of the hospital to work harder to achieve their object.

Dr. Parsons, proposing a vote of thanks to Viscountess Powerscourt, said he would like to urge the need for money to provide a new extern department. At present the work was being carried on under great difficulties. The directors had purchased an excellent site, and all they wanted was money. If they got £6,000 he was satisfied they could build an excellent extern department. Dr. Graham had already set an excellent example by giving them £500. The hospital had lost three excellent friends during the year—namely, Mr. Healy, Mr. Beckett, and Mr. Richard Booth.

Mr. Overend seconded, and said that the one thing that struck him since he joined the Board was the tremendous amount of voluntary work being done by all sorts of people for the good of the hospital. Without that work he did not know where the hospital would be.

The vote of thanks was carried with acclamation

INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES

ENGLAND'S GREAT LOSS IN WORKING DAYS.

Sir Kingsley Wood, in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Minister of Labour if she would state the total number of days lost owing to industrial disputes since 1st June, 1929, and how it compared with a similar period immediately preceding June, 1929.

Miss Bondfield replied: The number of working days lost owing to disputes during the seventeen months—June, 1929, to October, 1930 — was approximately 11,300,000, of which 9,900,000 were accounted for by the extensive disputes in the cotton and wool textile industries. The corresponding total for a period of seventeen months prior to June, 1929, was 2,100,000.

Sir Kingsley Wood—Any particular reason for the increase? A very unhappy business, is it not?

There was no reply.

HOSPITAL LOTTERIES.

AN AUTHOR'S VIEW.

Mr. A. P. Herbert, the author, speaking at a meeting of the West London Hospital Ladies' Association, held in the hospital at Hammersmith last night, deplored the fact that there were no lotteries for charity in this country.

He said:—Our betting bill comes to over two hundred million pounds per year, and to do nothing whatever to try to get some of this money for the hospitals or for the State is nothing but sheer lunacy and hypocrisy. It is high time that the Government did something about it.

English earthenware brought big prices yesterday in the sale of the Taylor art collection at Sotheby's. A rare Lambeth or Southwark dish, with the date [illegible], fetched £210. Among the salt-glaze pieces was a rare "Pew" group, which brought £260. An almost complete collection of the books printed at the Kelmscott Press (William Morris Press) brought in a total of £750. The highest price was £225 for Chaucer's work.

HOWTH URBAN DISTRICT.

OPPOSITION TO LAYING OF WATER MAIN.

The public business of the Howth urban district was conducted by Mr. P. J. Meghen, Commissioner, yesterday.

The Town Surveyor, Mr. F. Higginbotham, reported that serious inconvenience had been caused by the action of the Great Northern Railway Company in stopping the Urban Council's men laying the three-inch main between "Roxboro" and "Stella Maris," along the hill tram road, on the 3rd inst. Although there was in existence an agreement for way leave for a water main there between the railway company and the Howth estate, the company insisted on having a new agreement between them and the Commissioner. As a result of this the work was held up for a week. On Monday, the 10th inst., notification was received from the company that an electric cable was in the position in which the Council intended laying the pipe. Next day a location was settled for the main, and the work had been re-started.

The Surveyor further reported that, although the majority of the people through whose grounds the water in connection with the improved water supply passed understood the Council's legal power to enforce the right to lay those water mains, there were some who were seriously delaying the work and causing great difficulty in maintaining supplies. The temporary supply to the Bog of Loughs could not be maintained much longer, and if the old estate supply could not be connected up shortly, the consumers between "Stella Maris" and the Baily Post Office would be left without water.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

THE MACARTNEY ROSE.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

As a true evergreen, with particularly elegant, finely-cut foliage, the Macartney Rose especially appeals, although all too seldom seen to come under observation. However, judging by an occasional specimen yet found in old-world gardens, it should claim more attention from us today. This fine, distinct species was brought home by Lord Macartney when returning from his ambassadorial duties to China in 1795. To meet with a fine specimen studded with its large white single blossoms, set off with clusters of golden stamens, as we found it a few years since at Foxrock Lodge, Co. Dublin, is one of the never-forgotten joys of our gardening life. The Macartney Rose demands kindness in the way of a warm, sheltering wall, to which it can be closely trained, when it can show its charms over a good space.

POULTRY, CAGE BIRDS, DAIRY.

SOURCES OF DISEASE.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

The first and most important thing is to keep nothing but healthy stock, and get rid of birds with the smallest sign of delicacy. Therefore, be very careful about those birds that are purchased. It is not always possible to know the stock from which the purchased birds come, so that they should always be isolated before being put with the flock. They should be kept by themselves for a period of at least seven days, which will give opportunity for observation and development of any disease that may be dormant. Each bird should be carefully examined for signs of roup or colds, or a discharge from the nostrils on pressing or from the eyes, and inflammation of these. Close scrutiny of the mouth and tongue may reveal a fungus growth in whitish yellow patches, which is also a sign of roup. Birds with scaly legs, body parasites, crooked breasts, or any other physical defects, which indicate constitutional weakness, should be discarded and returned to the vendor.
